Germany Seeks Slash In Interest On Credits

London, June 12.—(UP)—Germany today opened a campaign for further reductions in the interest rates on her "frozen" short term foreign credits covered by the so-called standard agreement. The credits are outstanding to the amount of about $3,600,000,000.

Pressure was brought at an emergency meeting of the "standstill" committee at Martin bank. The meeting, originally was scheduled for July 7.

Although the "standstill" credits are not included in the moratorium on foreign debt service recently declared by the reich to be effective July 1, it was obvious Germany was using that proclamation as a club over her creditors' heads in demanding further curtailment of interest charges.

Roosevelt Is Silent On War Debt Issue

fore the house of commons this afternoon, will announce that the cabinet has decided upon at least a partial payment of the $79,550,000 war debt annuity due Thursday to the United States, the United Press learned from well-informed British and American sources today.

Whether the payment would represent approximately 10 per cent of the sum due, as an acknowledgment of the debt, or a full payment in silver, was still a closely guarded secret. But contrary to all other reports the United Press was assured the cabinet had decided against default.

This development was made known shortly after the British government dispatched an urgent debt note to Washington with instructions that it be delivered to the state department immediately. The message was believed to contain the British decision on the debt, reached after two special meetings of the cabinet had been held within nine hours.

Note Is Drafted

The second cabinet meeting at 9 a. m. today was called to put finishing touches to the note to the United States, tentatively drafted at a hastily convened meeting at midnight. Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald called the first meeting after receiving a communication, believed to have come from Washington, and between the first and second meetings a second long conversation from Washington was delivered at the foreign office, where copies were immediately dispatched to the homes of cabinet members.

The United States had not indicated whether it would accept or refuse a partial payment.

Both British and American officials told the United Press that the British decision not to default would impart fresh stimulus to the world economic conference.

When the cabinet met at midnight it was still in disagreement as to the salient points of the British note to the United States, but complete accord was reached at the session today.

It was authoritatively stated that Chamberlain, Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, and a group in the cabinet that favored default, would not resign despite the victory of MacDonald, Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council, and other members of the cabinet favoring payment.

May Wait On Congress

Chamberlain was understood to have timed his announcement in parliament on the basis of the government's hope that the American congress would have adjourned before then, averting the emergence of any obstructions from the capitol over the debt issue.

The government remained in continual communication with Lindsay and if congress remains in session, the ambassador may at the last minute advise Chamberlain to postpone his declaration. It was not believed likely he would do so, however.

In case a "token" payment is announced, controversy is expected over whether the move really means default.

The official British view given to the United Press was that only refusal to pay anything would be default, whereas a partial payment coupled with the assurance that Britain immediately would discuss payment of the remainder, would in no way be repudiation.

Influential United States sources, on the other hand, suggested a token payment would violate existing agreements and hence be a complete default in reality. It was officially stated a "token" payment would not affect the Lausanne agreement.

Circus Day Draws Near

Two Circus Beauties

The callopie will sound in Bend June 19 when the Al G. Barnes circus arrives. The echo will bring back memories to some of the older "boys" of the time when he visited his first circus; his waiting in the dim dawn of early morning in the railroad yards as the heavily loaded show trains came to a puffing halt. The kiddies were there in the old days just as they are today, to act as a sort of reception committee, to escort the showmen to the old meadow lot, soon to burst forth into a hustling and bustling city of tents. To lead the frisky Shetland ponies and to water the elephants.

The circus is an American institution. Its coming is hailed with delight and each year thousands of schools are suspended for the day that the students may revel in the delights of circus day. To many, especially business men and captains of industry, the physical side of the circus elicits a great deal of interest. They marvel with the machine-like precision by which the great show is transported from city to city. Here today and tomorrow perhaps 200 miles away in another state. Frequently a large circus goes for several years without missing a single performance. The answer to it all is this: In no other branch of human endeavor is an organization so perfected as with the circus. The manager himself has spent more than a quarter of a century with the "white tops"; he knows how to fill every job with his organization and the chances are his first job was that of a peanut vendor or butcher with the show. Year by year he advanced, higher and higher.

More than 200 performers take part in this season's Al G. Barnes circus. They hail from 18 foreign countries. Almost every nation has contributed its star.

AVOID THE DANGER OF CONSTIPATION

Delicious Cereal Overcomes This Condition Safely and Pleasantly

The first signs of constipation may be headaches, tired feelings, loss of complexion, sleeplessness, loss of appetite. If neglected, constipation may seriously impair health.

Today, you can banish constipation by simply eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also a good source of iron for the blood.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle in action similar to leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, and gently clears out the intestinal wastes.

Two tablespoons daily will overcome most types of common constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

SCHOOL JANITOR SALARIES FIXED

Same Cut as For Teachers Will be Applied

Janitors in the Bend school system were placed on a parity with teachers, as far as salary cuts are concerned, when the school board voted last night to apply the 12½ per cent reduction voted for teachers to the janitors' pay schedule. The advisory budget board had recommended a reduction from $100 per month to $75 for janitors, a 25 per cent cut.

Members of the school board agreed that a 25 per cent cut, on top of the drastic reduction in janitors' pay made a year ago, would be unfair. The vote was unanimous for the 12½ per cent reduction and for re-employment of the present janitors.

Three roofing jobs are on the repair program of the school board for this summer—a complete overhaul on the gymnasium roof and repairs for the Reid school and high school roofs. A. G. Hedstrom, chairman for the building and grounds committee, reported the gymnasium roof past patching. It has been patched for 10 years since it was first decided that a new roof was needed. Superintendent G. A. Ager told the board. When the gymnasium was built, a shortage of money developed about the time the roof was reached, Ager said, with the result that a cheap roof was constructed with the idea of replacing it after a few years. The roof is in very bad condition, Hedstrom and Ager agreed.

The Reid school work will be a case of patching, and on the high school building the chief need is here, Hedstrom said. Further investigation of all three jobs will be made before definite action is taken.

Purchase of an incinerator for burning papers at the high school was approved by the board last night after Hedstrom had reported complaints that papers burned on the high school grounds were scattering embers and ashes over the neighborhood. The recent cleanup and landscaping of the high school grounds made the paper bonfires even more unsightly, Hedstrom reported.

The landscaping work, conservatively valued at $900, cost the school district only $244, Hedstrom reported. Labor costing $340 was furnished by the county relief committee, through Miss Marion Bowen, and only the cost of hauling dirt and rock and employment of some skilled labor was charged to the school district. There were 616½ cubic yards of dirt, 110 cubic yards of rock and two yards of sand used in the project, Hedstrom said. If the work had been contracted in normal times, it would have cost about $1,200, he estimated.

Another project discussed at last night's meeting was installation of larger hoppers in the hog-fuel burners at the Allen school. The present hoppers are so small they must be filled every hour or two in extremely cold weather, Hedstrom reported, and this means extra work for the janitor at night in cold weather. By installing large hoppers, the problem of heating the building in winter will be greatly simplified, Hedstrom said.
