

Idaho Hooplers Trounce Washington Adding to Oregon State Chances

HUSKIES DROP FIFTH CONTEST

Vandals in Lead Early and Hold It

Moscow, Ida., Feb. 21.—(UP)—Idaho's flashy basketball team further strengthened Oregon State's bid for leadership of the northern division of the Pacific coast conference by repulsing Washington, 47-35 here last night.

The defeat was Washington's fifth of the season. Oregon State has lost but four.

It was Idaho's first victory over the Huskies since Rich Fox first headed for the champions six years ago.

The visitors were in the lead for only 30 seconds when Antanich gathered in his only field goal on the opening tipoff. Hurley, playing center, tied the score before many seconds elapsed and from there on Idaho was never in danger. The half ended 21-19 for the Vandals.

The second half Idaho displayed a clockwork offense to widen their margin to a 44 to 28 mark. Galer and Heaman led a belated Husky rally that never had a chance in the last few minutes of play.

Howard Grenier, Idaho's giant center, was unable to play, suffering from blood poisoning in a local hospital.

Ski Stars Will Come To Skyliners Tournament

Two of the leading ski jumpers in the northwest, Nordal Kaldahl of Holyburn, B. C., winner of the Cle Elum jump last Sunday, and Tom Mobraaten of Vancouver, B. C., Pacific northwest class "A" combined jumping-running champion, are among the first to enter the Skyliners tournament, to be held March 5, it was announced today by W. E. Searey, Skyliner president. Entry blanks for Kaldahl and Mobraaten are on file here. This will be the first time that Mobraaten and Kaldahl ever competed in Central Oregon.

Kaldahl is recognized as one of the premier ski jumpers in the United States and has been victorious in practically every tournament held in the northwest this season. Many other northwest jumpers have signified their intentions of competing here on March 5.

In connection with the announcement that both Kaldahl and Mobraaten are to compete in the Skyliners' tournament, Searey made known today that G. A. Gillis has been named general chairman of the tournament committee.

Sport Tabloids

Seattle.—Charles May, former head of the University of Washington faculty athletic committee, and Professor Harry McIntyre, present head, were being considered today for the position of athletic director of the Huskies with full control of finances. The board of control unanimously adopted a measure providing for the position of athletic director last night as a way out of present financial difficulties. Centralized control over finances and budget reductions have been major demands of bankers before they will consider lending $50,000 to the associated students. The amendment was expected to receive favorable action at a special student election Thursday.

Seattle.—Truett Sewell, who won 17 games and lost six last year for Raleigh, is the latest addition to the Seattle pitching staff. President Bill Klepper of the Indians said the six foot right handed hurler comes on option from the Detroit Tigers and is not for sale or trade. He is said to be a fine hitter and a good outfielder.

Klepper also announced the signing of four rookies including outfielders H. S. Nettles of Jacksonville, Fla., and Ernie York, Seattle, Gene Ray, third baseman of Live Oaks, Cal., and Henry Ulrich, pitcher of Seattle.

WRESTLING RESULTS

Out Our Way

SPORT PARADE

By Henry McInnere
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 21.—(UP)—Among the reporters growing gray waiting for Sir Malcolm Campbell to make a run down the beach, is Miss Diana Fishwick of the London News Chronicle, and the present English and French women's golf champion.

Being a special sort of special correspondent, Miss Fishwick does not have to stay on the premises but flits about from Palm Beach to Ormond to St. Augustine, with only occasional sallies into Daytona to inquire as to the condition of the beach, the car and its driver. It was on one of these little raids today that she cornered Sir Malcolm's hotel and plied her with questions concerning golf, a subject about which she is undoubtedly more familiar than auto racing.

Our first question dealt with what American woman golfer she considered the most accomplished.

"That," she replied, "is almost unanswerable. For any one of the first five or six American golfers is fully capable of winning any match on a day she happens to be right. But day in and day out I'd say Virginia Van Wie is your best player. Over in England we consider her your finest stylist, and she's a fighter, too. But Virginia is hardly any better than Miss Hicks, Miss Orcutt or Mrs. Glens Collett Vanz. And Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Cheney are all but unbeatable on days that find their shots dropping."

Did Miss Fishwick think it was a jinx of some sort that prevented an American woman from winning the coveted British open championship?

"Certainly not. It's purely and simply the change in climatic conditions and the difference in American and English courses. Your players can't adapt themselves to our weather and links in a month or so, any more than we can adapt ourselves to your playing conditions with a few rounds of practice. Take my own case, for example. In England one of the most useful shots I have is a nicely placed pitch-and-run. I use it all the time. But over here the stroke is practically useless, for the grass on your courses seems to grab the ball the minute it alights. This condition costs me several strokes every round."

