NO ROYAL ROAD FOR ENGLISH KING'S SON
 LONDON, Dec. 24.—Prince George, fourth son of King George, attained his 19th birthday today. The young prince who is a midshipman in the Royal Navy, is destined for a naval career.
 Unlike his elder brothers, the Prince of Wales and Duke of York, who had too many calls upon their time to stick to soldiering or sailing exclusively, young George spent the full term at the naval college, and full sea-going term as cadet and midshipman. He will have to work his way up like other young naval officers and has little chance of the rapid jumps granted to his brothers.

parents of William and Clement Sloan, of The Hub. Their home at present is Donnelly, Ida., and they are visiting in Bend over the holidays. Miss Marie Sloan, their daughter, is here from Portland.
 Sloan recalls that he caught his first fish in what is now called Klamath Marsh. He passed within two miles of Crater Lake on that trip, but did not know of the existence of the now famous scenic spot.
 The Sisemore ranch house was situated on the grassy flat a half mile north of the Brooks-Seanlon boiler house, and was still standing in 1915, when it was removed during the laying out of the Brooks-Seanlon yards. It was near this spot, called "Farewell Bend," that east and west travelers forded the Deschutes in the early days.
