TO OUR HEROES

STRONG is the nation that pauses in its material tasks to turn its thoughts to the lofty and the spiritual.

Our heroes of the Civil war, the Spanish-American and the World war, died for an ideal; and that ideal must burn in all our minds, find entrance to all our hearts.

Our tribute of recollection will spread tomorrow across the seas. On the fields of France garlands are strewn upon the graves of our heroic dead.

In our own land, on tombs sacred to the names of Liberty and Union, the blossoms of a grateful people are spread in proof that we remember.

It is for us to hold true—particularly so in these times—to the same spirit which animated the boys of 1861, of 1898 and of 1917.
