BRITAIN EXCITED OVER POLO MATCH

Coming Contests With American Team For International Cup. Cause of Widespread Interest

By Charles W. McCann.

LONDON, May 13.—Polo used to be considered by the British only as an amusement of the idle rich, or pastime for dashing young cavalry officers who had nothing else to do.

But since the American team arrived here to compete for the International cup in a series of matches, starting June 18 at Hurlingham, polo has become a general topic of the streets.

The International cup is one of the few sport trophies symbolic of world superiority that remains in British hands and the effort of the Americans to take the prize back will be one of the biggest sporting events of the year.

Every seat of the 10,000 has been sold and the committee is planning now to erect new stands to accommodate those who are willing to pay from $25 to $150 for a seat.

The list of box holders reads like a roll call of British royalty, nobility, army, society and fashion leaders.

The international contests between England and America date back to 1886, when a Hurlingham team, captained by the great Irish sportsman, the late John Watson, visited America to compete for a cup presented by the Westchester club. England won both matches played and returned in triumph with the cup.

In 1902 the American Polo association issued a formal challenge and sent over a team, which, however, was equally unsuccessful.

In 1909 Harry Payne Whitney's "Big Four" gained a sensational victory over the best team England could produce and carried the cup back to the United States.

There it remained until 1914, although in 1911 an English team led by Captain Hardross Lloyd made an unsuccessful invasion, and two years later the Duke of Westminster's team also failed.

CREDIT IS OUR GREATEST ASSET

The commercial world is standing on the foundation of credit. Every individual is a cog in the great wheel. When one neglects his credit and fails to pay his honest obligations, he makes it impossible for some one else to meet theirs, therefore it is extremely vital that each and every one see to it that we

The Brooks-Scanlon Lumber Co.

An American Worker's Creed

"The Company for which I work is a mighty good employer and I think any employe who hasn't an interest in the success of his employer ought to quit or get fired. My idea is that when a man sells his services to an employer, he sells his loyalty at the same time. If he can't be loyal and give the best that is in him, he ought not to work for that particular employer. By being loyal I don't mean that one has to be a toady, or that he has to lose any of his independence. The most loyal may be the most independent, and usually is."

The Shevlin-Hixon Company

"There is now no danger ahead of any general financial trouble in the United States. Our Federal Reserve Banks are strong in reserves and experience. There is a closer relation both with member banks and business men. The time has come for renewed courage and confidence. There is no point in forcing liquidation further. Business enterprises should be encouraged to build themselves up."

This was the message of W. P. G. Harding, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, to 2,000 American business men assembled at Cleveland, Ohio, May 4, 1921, in the first session of the eighth annual convention of the National Foreign Trade Council.
