

INSTITUTE PLAN NOW COMPLETE

Discussions to Cover All Home Making Phases

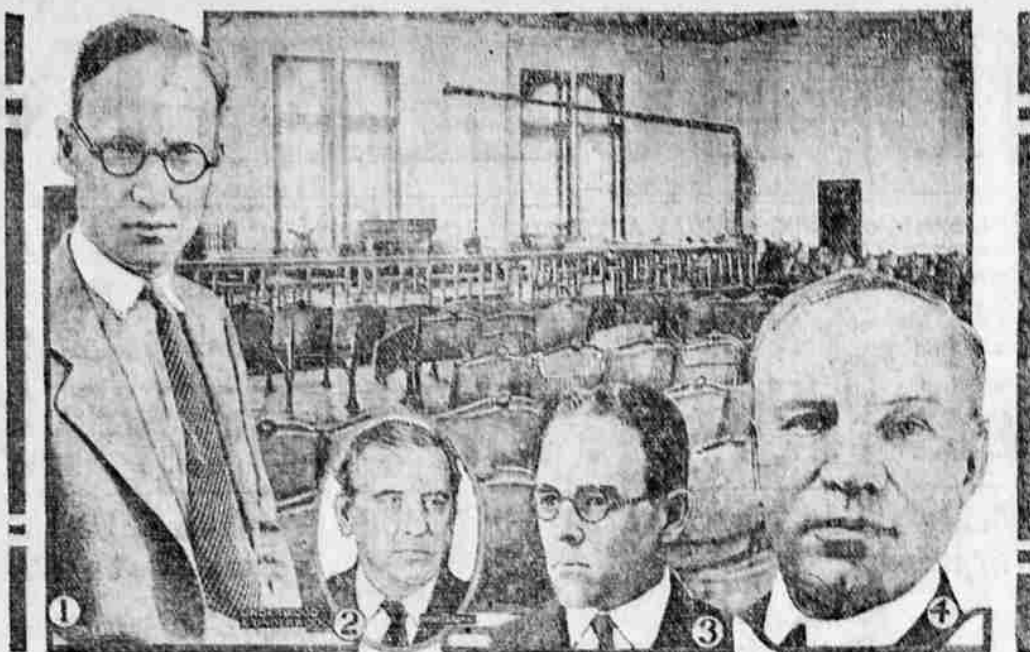

Meetings Set for July 7 to 10 in the Redmond High School Building

Final plans for Central Oregon's first homemakers' institute, to be held in Redmond from July 7 to 10, have been announced from the office of W. T. McDonald, county agriculturist. The institute will be conducted by the extension service of the Oregon Agricultural college. The institute plans have been worked out by women in the three mid state counties, Jefferson, Deschutes and Crook, cooperating with McDonald and Mrs. Jessie D. McComb, state leader of home economics extension work of O. A. C., who will preside at the institute sessions. The first session of the institute will be held on the afternoon of July 7 in the Redmond high school.

"Housekeeping or Homemaking?" will be the subject discussed at the opening session of the institute, which will start at 2:15 on the afternoon of July 7. The discussion will be led by Mrs. Kate W. Jameson, dean of women at O. A. C. Preceding the address of Dean Jameson, an address of welcome will be made by Agriculturist McDonald. Responses will be made by Mrs. J. F. Arnold of Bend, representing Bend women's clubs; Mrs. M. W. Knickerbocker of Sisters, representing grange women of the county; Mrs. C. H. Irvin of Redmond, representing women's clubs of that town, and by W. B. Tucker, Crook county agriculturist.

On the second day of the conference, talks will be made by Miss Esther B. Cooley, O. A. C. clothing specialist, on "You and Your Clothes"; Miss Lucy A. Case, nutrition specialist, on "Foods for

Scopes Case Trial Room and Chief Figures

Next month attention will be centered on the little town of Dayton, Tenn., where John T. Scopes will be tried for violating the state law against the teaching of the theory of evolution. Above is the Rhea county courtroom where the trial will be held, and 1, John T. Scopes; 2, John K. Goudsey, attorney for the defense; 3, S. K. Hicks, senior prosecuting attorney; 4, Judge J. T. Raulston, who will preside over the trial.

Health", and Miss Lois Feudall of Newberg, whose subject will be "Recreation." On July 7, the program will consist of an address on "Health Crops and Their Harvest," by Dr. William Levin, director of laboratory, state board of health, and a talk by Dr. M. Ellwood Smith, dean of the school of basic arts and sciences, O. A. C., on "When You Read a Poem."

