MOUNTAINS

Someone once said that mountains were made to look up at and not down from and to the majority of earth bound humans the words are a guide to conduct.

Next to this class of mountain climbers in chief there are the out-of-doors persons who take their mountains as they do their open roads or their wooded trails.

Hereabouts, and may praise therefor be given, there are mountains that satisfy every need. There are those that have been climbed once only and by a select few.
