LESSEN DANGER OF LOG FAMINE

Brooks-Scanlon Offers Loan And New Engine Is Ordered.

Belief that the threatened log famine, incident to the timber fire of Tuesday, will be entirely avoided, was expressed this morning by J. P. Hennessy, general manager of the Shevlin-Hixon Company. The Brooks-Scanlon Lumber Co. has offered to supply enough logs for the Shevlin-Hixon mill to prevent a shutdown, but even this may not be necessary.

The first train of logs since the fire came in yesterday, and the company has ordered a new stationary engine from Portland. This is expected to arrive in Bend tomorrow, and will be used in loading logs from the river at Benham Falls.

Down timber suffered from 15 to 25 per cent waste from charring, Hennessy said. Insurance adjusters reached Bend today to check over the losses in equipment.

Plant Here Largest In Oregon—Built In Three Weeks At Cost of $49,250—Local Men To Be Employed

To take charge of the Union Oil Co. tankage and warehouse plant here, just completed at a cost of $49,250, C. Hall arrived in Bend this morning from McMinnville, where he has been manager of a similar plant for the same firm. The plant here is complete except for painting the tanks, which will be done in white enamel. This is the largest plant the Union Oil Co. has in Oregon. It is the only plant in Central Oregon, the nearest being at The Dalles.

Three trucks for use in distribution of oils will arrive here early in the week, and about the same time will arrive the last of the initial supply of oils and gasoline, comprising four carloads. The opening date will be Monday or Tuesday of next week, Hall stated today.

Employ Local Men

W. E. Searey of Bend has been employed as a truck driver; and all of the employees, five or six in number, will be local men, Hall announced.

Three of the big tanks, each holding 19,780 gallons, will be used for storing gasoline; one for kerosene and one for distillate. The oils, 100,000 gallons of which are on their way here, will be stored in the warehouse.

Inspection of the plant is invited, Hall announced today, and employees will be glad to show visitors about and explain the features of the plant. It was built in three weeks, which constitutes a record for construction of so large a plant.

FIRE DANGER IS LESSENER

Winds May Renew Conflagrations, However—Smoke Clouds Thin.

(By United Press to The Bend Bulletin.) PORTLAND, June 2.—Although thousands of acres of timberland are still burning in British Columbia, Washington and Oregon today, the forest fire situation is much improved, according to reports from many districts. Unless exceptionally high winds, such as blew on Tuesday and Wednesday, should spring up, no further immediate danger is anticipated.

The dense clouds of smoke which have hung over Portland, Tacoma and Seattle for the past three days are somewhat dissipated today. The fire losses, it is now estimated, will exceed five million dollars.

EXTEND ROUTE INTO ALFALFA

Farmers Now Get Daily Service Instead of 3 Times a Week.

Nearly 100 Deschutes county farmers were added to those who already receive daily mail service yesterday when delivery started on the extension of R. F. D. route No. 1. The new territory served is largely in the Alfalfa section east of Bend. Jay B. Noble, carrier, makes the entire route in six hours, and probably has the shortest noon intermission of any man in Bend. Just 10 minutes, devoted to the eating of a sandwich and the cooling of his engine, and then delivery was resumed.

Ranchers in the Alfalfa district formerly could receive and send mail but three times a week. Service was through the Alfalfa postoffice, Bend mail going out on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, and Alfalfa mail leaving the local office on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday.

FOSS EXPLAINS HIS WITHDRAWAL

No Desire To Serve If People Are Not In Accord, He Says.

That he has no desire to remain a member of the Bend school board when his services are no longer wanted, as he considers is indicated in the recall petition circulated against him, was the statement this morning of L. M. Foss, chairman of the board. Foss returned this morning after several days spent in Portland and Oregon City.

"I had no intention to serve as a member of the board if that was not the desire of the people," Foss explained. "My only thought in being a director was in the possibility of being of service to the community, just as I endeavor to be of service to the institution with which I am connected. When such service is no longer satisfactory, or fails to coincide with the ideas of any considerable number of the people, I have no wish to continue."

Noise Heard In Building Where Fire Started

TRAGEDY PREVENTED

Firemen Compelled To Use Force In Causing Father And Daughter To Leave Residence In Flames' Path.

(Special to The Bulletin.) PRINEVILLE, June 2.—The slamming of a door in a supposedly unoccupied building, the structure in which started the fire which destroyed the greater part of the Prineville business section, is the first definite clue which Prineville authorities have been able to secure in fixing the responsibility for the conflagration. Tom Turner, colored bootblack, living just across the street from the building, was awakened by the first fire alarm Wednesday night, jumped from his bed and rushed to the front of the house. As he did so, he heard a door slam across the way. None of the fire department could have reached the building at the time, and he is positive that the doors of the old school house were always kept locked, eliminating the possibility of the door having been suddenly shut by the wind.

Prineville residents are firm in the belief that the fire was set, and a $1200 reward has been offered for information leading to the arrest of the incendiary.

New Fire Starts

Another fire of mysterious origin started in the Mutual Creamery building this morning a block beyond the fire zone. The theory has been advanced that it might have been the result of a defective flue, but nothing definite leads to this conclusion, and general belief is that it is another of the series of mysterious fires of which yesterday morning's destructive blaze was the chief. The loss was about $1000.

Little chance exists of any immediate rebuilding, it was ascertained today. The small amount of insurance carried, $80,000, as compared to the $350,000 gross loss, sets up a difficult obstacle, many owners are financially unable to rebuild, and those who are able to do so have little inclination at present. New capital and new people it is considered, will offer the chief hope of Prineville's salvation.

Forced From Doomed House

How a triple tragedy was narrowly averted when the fire had swept over more than half its course, was related today by fire fighters, who were compelled to use force in making B. F. Holloway and his two daughters leave their residence, adjoining a building which was about to be dynamited. Holloway was called from the house in which his daughters were sleeping, and was told of the danger, but insisted on remaining, it was stated. One of the fire fighters, realizing the futility of argument, knocked Holloway unconscious with a blow on the jaw, and the daughters and their father were taken out of harm's way. The house was included in the list of properties destroyed.

FIRE STOPPED AT FOREST BOUNDARY

Vote To End Lockout—Contest Over Wages And Employment Decided

The dispute was over wages and the employment of unskilled men at skilled labor wages.

The settlement does not include members of the amalgamated engineering unions, who are still fighting the lockout.
