

EVOLUTION LAW CASE OUTLINED

Defense Counsel Gathers In Tennessee

Attorneys, Usually High Priced, Refuse to Take Money for Services

By John Houtoux
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
DAYTON, Tenn., June 23.—The strategy of the defense in the test case against Tennessee's famous anti-evolution law was mapped out today by attorneys representing John T. Scopes, the defendant.

Clarence Darrow and Bainbridge Colby, high priced lawyers who will serve without pay, conferred with John R. Neal and John Godsey in the latter's law offices. They will be joined later by Dudley Field Malone, who is en route from New York.

The problems of funds and witnesses disposed of at two conferences yesterday, today's session involved the question as to whether the defense will put scientists, clergymen and educators on the witness stand.

An advantage is seen in the witness method, since otherwise the attorneys would have to limit themselves to arguing about the constitutionality of the law in seeking to quash the indictment. This would be a deadly dull procedure for the thousands expected to attend the trial.

The attorneys will motor to Knoxville this afternoon to attend commencement exercises at Neal's Law college, where all the defense lawyers will get honorary degrees.

Darrow Speaker
Darrow addressed 75 of the town's business men on "Eternity and Toleration," last night.

"People want to know," he said, "whether I believe in eternity. I answered that I am 65 years old. Life insurance statistics which I have looked up tell me that if I live the life of an average man I haven't much longer to live. 'Square ahead of me lies the end. No one realizes this more than I. I don't think there is anything living that doesn't want to keep on living, whether it be man, tree or a political party."

"About these questions of life and death I have tried to find out but thus far have learned little. I have been antagonistic to all creeds that have come before me and a mstill seeking with an open mind and I hope I may still find an answer."
Darrow was introduced by Ben McKenzie, a prosecution attorney in the Scopes case. McKenzie assured Darrow that "in spite of press reports you are as safe in Tennessee as a babe in a mother's arms."

Will McCormack Claims Bend Teacher As Bride

Coming here last night from Portland where they were married Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. William McCormack were visitors in Bend today. Mrs. McCormack previous to her marriage was Miss Ellen Dahl, domestic science teacher in the Bend high school last year. Both Mr. and Mrs. McCormack are O. A. C. graduates. Mrs. McCormack is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Dahl of Portland and McCormack is the son of W. K. McCormack, Deschutes county stockman. They were married in the Norwegian Lutheran church in Portland, with Miss Hazel Calbreath, also a Bend teacher, as the maid of honor and Frank Roehr of Portland as best man.

Mrs. McCormack is a member of the Delta Delta Delta sorority and her husband is a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

Some of the nicknames still borne by prominent baseball clubs have descended from the earliest days of the game.

WOMEN CLAIM SELF DEFENSE

Two Held for Death of Customs Guard

Victim Struck Over Head, Then Stabbed—Man In Party Found by Police

(U. P. Leased Wire to The Bend Bulletin)
SAN FRANCISCO, June 23.—Leo Grigsby, wanted in connection with the killing here Sunday night of Albert Anderson, customs officer, was taken from an auto stage at Santa Barbara this afternoon, local officers were informed. He will be returned here for questioning.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 23.—Claiming self defense, Mrs. Frank Howard and Mrs. Elsie Lotte were held by police today in connection with the slaying of Albert Anderson, United States custom guard.

Through their attorney, the women announced they would admit the crime, but claim they battled with Anderson only when it became necessary to protect themselves.

Anderson, mortally wounded, was found in the elevator of a fashionable apartment house Sunday night. He had been struck on the head with a blunt instrument and then stabbed in the chest. He died en route to the hospital without regaining consciousness.

Both Mrs. Howard and Mrs. Lotte are pretty, young matrons, living together at the Cliff apartments, where the slaying occurred.

Mrs. Howard, according to the defense attorney, William J. Gloria, will admit that she struck Anderson over the head with a bottle, then stabbed him with a pen knife when he grew hostile and she feared he would kill her.

Mrs. Lotte announced she would "stand by my pal to the end."

Leo Grigsby, claimed by the women to have been the fourth member of the "party" in their apartment, is being hunted.

Mrs. Howard, according to her attorney, will admit that she flirted with Anderson on the streets Sunday evening and permitted him to follow her to the apartment where Mrs. Lotte and Grigsby were.