We asked Miss Fishwick why it was that while English women golfers always managed to hold their own with the Americans, the men, pro and amateur, didn't fare so well.

"Because they don't play enough. Over here your professionals move from tournament to tournament, learning as they go. But in England the professionals, who, by the way don't rate nearly so well as professionals over here, spend most of their own time at their club, teaching and teaching. And for the amateurs—well, most of them are dentists who spend the week pulling teeth or clerks of some sort who get in a game only on weekends."

liah open in 1930 at the tender age of 19, is improving all the time, according to her mother.

"Yes," her mother said, "Diana should be a really formidable player in a year or two. Once her iron game was her chief reliance, but now her tee game is coming to the front, and she is hitting them long and straight."

ASK BRITISH COLUMBIA VOTE

Victoria, B. C., Feb. 21.—(UP)—While the United States started determining whether it will maintain prohibition, wet British Columbia faced a possibility of going dry.

The provincial government had before it today a petition by prohibitionists for a plebiscite prohibition election in July.

Liquor is sold by the government under the permit system in British Columbia, and under certain restrictions, beer parlors are allowed to operate.

HOOP TOURNEY TO BEGIN ON FRIDAY

Bend Meets Redmond and Sisters-Prineville

The central Oregon high school basketball tournament will open in Redmond on Friday night of this week with Bend playing Redmond and Sisters meeting Prineville, and on the following night the winners of the two preliminaries will meet on the Bend court to determine the conference championship and the right to take part in the district games in Klamath Falls. The two teams which lose on the Redmond court on Friday night will meet in a consolation game Saturday night, preliminary to the main event.

Madras, which made a fine start in conference play early in the season, was eliminated by Prineville in a post season game last night. The relative standing of Sisters and Redmond, tied for second place, was determined in a drawing. This was necessary since it had been decided that the team finishing the season in first place should meet the third place team and the quintet finishing second should meet the fourth place squad.

Although it appeared for a time that Bend would have little opposition in the tournament, recent games have demonstrated that the Lava Bears may lose the right to represent the northern half of the district against Klamath Falls. Sisters last Friday beat the Lava Bears and in an earlier game Redmond made the Bend team work hard for a victory. However, the Lava Bears won all their conference games and finished their schedule at the top of the league.

Should Bend be able to defeat Redmond in the preliminary game in the Redmond court this Friday, it appears probable that the flashy Sisters team will play Bend for the championship Saturday night.

Jim Browning Bounces Lewis and Takes Title

New York, Feb. 21.—(UP)—Jim Browning, a Missouri farmer who developed legs of steel by gripping wine casks, clamped those legs about Ed "Strangler" Lewis' barrel-like body last night and shook the world's heavyweight wrestling crown off the strangler's head.

Lying on the ring mat in Madison Square garden with Lewis held in a leg scissors, Browning did a quick sideways "turnover" that whirled the champion through the air and thumped his bald head on the floor.

Again the Missouri did his "turnover," and again the bald pate spend $1,800 of taxpayers' money for a lavatory in his office? Einzig took the count of eight.

Woodward came through with a long count, helping Einzig to his feet by asking Holman if he "wasn't mad because Meier's budget was not cut, while his was."

The round ended with Holman battering his foe with charges that many high-salaried state employees were administration pets and were given jobs even when they were not needed.

Salem, Ore., Feb. 21.—(UP)—Following a hearing of charges by State Treasurer Holman and William Einzig, state purchasing agent, the ways and means sub-committee hearing the case decided to ask the secretary of state for a complete list of state employees whose salaries were raised in the last few months to offset expected salary reductions by the legislature.

Wenatchee Uses Scrip

Wenatchee, Wash., Feb. 21.—(UP)—The "apple capital" of the west began using "apple jack" currency today to solve the depression.

Souvenir hunters paid premium prices yesterday when Wenatchee's unique scrip first appeared. The first piece, valued at 25 cents, was bought for $5.

The scrip bears the inscription: "Apple Jack, fluid in the apple capital of the world." Teachers will be paid the scrip instead of salary warrants, which have been discontinued five per cent in recent months.

The scrip is backed by a special fund of $18,000 raised by voluntary subscription. It will be redeemed within a year.

CLACKAMAS GETS LOAN

Washington, Feb. 21.—(UP)—The reconstruction finance corporation today granted emergency relief loans to Kanas, Oregon, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Kansas received $641,868; Oregon $14,000; North Dakota $17,500; and South Dakota, $409,950.

Clackamas county is assigned the Oregon loan for use during February.
