

Central Oregon's Biggest Football Year Looms For Fans

SEND TO SEEK OUTSIDE GAMES

Prineville May be Hardest Competition

With the hour fast approaching when the throats of the pigskin shall be heard throughout the land and with the snap of football weather ready in the air, thousands of lovers of the game in Central Oregon are turning their thoughts to their favorite sport and dozens of outcries are marking time for the fall season padded trousers and cleated shoes.

Indications previously noted that this was to be Central Oregon's biggest football year are being confirmed and further signs pointing in the same direction are coming to light as the season approaches.

Those of Central Oregon's high school coaches attended Knute Rockne's summer school course at A. C. and are back on the job with new ideas and enthusiasm—those who will have charge of the squads at Bend, Prineville and Mitchell.

The Wheeler county school, by the way, is expected to have a big squad in year and to make a real show in the Central Oregon conference. Last year Mitchell played only a few games and was not especially formidable, losing to the Light-Madras team.

The Mitchell boys got sufficient taste of the game, however, to start next year with new determination and with 10 or so men springing out, all of them weighing 150 pounds or over, they should prove a factor in the struggle.

Earlier reports were that Madras would not have a team, largely in account of the departure of Coach Massey, who is now located in Bend, but one of the new teachers at Madras this year is a football expert from the University of Washington, and the Jefferson county boys are planning to put up their usual game bid for conference laurels.

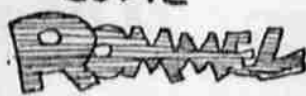

This is the year that Coach Powell of Prineville has been working toward for two seasons, and his team is expected to give Bend high its hardest fight in the conference.

But Bend, while not taking the attitude that it has outgrown the conference, is not depending solely on its neighbors for competition this year. The local high school authorities are already negotiating with The Dalles and Corvallis for games this fall, and letters will probably be sent to other schools in the state for the same purpose.

When Coach James C. Rinney leaves the call for candidates early in September, he will have some big

THE KNUCKLE BALL KING—

A VERY GOOD REASON WHY THE ATHLETICS ARE UP THERE IN FRONT SHOWING THEIR HEELS TO THE REST OF THE BOYS

EDDIE'S KNUCKLE BALL IS ONE OF LIFE'S MYSTERIES TO THE OPPOSITION—

For over 17 years the baseball fans of this country wished that the day would come when old Walter Johnson would step into the box and take his turn as a world series pitcher. Last year the fans had this dream come true and now many of them would like to see another great slabster "do his stuff" in a big series. A chap who, without doubt, is the best to come up since peace was signed, is Mr. Eddie Rommel the star performer of Connie Mack's White Elephants.

Eddie has been a hard worker always giving his very best. Although backed up by a very weak team, Eddie pitched all the harder to win his games. And much like him, particularly in the line, but he will have a squad of 50 or more boys from which to fill them. They had to build an entire new team last year, and he did it without losing a game. His problem this year won't be quite so tough.

The places to be filled are those of Mahoney at center, Harryman and Stadler at guard and Hodson at tackle. Nobody filled the other tackle position regularly, so that the line from tackle to tackle was practically swept away by graduation, and will have to be built over.

Some people think a backfield is about all there is to a football team, but those who really know the game realize that a line is harder to muster than a backfield. They will have two experienced linemen, Genghegan and R. Brink, but that isn't five.

Last year's ends, Pitman and McKay, are scheduled to be back on the job, and several backfield men—Rollins, Loomis, Shull, O'Brien, Marshall and Ballantyne of last year's team and several promising candidates who have either played in previous seasons or are coming up from the second team or the junior high with promising records. There will also be a number of men turning out who have shown ability in other sports but who have not played football here before.

addition to which he is blessed with all the graces necessary to make a real high class pitcher, a cool head, fine baseball intelligence and a remarkable physique.

Eddie was born in Baltimore 25 years ago and started his career in 1918 playing with Baltimore and Newark. In 1919 he went south with the Giants but was never connected with the club. The following season found him with the Athletics where he hung up his hat and is still one of their favorite sons.

Eddie is out to beat his record of 1922 and it looks as though he has a fine chance to torn the trick.

"I've had too much golf for the present," he said.

Joe Taylor Back In Bend, Plans to Return to Ring

After being away from Portland for several months, Joe Taylor, fighter who appeared in several events in Bend in the past year, has returned to Central Oregon from the Willamette valley. Taylor, who is in excellent shape, says he plans to get into the local ring again this fall. He appeared in a benefit fight card in Portland recently. Taylor is at present on his farm near Prineville, but plans to move to Bend soon.

In England large houses are a drug on the market. A mansion which cost $180,000 was recently sold for $10,000.

IMAGINATION? NOT THIS TIME!

Those who do not "believe in Chiropractic," because they know nothing about it, are fond of saying that any results attributed to it are psychological rather than physiological; in other words, that benefits are due solely to the vivid imagination of the patient!

Let any such scoffers try this on THEIR imagination—

Mr. Joseph Stein, being sworn, states:

"For many years I suffered with stomach trouble, and though I consulted ten different medical doctors and was under constant treatment the trouble continued and I gradually lost weight until I was down to seventy-four pounds.

"At that time the physician in attendance found that the trouble was a prolapsed stomach; that an operation would be required to restore it to natural position, but that I was too weak to stand the operation. I then called a chiropractor.

"He found that a motor nerve to the stomach was suffering from spinal interference and started adjusting me on March 23, 1923. I had four adjustments at my home, after which I was able to go to his office. I felt better after twenty adjustments, and after the second month started to take on weight at an average of four pounds a week.

"I have had no adjustments since April, 1924. I am fully restored in health, feeling fine, weigh 109 pounds, and am holding down a man's job."

Did Mr. Stein imagine that he had become a living skeleton, that ten doctors had failed to relieve him of a trouble which was sapping his very life? Or does he imagine now that he has gained eighty-five pounds after taking adjustments?

Attributing such a case to imagination is an insult to the intelligence! Cases like this prove beyond dispute that Chiropractic gets results that no other method can get!
