SIDE TALK NO. 40

A BIG JUMP—After taking all things in consideration, I came to the conclusion that it would be too big a jump from the office of City Councilman at Bend to the position of State Legislator at Salem. Nevertheless I thank my friends who urged me to make the race.

Thank you,
C. J. LEVERETT.

"A SPLENDID HAZARD"
an ALLAN DWAN production

As the man who would not be stopped by love, man or devil—Henry B. Walthall creates one of the outstanding characters of the screen in Harold MacGrath's extraordinary story of quixotic bravery, love, buried treasure, ghosts, intrigue and most thrilling adventure. Brilliant production.

RULES GIVEN FOR HAPPY MARRIAGES

CLEVELAND, April 15.—Judge Florence E. Allen, perhaps America's most widely known woman jurist, has four rules for happy marriages. They are:

1. The wife should have a regular allowance. Money matters cause many divorces.
 2. The husband should make a business partner of his wife. She should share his confidence in all matters.
 3. The wife should be sympathetic.
 4. The wife should never nag her husband. She should work with him.
- In the last two terms of court Judge Allen has tried 297 divorce cases, more than have been tried by any other two judges here, in the same period.

Amplifying her four rules, Judge Allen offers some pertinent opinions on the "divorce evil" in America:

"Hasty marriages are the most common cause of divorce. Young people today marry hastily not realizing the personal responsibility. They are ready to quit at the first quarrel.

"I recall one divorce petition where the quarrel was over the naming of a baby. It was their first quarrel, too. I reconciled them.

"Women sometimes make the lives of their husbands miserable by nagging."

Most divorce laws, Judge Allen believes, are not too liberal, but are too liberally administered.

"The longer a case is pending the greater chance there is for a reconciliation," she declared. "Often when a case is called I find that the parties are made up, and don't want separation."

She has reconciled 101 couples, and granted 246 divorces.

"A Ridin' Romeo"

BIG MOMENTS OF TENSENESS AND LAUGHTER

When Jim Brown, lying cosily in bed, pulls levers that start the fire and cook the coffee and feed the horse.

When Highlow, the Indian, brings Jim a letter from Mabel Brentwood, asking him to come to her birthday party, and advising him that her father, who dislikes Jim, will be away.

When Jack Walters, angered at the attention Mabel is paying Jim at the party, steals Jim's gift and puts a dead mouse in its place.

When Mabel opens the package and finds the dead mouse.
