Kelly Kidnaps Driver Of Car, Officers Told

he was Kelly, the escaped convict, and talked freely of prison life," Herrall said.

"He said the convicts had never been in the guarded area, and said that they were near Tillamook for a time before coming to Portland."

"He had a bottle of wine, saying that he had been drinking and that Murray and Willos, his two pals, were 'two-thirds stewed.' Throughout our conversation he spoke of Murray as 'Burrhead' and Willos as 'The Kid.'"

When Herrall first came to police with his story they were frankly skeptical, but it was verified by Neil Hopkins, night man at the Folley and Seaton garage.

Still some doubt existed whether the man was really Kelly. Herrall was unable to pick Kelly's picture out from an array of photographs and it was thought possible that another man might be passing himself for the escaped desperado. If such were the case, however, no motive is apparent, police said.

SUNLIGHT OR COD LIVER OIL
When examining children in Oregon, one is strongly impressed with the large proportion who show signs of slight rickets. As many as three-quarters of the children attending clinics often show "bumps" on the head, grooving of the ribs, slight bowlegs and other signs, and give histories of delay in the appearance of the first teeth and in starting to walk. The symptoms are rarely very severe, and are usually found in artificially fed children, though not always.

Rickets is a disease of infants and younger children in which the bones do not become hard as quickly as they should. It was formerly thought to depend on the amount of lime in the food. While this may sometimes have something to do with the case, we now know that the true cause is a queer mixture of lack of a "vitamine" in the food and insufficient sunshine. When a child gets sufficient sunlight, it rarely develops rickets. On the other hand, the sunlight may be insufficient, and yet the rickets be prevented or cured by giving some fatty food which contains the necessary vitamine. Cod liver oil is one of the best of these foods. Other fats, which do not ordinarily cure rickets, may develop this property when they are exposed to sunlight. Cod liver oil might be termed "bottled sunlight."

In certain sections of this northwest country, what between winter clouds and summer smoke, a baby is hard pressed to get enough sunlight to keep from getting rickets. This is especially true of babies who are born late in summer, and see very little of the sun through the first important growing months. Mothers should see to it that their babies get the advantage of what sunshine there is; preferably under the advice of their physician, so that baby won't be "over-exposed." Sunshine which has passed through glass windows does no good at all, because the results are due to the ultraviolet part of the light, which is filtered out by glass.

The best plan is to give all babies cod liver oil, particularly through the dull months. In moderate doses it can do no harm, as it is not a medicine, but just a special food containing a very necessary element. Young babies don't have a well developed sense of taste, and usually learn to like the oil. The amount of rickets which usually develops in unprotected children here is not severe or especially dangerous, but may leave slight permanent disfigurements, and may perhaps even slightly cripple the child. Therefore—plenty of sunshine, or else cod liver oil!

SHIP DISASTER DEATHS GAINING

Five More Die From Severe Burns

Federal Investigation as to Responsibility May Come to End Tomorrow

(D. F. Leland Wire to The Bend Bulletin)
NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 20.—Death continued throughout the day to take its toll from among the victims injured in the Mackinac ship disaster. Five who were suffering from severe burns died today, bringing the death list to 41.

Twenty additional injured were in a critical condition, while 13 other victims were expected to recover. Thirty-six persons succumbed at Newport naval hospital and four died at the city hospital. One was killed aboard the ship.

While relatives and friends continued to seek word from the injured, a score of homes in Pawtucket and surrounding towns were the scenes of final rites for the dead.

Meanwhile a federal investigation into the cause of the disaster was in full swing at Providence, where Supervising Inspector General George Uhler of the steamboat inspection service, United States department of commerce, expected to issue a statement late Friday.

After the Mackinac's boiler had been inspected by experts, Assistant Attorney General Oscar A. Helzen issued the following statement:

"Our investigation has shown that the boiler was an old one, deteriorated by wear and thinned down in certain places. What occurred at the time of the so-called explosion was a rupture of the plates on the cross drum, extending from the right side of the fire box to the center of the boiler along the longitudinal seam."

"It appeared that from time to time the boiler had been subjected to extensive repairs by the addition of additional stay bolts and patches. These repairs might be evidence that the boiler was in a weakened condition. It has been intimated to the attorney general's department that inspection should have determined the condition of the boiler by the use of hydrostatic or hammer tests."

ROADS WASHED OUT BY BREAK OF CANAL

Repair Crews Will Not Finish For Days

Rushing down from a break in the canal banks near the R. A. Puett ranch, water from the Central Oregon canal has damaged the Central Oregon highway, the Bear Creek road, and both the old and new roads to Alfalfa, rendering them practically impassible, it was reported in Bend today.

The canal has been shut off and repair crews are at work rebuilding the bank where it was washed away, but the road repair will require several days, it was expected.

Travel to the high desert and Burns must go by the way of the old road through the Arnold settlement, turning to the right at the first crossroad beyond Pilot Butte and following the road which is now better known as the one leading to the Arnold ice cave.

A man never realizes his own ignorance so much as when his children start giving him advice.
