Lawyers Want Case In U. S. Court

Element of Comedy Introduced Into Evolution Issue Deplored

(U. P. Leased Wire to The Bend Bulletin)
CHICAGO, July 3.—Attorneys for John T. Scopes in his trial for alleged violation of the Tennessee anti-evolution law, will file a bill for an injunction which would place the case in a federal court at Nashville or Chattanooga instead of the district court at Dayton, Clarence Darrow, one of Scopes' lawyers, announced here today.

Darrow revealed the drastic change in trial plans in an interview immediately after his arrival here from a conference in New York City with John R. Neal, Dudley Field Malone and Bainbridge Colby.

The attorneys definitely decided to file the petition for the injunction, Darrow declared, and this action probably will be taken next Monday or Tuesday.

"We have two major reasons for this decision," Darrow said. "We want to stop the bally hoo now un-driven on by sensational reports, considers it partly as a melodrama, partly as light comedy.

"By changing the trial to federal jurisdiction, all this would be changed.

"There would be no witnesses, no vast crowds. Attorneys would simply argue the case on its legal merits before a dignified judge.

"The second reason for our decision is the conviction that this case is of such national wide importance that it belongs in a federal court. A decision by a federal court would have far more importance as a national precedent than a decision by a state court. Considering the facts that three states already have anti-evolution laws, the other states are considering passing them, and that anti-scientific measures of similar nature may crop up at any time, the importance of establishing a national precedent can not be exaggerated."

Stole Rooster and Hen Is Complaint of Owners

Claiming that they caught him in the act of stealing a barred rock rooster and a rose comb barred rock hen from their chicken yard, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Ogden signed a complaint of petty larceny against George J. Duffield in Justice E. D. Gilson's court this morning.

Duffield pleaded not guilty when arraigned this morning. His trial was set for this afternoon.

Tieup of Winter Supply of Fuel Hinted

Union Heads Interpret Employers' Acts As Blow to Organization

(U. P. Leased Wire to The Bend Bulletin)
WASHINGTON, July 3.—Threat of a general strike of the nation's half million coal miners which would completely tie up next winter's fuel supply, has aroused government observers here who are watching with anxiety a situation daily growing in gravity.

An issue has been drawn between operators and miners which is threatening the life of the union organization and both sides are prepared to fight it out.

For weeks the trouble has been brewing quietly. It had its origin in North West Virginia coal fields, where the union has virtually been driven out of the state, as revealed by the United Press in a recent series of articles describing conditions there. Production of union coal reports only about 10 per cent of the total production of the region, where five years ago the fields were nearly 90 per cent unionized.

Numerous operators, contending that they could not mine coal on a $7.25 union scale, have closed their pits, to reopen them a few weeks later on a non-union wage scale between $4 and $5. Since that time other operators in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky and some other coal producing states have taken similar action, according to word received here. Union leaders see in this general movement a concerted effort to kill the United Mine Workers' organization through the country.

Chief weapon the union holds is a general strike of both anthracite and bituminous fields and the warning that it might be used was given this week by President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers in addressing the tri-district anthracite convention at Scranton, Pa.

his character, the president said: "I think we may regard George Washington as the first lay citizen of the world of all time. He was one in whom the elements were so evenly blended, so accurately proportioned that his character has well denied analysis. Others have created wider commotion and deeper impression in the hour of their eminence. But we shall hardly find one who in his own day achieved so much as Washington and left his work so firmly established that posterity, generation after generation, can only increase its tributes to his ability, his wisdom, his patriotism, and his rounded perfection in the character of a Christian citizen."

News Of The Markets

STOCKS STAND SEVERE TESTS

Market Somewhat Lower as Result, However

(Wall Street Journal Financial Review)
NEW YORK, July 3.—Having withstood Monday's earthquake shocks, stocks were given another severe test today in the form of heavy offerings for the account of a stock exchange house with extensive Chicago connections. This firm's failure resulted in forced selling of huge quantities of stock, mostly shares of companies with headquarters in the Windy city, including Stewart Warner, Yellow Cab, Sears-Roebuck, Pullman and Reynolds Springs. In addition, the house was carrying large lines of various other speculative issues whose necessary liquidation created considerable unsettlement in the general market. The manner in which the sell-off was absorbed was a source of great encouragement to constructive investors.

As a matter of fact, the irregularity which characterized the day's trading was not so much greater than might have resulted from pre-holiday profit taking after the recent sweeping gains.

The setback in pivotal stocks was welcomed by some as tending to safeguard the continuance of the main forward movement on the theory that the recent advances may have been too brisk.

The market closed lower. Closing prices included:
