"FEASIBILITY"

In a persuasive discussion of the federal reclamation situation in this state the Oregonian last week urged that there was no longer reason for delay in the construction of the Baker, Owyhee and Vale projects.

It is one of the annoying features of Secretary Work's administration of reclamation affairs that he has so far failed to make definite statements concerning his policy with respect to individual projects.

We wonder if the answer to the question is not found in the statement made by Governor Pierce at Tumalo last week when he said in substance that Secretary Work had told him that he felt that the only irrigation project that could succeed these days was one costing not over $65 dollars per acre.

The three Oregon projects mentioned have a cost much in excess of $100 per acre. One, we believe, runs to $160 and one to $170. That is a good deal more than the $65 which Secretary Work sets as a maximum permissible cost.

We have had a good deal to say at one time or another about this business of feasibility. We use it in respect to the Deschutes project. If the Oregonian is really interested in Oregon reclamation we suggest that it join in urging that project as the best available for federal aid.

The Bulletin welcomes to Bend the new owners of the Central Oregon Press. Among them is at least one old friend of ours. We are sure that Bend will like him and it would be a most unusual thing to find anyone who did not like Bend.

We read in a Central Oregon contemporary that the American ambassador to Haiti died of national causes. Quite proper for an envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary, we should say.

THE HEROES

Jimpton's back is always paining, he is always sick and sore, yet he toils without complaining in the Gilt Front hardware store. He is packing anvils daily, he is lifting kegs of nails, and he tries to do it gayly, and in this he seldom fails; and although his labors tire him, still he walks with agile step, for he knows the boss would fire him if he showed a lack of pep.

Warfare Among Chinese Opens On Eastern Coast

Half an hour after a telephone message had reached the lantern-swing section last night that a Hip Sing man should be shot in Boston, Ho Kee, a cook, was shot to death in the basement of a restaurant.

A police cordon has been thrown about the tangled district of Pell and Mott streets and a score of detectives, along with members of the narcotic squad, have been detailed to the troubled area.

The slaying of Ho Kee was a cold blooded affair. He was talking with several fellow employees of a restaurant when two or three Chinese entered the room. One of the intruders walked over to the cook, placed a revolver against his stomach and fired.

If, as is believed, the fatal shooting marks a flare up in the old battle of the Hip Sings and On Leung tong, it will be the first since a truce was declared some time ago after 109 lives had been lost and may become nation wide.

The revival of hostilities is laid to dissatisfaction of a minority over a clause in the treaty which brought the truce. Under the treaty the Hip Sing tong, it is understood, were forbidden to organize in certain cities, and the On Leung tong in other cities. In general, the Hip Sings were given the west and the Leongs the east.

A group of Hip Sings recently disregarded the treaty and organized a tong in Boston. The result of that move was last night's shooting in Boston and the coincident flare here.

SPIRIT VICTIMS AWAY BOSTON, Aug. 25.—Special policemen patrolled the deserted streets and alleys of Boston's Chinatown today in an effort to check the tong war that broke out afresh during the night.

H. Yen Ung and Yee Kin-Yih, shot in a clash between the On Leongs and Hip Sings, were reported in a serious condition at a hospital here.

At least three other Chinese are believed to have been wounded and carried away by friends before the police intervened.

KILL CHICAGO TONGMAN CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—Tong warfare which broke out in several eastern cities overnight, reached Chicago early today.

Shortly before dawn an unidentified Chinese was slain by a bullet from behind. His slayer was quickly captured as police had rushed re-

GIVES FORTUNE TO GOOD WORKS

Victor Lawson's Will Is Made Public

Long Time Employee of Chicago Newspaper Man Receive Bequests

(U. P. Leased Wire to The Bend Bulletin) CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—Three quarters of the earnings of the Chicago Daily News will be devoted to benevolent purposes, Victor F. Lawson, publisher of the newspaper, specified in his will, made public here today.

The will makes specific bequests amounting to $4,775,000, of which more than one-half is for benevolent purposes. The remaining one-quarter of the residuary estate goes to Lawson's brother, Iver N. Lawson, who also receives a specific bequest of $200,000 and the income from a trust fund of $300,000.

Other relatives receive a substantial bequest as do Melville E. Stone, Lawson's former partner in the Daily News, who is given $200,000. Many long time employees of the newspaper receive smaller bequests.

John J. Mitchell, president of the Illinois Merchants' Trust company, asked about his plans for the Daily News, said: "During the many years of his life Mr. Lawson distributed a large share of the profits of his newspaper to good causes. Now in accordance with his custom, the will provides for the distribution of about three-quarters of the fortune including the immense values of his newspaper for carefully selected benevolent purposes."

Prince of Wales Fatigued By Argentine Festivities

(U. P. Leased Wire to The Bend Bulletin) BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 25.—The prince of Wales is showing marked suggestions of fatigue. As a result he failed to participate in a deer drive and other sports arranged for him on a nearby estate, begging to be excused that he might rest.

The party accompanying him respected his wishes to be left alone but did not hide its disappointment at his absence from the broncho busting, steer roping and other exhibitions provided for him.
