BRICK MAKING TO BEGIN SOON

BETTER BUILDING SEASON EXPECTED BY HEAD OF BEND BRICK CO.—INTRODUCE NEW TYPE OF SILO CONSTRUCTION.

Manufacture of brick will be started again in June at the plant of the Bend Brick Company, west of Bend, L. B. Baird, head of the company announces. The payroll of last year, totaling $35,000, will be met and quite probably passed, Mr. Baird states. He expects a better building season than was enjoyed last year, and believes that the proportionate demand for brick will be greater. A number of improvements in method of manufacture are contemplated for the coming season at the brickyard, but these had not been carefully enough worked out so that they could be announced, Mr. Baird said.

Approximately a million brick are now on hand at the yards, an amount amply sufficient to take care of all spring construction, and the same policy of burning more than enough for the summer's needs will be followed this season, allowing a surplus for the next spring.

Mr. Baird is now working on details of brick silo construction, which he expects to introduce in Central Oregon in the near future.

Up to Mrs. Smith. Jack was visiting a neighbor who always had a supply of home-made cookies on hand. She gave him one, which he ate, and Jack asked for a cookie to bring to his mother. When he reached home he said: "Mother, Mrs. Smith said she was sorry but there was a bite out of your cookie."

HOLLANDER WHO GAVE KAISER WINGS HERE

The United States is paying more attention to what this young man says that it did eight years ago when he was trying to sell an airplane. He is Anthony H. G. Fokker, of Amsterdam, Holland, the inventor of the famous Fokker plane which Germany used in the World War. Fokker is here to study commercial possibilities of the airplane in the United States. It is rumored he will make tests for the navy department. He says he offered his plane to England and the United States in 1912.
