Finding the Right Way:—Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon Him while He is near; let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon. Isaiah 55:6, 7.

REGULATE PARKING

It is high time that steps were taken to regulate automobile parking on the business streets of Bend. The congestion of automobiles on Wall street was so great a year ago that it was often a difficult thing to get in to the curb to place purchases in a car. This summer the condition has become so much worse that it is frequently dangerous even to drive on the street.

The reason for this condition is found in the fact that shoppers and cars making deliveries along the street, finding themselves unable to get to the curb, are now stopping in the street back of the parked cars and leaving only a narrow lane for the passage of traffic. This double parking doubles the dangers of the street and should be put an end to. Pedestrians are continually stepping out from the vicinity of double parked cars, delivery men walk out with armful of packages and there are a score of accidents barely avoided daily. Some day the accident will occur. The fire truck, for example, may swing the corner of Minnesota confident of a clear course and run into...

Aside from the question of the dangers in the present condition there are to be considered the interests of the merchants along the street, and the convenience of tourists and other shoppers. Perhaps are merchants are not interested and in that case no one need do any worrying for them but there should be a general community interest on behalf of the tourist and the business of making it easy for him to shop. The regulation of parking will take a little extra policing. However, it is necessary and should be arranged for.

The California earthquake resulted from a slip along a fault. How many of the difficulties of the individual result from just the same cause.

FORESIGHT I bought ten acres by the slough—the place had little charm—but I believed that it would do for my mock turtle farm. It was a waste of mud and sand, with stunted shrubs and trees, and people couldn't understand why I'd invest in these. I knew it wasn't worth a cent for any purpose sane, but I'm a mad, contrary gent, with fancies in my brain. Then some one found a meerscham mine upon adjoining land, and great promoters formed in line, a checkbook in each hand. They offered me a hundred times what I had lately paid for that array of sands and slimes, trees blasted and decayed. I took their money with the grace which shrouds the princely gent, and, in a safe and rust-proof place it yield's me six per cent. And now I have a wide renown as being ultra-wise; I am the gossip of the town, the sight for all sore eyes. I am the man who saw ahead, who pierced the future's veil, and bought a bog, a place of dread, and turned it into kale. The men who said I was insane when I put down the price have changed their minds and now are fain to ask me for advice. And ever, always, I expect, as through this vale I tread, men's awe and homage I'll collect, as one who looked ahead. I ride in pomp and circumstance, in garments rich and fine, but all my fortune came by chance, through no device of mine. In prudence I'm an also ran, in foresight I'm a gyp, but legends fasten to a man, and never lose their grip.

Colonel Coolidge Is Believed Safe

President and Wife Back At Summer White House for a Rest

(U. P. Leased Wire to The Bend Bulletin) SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 1.—The president and Mrs. Coolidge were back at the summer White House here today, hoping to resume the vacation routine which was interrupted Sunday when they were forced to hurry to Plymouth to the bedside of Colonel Coolidge.

Major J. F. Coupal, the president's personal physician, is still in attendance on the president's father at Plymouth, reporting regularly on his condition to Coolidge here.

The return of Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge to Swampscott yesterday by motor was as filled with amusing incidents as their dash north Sunday was with drama.

The president was held by a woman toll bridge keeper and required to disgorge 15 cents before continuing. He ate a frugal lunch at a country roadside inn. Repeatedly he
