The supreme ruler:—Exalt ye the Lord our God, and worship at his footstool; for he is holy. Ps:um 99:5.

WHO'S CRAZY NOW?

Comes now the father of Tom Murray and confides to a Salem reporter that his son, the said Tom Murray, was hit in the head with a rock when a boy, and that unquestionably a mental derangement resulted which is to blame for the younger Murray's career of criminality which reached its climax in the killing of two prison guards and a sensational dash for liberty.

Interesting, if true; also touching. Remarkable, too, in that the elder Murray failed to recall this unfortunate circumstance until after his son was captured and the shadow of the gallows was cast upon him.

At the risk of seeming hard hearted we suggest that the accident to Tom Murray was especially unfortunate in the fact that the blow was not fatal.

It is not strange that a criminal facing death for his misdeeds should cast about in every direction for an excuse to save his life. Neither is it strange that a father would be almost as anxious to prevent the payment which his son owes to society.

But in these excuses there seems a shocking lack of originality. Many years ago Harry K. Thaw used the insanity dodge after killing Stanford White. It worked, and since then it has been used with variations by our best murderers. The head injury causing a brain lesion resulting in chronic criminality came later. One of the most prominent outlaws to invoke this means of escape was Roy Gardner, mail bandit. So far he has failed to make it work.

By a coincidence both Gardner and Tom Murray were captured in Centralia.

Sometimes coincidences come in pairs. Will Murray also fall in shifting the guilt for the murder of the Oregon penitentiary guards to the hand that hurled the rock way back in the days of Murray's childhood?

The city council has ordered the drafting of a new traffic ordinance to care for new needs which have arisen with the congestion due to the tremendous growth of automobile transportation. That's fine. By the way, why not tack an emergency clause on that ordinance?

Two Bound to Grand Jury On Cattle Rustling Charge

(Continued from page 1) Kenneth Thompson, rancher, who said the actions of the two men, coupled with their reputation in the vicinity, had caused him to become suspicious when they passed him with the calf in the trailer, and he had tracked them to the Winfree place and found a cow which had evidently just lost its calf. This cow belonged to Bennett, it was testified.

MANY GIRLS AGREE ON UNIFORM GARB

League Plan Not Compulsory, However, Explained

While a majority of the girls in the Bend high school have agreed to the Girls' league plan to wear a particular type of costume four days each week, the plan is not compulsory, it was explained today by Principal Donald A. Emerson.

Last spring the Girls' league advanced the plan for encouraging simplicity in dress for girls, and a majority of the girls of the high school agreed upon a particular form of dress, to be worn four days out of each week—the middle and skirt.

This is in no way binding upon the girls who did not agree to the plan, Emerson points out. The object of the movement was to make the customary dress for girls in the high school simple and inexpensive rather than uniform.

National Forest Heads Are Visitors In Bend

Two supervisors of national forests in Oregon, Nelson F. McDuff of the Cascade forest and H. L. Plumb of the Deschutes, arrived in Bend this afternoon from Elk lake. Supervisor McDuff came to the Central Oregon country to meet C. J. Buck, assistant district chief with headquarters in Portland.

McDuff was accompanied on his trip to the east side of the Cascades by Smith Taylor, Cascade national forest ranger. Taylor returned to his headquarters at McKenzie Bridge today. McDuff will be in Bend until tomorrow.

Supervisor Plumb reports that rain