Shortly afterward, Mrs. Howard claimed, "Anderson became abusive. He cursed me and said he had been having trouble with his wife and intended ruling women from now on."

"I rushed from the room and he followed, striking me. Grigsby came to my assistance and the two men wrestled. I was afraid Anderson would use the revolver I saw him carrying so I struck him with a bottle.

"He reeled but continued fighting with Grigsby, and then I struck him with a pen knife. He collapsed."

Their only thought was to get Anderson out of the apartment, the women said, so they, with Grigsby's aid, carried him into the elevator. Grigsby took his revolver and black jack.

William J. Gloria, attorney for Mrs. Howard, declared she had a "perfect case of self defense." Gloria is seeking Grigsby to substantiate the women's recital of the crime.

Anderson was divorced by his wife last week on grounds of intoxication.

Scientists Emphasize Forest Conservation

Meat Packers Show Way, Is Declared At Convention

Hogged Fuel Efficiently Used, But Transportation Cost Chief Problem Seen

(U. P. Leased Wire to The Bend Bulletin)
PORTLAND, June 23.—Necessity of conserving the forest supply of the Pacific northwest was stressed before the American Society of Mechanical Engineers meeting here in a regional convention.

Delegates were in Portland today from Washington, Oregon, Idaho and British Columbia.

"Lumbermen must take their lessons from the meat packers," A. N. Walstad of Tacoma, declared. "Packers utilize all the by-products of the meat industry except the pig's squeal. Lumbermen should follow that old packers' slogan, and utilize the waste in lumbering."

Dr. O. F. Stafford, head of the chemistry department of the University of Oregon, who has devised a means of distilling wood alcohol from lumber byproducts, declared that such a scheme is commercially practical in hard wood districts only.

Furthermore, he said, a new European discovery of making wood alcohol from water gas of coke and steam at a very low cost threatened entirely to eliminate wood alcohol as a profitable by product of American forests.

Advancement in the efficient use of wood waste in "hogged fuel" was described by several engineers, but it was pointed out that because of transportation costs, hogged fuel could not be expected to compete with other fuel except under special circumstances.

HOLD BEND DRIVER IN PRINEVILLE JAIL

Intoxication Charge—Girls and Bottle Also in Car

(Special to The Bend Bulletin)
PRINEVILLE, June 23.—Driving an automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor cost John Wornstaff of Bend $100, 60 days in jail and the forfeiture of his driver's license for one year. Wornstaff was arrested on Third street Sunday night by Ralph Jordan, deputy sheriff, and arraigned in Justice E. O. Hyde's court Monday morning, when he pleaded guilty to the charges. The car is the property of Frank Reed of Bend.

The sentence received by Wornstaff is the minimum sentence that can be imposed on anyone under the same charges of arrest, according to the new law passed at the last legislature, which went into effect May 28 of this year. The new law increases the penalty.

Besides the driver, two girls with a bottle partly filled with liquor in their possession, and Earl Smith, also of Bend, were the occupants of the car. The girls, whose names were not revealed, were not arrested.

Smith, who was driving the same car at Powell Butte, was arrested for crowding A. J. Sanford off the road. Sanford followed them to town and reported them to Sheriff S. W. Yancey. Deputy Jordan made the arrest. Smith was brought before Justice Hyde Monday morning, who imposed on him a fine of $100 and forfeited his driver's license for one year, for reckless driving.

Elks Show Is Opening With Excellent Cast

The musical mystery show which the Elks are staging at the capital theater, the curtain of which goes up at 8 o'clock tonight, had its dress rehearsal at the Elks' club last evening.

The choruses, specialty artists, models and kiddies were all full of pep and going strong. The costuming is all colorful and beautiful, and the girls proved themselves quick change artists last night as they appeared and reappeared in rapid succession during the running of the musical prologue, and each time in completely different outfits of costuming. The fashion models were beautiful in evening gowns, and the little tots were wonderful in their impersonations of famous movie stars. Can you imagine a tiny two year old "Mack Sennett Bathing Beauty"? Well, the Elks' show has one. And that isn't all. There are five more tiny impersonators, each one clever in her particular role.

Those who remained after the close of the musical prologue rehearsal to watch the principal cast rehearse, were an enthusiastic crowd.

The seat sale is open at Magill & Erskine's drug store, with plenty of good reservations left for tonight.

Taking the world over, more people play billiards than any other game.
