Where Was It?
Miss T., a Terre Haute principal, is a genius at finding things. Her boys all know it now, too. The other day a youngster was leaning over trying to fix a pen when he suddenly straightened up and announced that a piece of the pen flew into his eye. She accordingly excused him from work and gave him all the attention accorded an invalid. And he enjoyed it, too.
But that afternoon his enjoyment was so evident that she grew suspicious. She called him to her and passed a magnet close to his eye. Of course no piece of steel came out to meet it, but there did come a confession from the youngster that he was playing soldier at the time, and that no piece of steel had gone into his eye.—Indianapolis News.

Amusing!
A Hoosier author was recently asked what she regarded as her most humorous experience. She studied a few minutes and then related it. One summer she lectured at a Chautauqua where another woman lectured on the subject of "health."
"One night," laughed the author, "she gave a wonderful lecture on the care of teeth. We went home together and as she was worn out I offered to go with her to her room and read to her. "That was a splendid talk that you gave tonight." I told her as she finished making her toilet to retire.
"Yes, I think it is real good myself," she beamed, and absent-mindedly reached into her mouth and took from it a complete set of false teeth and relaxed ready for the reading.

The 4th's the 4th.

There are four days in a man's yearly life when he ought to look his best.

The first is New Years.

The second is Easter.

The third is his Wedding Anniversary.

AND THE FOURTH'S THE FOURTH OF JULY.

But here Bend men don't need this prompting—they are ready the night of the 3rd for an early start in the morning—and that's just the point.

THE 3RD OF JULY FALLS THIS YEAR ON SUNDAY. That takes one day off your time for getting ready.

Better drop in today—don't you think?
