

HISTORIC FORT TO BE MARKED

Prineville Legion Undertakes Task

Camp Watson Once Most Important Post In Central Oregon Country

Camp Watson, historic fort of early day Central Oregon and the burial place of a group of soldiers who were killed by the mongrel Indian chief Paulina, is to emerge from its covering of weeds and brush and assume, as near as possible, the appearance of the militia camp ground of 60 years ago.

This is the information obtained in Bend today from Charles Woodruff, commander of the Crook county post of the American Legion, who announces that clearing of the old camp ground and the erection of a log fort, a duplicate of the fort of 1864, will be in the nature of an all Central Oregon event.

The plan to rebuild the old fort and reclaim the graveyard of the Indian fighters was first suggested by Mrs. D. H. Putnam, daughter of Thomas J. Powell, Crook county pioneer. Mrs. Putnam now lives near the opal mines, on the Prineville-Mitchell highway. Mrs. Putnam interested the Oregon Historical society in the plan to obtain suitable markers for the soldiers' graves. These markers, furnished free by the government, are expected daily in Prineville.

Camp Watson, so named after Stephen Watson, second lieutenant, killed by Chief Paulina's warriors on May 17, 1864, was once the most important military camp in Oregon east of the Cascades, in the years when the Indians were making trouble for the settler, the miner, the stockman and the emigrant. It was the chief station on The Dalles-Canyon City road. Camp Watson is located about half way between Mitchell and Antone in Wheeler county.

Lieutenant Watson and two of his soldiers were killed in the spring of 1864 when sent from The Dalles to chastise Chief Paulina and his warriors. This was known as the "Crooked river expedition. On the evening of May 17, 1864, Indian scouts reported to the militia that an Indian encampment had been discovered. That same evening a detachment of soldiers was sent against the Indians.

The small group of soldiers were defeated in the encounter, according to historical records, two soldiers and Lieutenant Watson having been killed. Stockkity, a Deschutes Indian chief, was killed in this same encounter. From the scene of the encounter, the body of Watson and his soldiers were taken to the camp, where they were buried. Commander Woodruff of the Prineville post reports that seven graves have been found. Some are those of civilians.

Chief Paulina's band of Indians were ever a menace to the early day settlers in Central Oregon. Paulina lake and several other locations in the mid state country bear the name of the warrior chief, who was killed below Ashwood near Trout creek by Howard Mangin in 1867.

No time for the rebuilding of the old fort and the placing of the grave markers will be set until the markers are received, it is announced by Woodruff. With a large number of people present from all parts of Central Oregon, it is believed that a log fort can be raised and the grounds of the old military camp cleared in one day.

News of the Markets

STOCK MARKET REMAINS HIGH

Buyers Find Call Money Easy to Get

(Wall Street Journal Financial Review)
NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—No change occurred today in the stock market's general characteristics. Public interest ran high and aggressive bullish demonstrations went ahead in various sections of the list, maintaining the highest intensity in high priced industrial and specialties.

Monday's burst of strength in the railroad group was fairly well sustained with New York Central still in the lead among the standard investment issues and New Haven in the lower priced class.

Call money was plentifully supplied at 4 per cent. In view of the fundamental soundness of the economic situation, groups operating in special stocks found things pretty much to their liking.

The lower crude prices had a depressing effect on the oil shares, but the influence of further price cutting in the automobile field proved offsetting, some stocks of the motor group, notably the Pierce Arrow issues, were among the strongest features of the afternoon dealings.

The market closed higher. Closing prices included:

U. S. Steel 122 1/2, off 1/2; White Motors 104, up 1/2; Fisher Body 87 1/2, up 1/2; Pierce Arrow 36, up 1/2; Mack Truck 238, up 1/2; Sears, Roebuck 200, up 1/2; U. S. AUTO IS STOLEN AND ABANDONED

Tracks of Three Men Found Leading From Car When Officers Investigate

Three men stole the automobile belonging to Ira Craighead, grader for The Shovel-Hixon Company, from the place where he had parked it at the Shevlin-Hixon plant, Monday night about 10 o'clock, and drove so rapidly toward Redmond that they burned out the bearings near Pleasant Ridge and abandoned the car, a Studebaker special, on a side road near that place.

This was the report made today by State Traffic Officer Earl B. Houston this morning after an investigation. The fact that three men stole the car causes the suspicion that they might possibly have been the escaped convicts from the Oregon penitentiary, but Houston and the county officers are not taking the supposition too seriously.

The report that the car was stolen was made to the night police force last night, and stage drivers who operate out of Bend were asked to be on the watch for it.

Charles Brown, who drives a stage between Bend and The Dalles telephoned back from Redmond this morning that he had seen the car near the Pleasant Ridge hall, and Houston went out to investigate.

Trace Is Lost

He found the car a short distance from the highway and tracks of three men leading from it to the nearby farmhouse of J. T. Adams. No one was at home there last night, Adams being in Bend for medical treatment.

The tracks led away from the house again and back to the highway, apparently turning north there before they were lost, obliterated by the heavy traffic.

Investigation of this case was being made by county officers today, both to apprehend the men who stole Craighead's car and damaged it, and on the possibility that they might be the escaped convicts.

Houston stated, however, that one of the tracks was made by shoes only 9 1/2 inches long, so that the wearer might have been a boy rather than a man. One track was 11 inches long and the other 12.

How to Keep Cool

With millions to spend on luxury, the princes of India found no better way to keep the air cool, and to ward off gnats and flies, than the creaking, feeble "punkah" pulled by hand.

You can have a much better breeze for a tiny fraction of the cost. You can get a General Electric fan for a few dollars and you can keep it running all day for 5 cents.

The General Electric Company is working with the electric light and power companies of America to make all our homes, offices and factories, better and more healthful places in which to live.
