NOT MEAT AND DRINK:—For the kingdom of God is not meat and drink, but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost.—Rom. 14, 17.

NO CHARITY

At the special session of the legislature, and since its adjournment, in the Portland papers, chiefly the Oregonian, much was and has been said concerning the great debt the rest of the state owes Portland for assistance of various sorts. Favorable votes for educational measures have been cited. Attention has been called to Multnomah county's contribution to highway and market road funds. Reference has been made to the law guaranteeing interest on irrigation district bonds and to the state appropriation for the construction of the Tumalo project.

That all these things have been done, or voted, largely by, or by the aid of, Portland and Multnomah county no one can, or cares to, deny. It is a new idea, however, to say that Portland has done this by way of unselfish aid or assistance to its needy up-state neighbors. The Portland action has always been dictated by its ideas as to what was best for the state, including itself. If Portland has voted for educational taxes, or for state schools, or for highways and market roads it has been because it believed that the schools should be maintained for its youth as well as for those from other parts of the state, and because it knew that the roads its money built would benefit it with the other counties. The same thing is true of the guarantee of irrigation district bond interest. The Tumalo project stands by itself. Money was voted for its construction because the legislature recognized the moral obligation of the state to those who had depended on the state's participation in the Carey act activity of the Columbia Southern Company.

Portland points, also, to its huge expenditure for port improvements which it would have us now believe were made wholly to provide ready access to market for the producing sections of the interior, although when Portland people were asked to vote funds for these improvements it was wholly on the ground of increased business for Portland. A measure authorizing Portland to bond itself for port development placed before the state last year was then spoken of as of interest to Portland alone, although by some quirk of the law it had to go before the whole state.

No, it is now impossible for our Portland friends to readjust their reasons for these various actions. There was no charity connected with them. But, we wonder, do they realize the necessary implication of this sort of argument? Do they realize that if they ask for state aid for the 1925 exposition in return for favors claimed to have been given in the past they are admitting that the fair is wholly a Portland party? The rest of the state has joined Portland in past years in voting for measures of general state benefit. In the fair it can see no such general benefit and even if it could it realizes that it has not the money with which to pay the cost.

Sloan's Liniment (Pain's enemy)

The Criminal

I mark the specialist in crime, as on his course he hops, and when he isn't serving time he's dodging gumshoe cops; and he can never reach a clime where the avenger stops. He makes a killing now and then, and swipes some sucker's hoard; but never may, like other men, the wholesome joys afford, and soon or later in the pen he has his bed and board. For him there is no peace of mind, no rest at set of sun, and moral people and refined he evermore must shun, and if he hears a step behind, his impulse is to run. His nerve forsakes him when he's old, his days are days of dread, the step that once was firm and bold is like a rabbit's tread, and, shaking in the dark and cold, he wishes he were dead. And if he'd use the clever brain with which he is endowed, for purposes of honest gain, in ways by law allowed, when old age gets him he might train with any classy crowd. 'Tis strange that men of splendid gifts elect with crooks to chase and try out all the evil shifts that stern detectives trace, and join the caravan that drifts to prison and disgrace. 'Tis strange because they well must know the end of such a trail; the law will dog them to and fro and in the end prevail; and crime will bring them only woe, and long years in a jail.

BABE RUTH SLATED FOR JOB ON FIRST

Hard Hitting Fielder Too Heavy For Gardens And Yank Manager Contemplates Change.

(By Henry L. Farrell)

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Babe Ruth is slated to play first base next season for the New York Yanks.

New York will not be surprised to see the swat king switched from patrol of the sun garden to the door-keeper of the American League champions' infield.

Miller Huggins, manager of the club, has not committed himself officially, but he has let it be known that he has been considering the change for some time.

First base will not be a strange berth to the slugging sultan, as he played the position with the Boston Red Sox. Late in the season last year, the big Bam put in about ten minutes every day on the first corner during fielding practice and he likes the position.

While he was a capable left fielder, the Bam showed a weakness in getting low drives and ground balls. He was too heavy for the position and he maintained that he didn't get enough work chasing flies to keep down his girth.

"Leg Rolling"
Log rolling meant originally the rolling of logs, after trees had been cut down, into a stream or into heaps. It was customary for the men of a district to assemble together for this purpose, and so log rolling afterwards came to mean, in American politics, that mutual aid which persons desiring different ends give to each other, in order to get their schemes carried through. It thus means reciprocal jobbing.

Organ Pipes.
The longest pipes in an organ are the ones which produce the lowest pitches; and a closed tube doubles this length, since the vibrations must retrace their course to find an outlet.

A Series of Human Interest Talks on Insurance

How Much Insurance Should a Man Have When He is Married?

This question is getting more and more attention every day. One man said: "When you hear I am married you will know I am carrying at least $15,000 life insurance."

Another said: "I figure that a man should provide an income for his family of at least $1500 per year. That is 6% on $25,000. I expect to carry that amount."

My work for Oregon Life Insurance Company is not to sell you all the insurance I possibly can, but to work with you to decide how you can obtain maximum protection at a cost proportionate to your income.

This may mean a $1000 or $25,000 policy.

LARGE HAILSTONES CAUSE FOUR DEATHS

Children in Uruguay Beaten To Earth, Skulls Crushed By Heavy Fragments of Ice.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 9.—Hailstones so large that they killed four young children during a recent storm in the department of Rivera in Uruguay are described in a telegram from Montevideo published in the local papers. The message states that at the height of the storm the roof of a rancho collapsed and the inmates, a woman and twelve children, ran, panic-stricken into the fields.

By this time the enormous hailstones were falling and the four younger children were beaten to the ground and their skulls were fractured. Other members of the family were also more or less seriously injured.

Knights Needed Large Horses.
Before the days of tournaments large horses were almost unknown in England. The need of a powerful mount to carry a knight in armor led breeders to develop the type of steed that eventually gave rise to the modern British breeds of draft horses.
