PORTLAND AUTOIST PRAISES ELK LAKE

Many Side Trips from Bend Planned, But Campers Held For Entire Outing By Ideal Spot.

"One of the most wonderful spots for camping which I have ever visited," is the way in which Howard Covey described the camp ground which he and his party occupied for two weeks on Elk lake, about thirty miles out of Bend, in Central Oregon after his return to Portland, says the Evening Telegram. Covey said that from the camp spot chosen for the outing it seemed that the entire world was spread at his feet. South Sister, snow crowned, seemed to rise out of the depths of the blue lake. with lesser snow-capped peaks slauting to a feather edge in the distance.

When the party left two weeks ago the intention was to take in several points of interest in and out of Bend. but the camp ground on Eik lake proved so satisfactory that the entire time was spent there.
