THE ROLL CALL

In answering to the Red Cross roll call with, "Here's my dollar for another year," you will help to carry on a work that began with the war and is not yet ended. While the Red Cross activities are wide spread, including disaster relief, public health programs, and many others its chief local work is on behalf of the ex-service man. It is no exaggeration to say that the aid given the past year in connection with compensation claims, bonus applications and direct relief, has been invaluable. It is unthinkable that the work should be stopped. No one has the slightest idea that it will end but unless there is a universal enrollment there will not be enough funds to carry the work through to the next roll-call a year hence.

Recognition of the value of the Red Cross to the ex-service man is found in the enthusiasm with which the men of the American Legion and the women of its auxiliary organization have entered into the roll call campaign. They know what the work means to them and their comrades. Today they have done their best to see that it will be continued through a full year to come. This is an appeal to all who have not been reached to come forward and by their voluntary subscription show that they approve the work and are ready to help in it.

The 1925 exposition boosters are saying that fifty million dollars will be spent in Portland, largely for labor, if the exposition goes through. And yet they want the rest of the state to put up part of the cost.

"There is no more inconceivable folly than this continued riot of expenditure on battleships at a time when great masses of humanity are dying of starvation."—HERBERT HOOVER.

WORLD POWERS GATHER TO DRAW WAR'S FANGS

eral Diaz, of Italy.
This group of famous men were seated, some solemn and others jovial, about a great horseshoe table in Continental hall.

Secretary of State Hughes sat at the head of the table, presiding. The seats around the table were taken by the main delegates of the principal powers in the conference, and those at the ends of the table by representatives of countries having a lesser part in the conference. There is great respect for rank.

Huge Task Faced

Grouped behind their principal delegates at the table sat the several hundred advisors, with stuffed brief cases.

The task of this conference is great. It is to remove danger of another war in the far east and halt the frantic building of battleships that cost $50,000,000 cash, and check increasing armies.

Hughes opened the conference. He stated the purposes, emphasized its importance, and, after welcoming the delegates to Washington, announced President Harding.

The American government is thoroughly prepared with its plan for the conference. During the four months which have elapsed since the first definite steps were taken to call the conference, a small army of experts has been diligently working at the state, war and navy departments, preparing masses of data for the American delegation on every conceivable question to be taken up by the conference.

The Horse

Sometimes, when viewing motor cars, and marking how they slay my friends, I sadly say, "I'll thank my stars if this wild drama ever ends! 'Twould be a blessed thing, indeed, if men these motors would eschew, and go back to the faithful steed that hauled our fathers fro and to." And then dead horses I recall, the grand old steeds I used to drive; and, counting up their failings all, I'm rather glad they don't survive. Old Dobbin sleeps where clinging vines their soft and slumbrous shade produce; he'd get his tail across the lines, and then he'd kick the dashboard loose. For good old dappled Prince I sigh, his pedigree was long and rich; at every little thing he'd shy, and dump the buggy in the ditch. And Barb, and Arab, lies beneath a granite boulder, gray and big; she'd get the bit firm in her teeth, and run away, and smash the rig. And faithful Nemo used to walk along the highway, white and straight; and he would hump himself and balk if I'd suggest a smarter gait. And when I think of all the nags I used to drive in other days, the spavined plugs, the equine hags, the blacks, the chestnuts and the bays; I think perhaps I am at fault to wish them back upon the scene, and to my flivver's seat I vault, and burn three quarts of gasolene.

head of the American delegation, in a number of conferences he has had with the other delegates of this country, has gone over this information and has fully informed Elihu Root, Senator Lodge and Senator Underwood of the American policies in the conference. It is understood to be agreed that the United States will try and secure these two main things in the conference:

- 1.—An effective agreement among the powers for a limitation of armaments.
- 2.—An "open door" treaty among the powers for the far east.

War Causes Sought

The principal powers in the conference are the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy.

Under present plans, the Washington conference will get down to the fundamental causes of the maintenance by the powers of huge armaments, and try to wipe out these factors, which also are potential causes of a new war.

This effort is to be made in the discussion of Pacific and far eastern questions in the conference. To the Pacific and far east has shifted the clash of interests of the world powers, and, consequently, it is in these far reaching areas where there lies the danger of a new war.

The conference is expected to proceed first with the discussions of Pacific and far eastern problems, for it is the belief of the United States government that the possibility of an effectual agreement for limitation of armament largely hinges on a settlement of the far eastern question.

VICTORY FOR W. S. C. BOOSTS U. OF O. STOCK

Comparative Scores Against Pullman Show Oregon A Shade Better Than Aggie Eleven.

Keener interest than ever in the outcome of the University of Oregon-O. A. C. game to be played at Eugene next Saturday as the feature of the annual homecoming day at the university, is being manifested locally since the score of 7-3 for W. S. C. in the game with the Oregon Aggies was announced yesterday evening from The Bulletin office.

Until yesterday's game Oregon had been considered weaker than the Corvallis eleven, and the only thing preventing big odds on the Aggies was the fans' recollection of the Oregon fighting spirit which it was thought might make up to a certain extent for any lack in the coaching department.

On the basis of the latest comparative scores, however, Oregon stands a shade ahead of O. A. C., for the Oregon game with the Washington stagers resulted in a tie.

As a result fans are praying earnestly for good weather to enable them to cross McKenzie Pass to Eugene next week. Several cars are already scheduled to take the trip to the big intra-state gridiron contest.

MANY ATTEND FLAG RAISING EXERCISE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

SISTERS, Nov. 12.—C. L. Gist, Dr. Vincent and A. Whisnant were the speakers at yesterday's flag raising exercises which were attended by large crowds. Following the raising of the flag, the exercises were held in the school auditorium, which was filled to capacity. Later a lunch was served by the ladies of the community.

A bucking contest and horse races were held in the afternoon, and a dance in the evening. A drive was conducted in connection with the Red Cross Roll Call.