Speakers Are Noted

The final two days of the conference will be given over to addresses by noted lecturers—including Miss Martha Whealdon, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in Bombay, India—music, group singing and conferences. Except for the opening day, the conferences will start at 9 o'clock in the morning. Among the out of state speakers attending the final day of the conference, on July 10, will be Dr. Caroline O. Hedger, medical director of the McCormick Memorial Institute, Chicago.

Institutes similar to the one which will be held in Central Oregon next week have been held in other parts of the state with marked success.

Programs for the institute are being distributed in all parts of Central Oregon by McDonald. It is emphasized by McDonald that the institute is for all three counties—not for Deschutes county alone, or for Redmond.

"The Santa Barbara disaster will neither diminish nor increase the number of quakes," Buwalda told the United Press.

"Earthquakes seldom have any connection. They are merely the result of pressure in the earth. A fissure gives way and a quake follows."

Miss Leora Connarn Weds James H. McNeely Sunday

Miss Leora Connarn, daughter of Mrs. J. H. Connarn, and James H. McNeely, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. McNeely, were married Sunday morning at 9 o'clock at the Methodist Episcopal parsonage by Rev. Frank James, pastor. The bride's mother, the groom's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. McNeely, and Miss Emogene Richards were present.

The newly married couple are both graduates of the Bend high school. McNeely has been a student at O. A. C. during the past year, and plans to continue his course there this fall. His bride will continue in her duties at the J. C. Penney Co. store. She attended the University of Oregon one year. The groom was a prominent athlete while in the high school here.

NEW YORK, June 29.—Friends of Paul Berlenbach, the new world's light heavyweight champion, tell of an odd twist of fate that turned him from a wrestler to a boxing title holder.

Berlenbach started in athletics as a ball player, but he was too big and too awkward for even a fair semi pro team and he turned to wrestling, a game in which his size and great strength of arms and shoulders gave him a great advantage over the lighter and weaker opponents of his class. He won the American amateur championship and went to the Antwerp Olympic games in 1920 with the American team.

When he returned he decided to turn professional and he went out looking for matches. The first thing he ran into was a proposition. He could get $100 if he would take a flop in his first bout. He didn't want to take a dive, so he turned it down.

"This wrestling is no business," he told friends. "They don't pay enough and you can't work often enough to make any dough." He had almost given up the idea of an athletic career and was about ready to go to work as a chauffeur. "Why don't you try fighting?" his friend Hughie McQuillan, pitcher for the New York Giants, asked him one day. "They're having a stunt on at the K. of C.'s tonight. Come over and put on the gloves."

Berlenbach thought there wouldn't be anything wrong and he went over and offered himself to Johnny Murray, who was in charge of the K. of C. community center in Astoria. Murray looked him over and thought he would be a good opponent for Frank Krebs, New Jersey amateur champion, on account of his size. Berlenbach didn't know a thing about boxing and Krebs knocked him out. The failure of his first attempt did not discourage him and he continued in the amateur game.

He had about 20 amateur fights, including a return bout with Krebs in which he defeated him. With three exceptions, he won all of his fights by a knockout in a few rounds and he distinguished himself by knocking out Tom Kirby, the national amateur heavyweight champion, in one round.

Berlenbach then decided to turn professional and he offered himself to old Dan Hickey, the veteran boxing instructor at the New York Athletic club. Hickey, who has been at the ringside at every amateur show for years with his boxers, had seen Berlenbach and had been impressed with him as a prospect. He worked diligently with Berlenbach at the club and started him in the professional game.

A tire made for the West. in the West!

IN A FEW MATTERS we Westerners gladly hand the palm to our Eastern friends. Building subways and skyscrapers—yes! Football—possibly. Climate—improbably. Pleasure auto driving—no!

We drive more months of the year . . . have greater scenic attractions. The "great open spaces" draw us farther from home. We know roads—and autos—and tires!

Which, in a way, accounts for the success of C-T-C tires. They are built in the West to meet Western conditions.

Eastern engineers came West to build them—but they make them for the West as well as in the West!

Today they are ranked as one of the three or four really fine tires in America. They are the largest-selling tires made in a Western-owned factory.

Motorists in the nine western states know what a tire should do. Their purchases show that C-T-C does it!

Come in and let us show you this remarkable tire.

Savant Claims Tremors Entirely Unconnected

BERKELEY, June 29.—Further serious earthquakes in California will not result from the Santa Barbara temblor, University of California geologists declared here today.

"There is no connection whatever between the Montana quake Sunday and the Santa Barbara disturbance," said J. W. Buwalda, professor of geology.

"Sometimes 200 earthquakes are recorded daily on the seismograph. These quakes seldom have any connection."

"Popular talk of 'earthquake weather' is all hokum."
