Slayer Goes to Death Exonerating Brother
Walla Walla, Wash., Nov. 21 (AP)—Joseph O'Donnell went to his death on the gallows at Walla Walla prison today with a last-minute statement shielding his convict brother.

Nervously chewing gum but otherwise composed and outwardly calm, O'Donnell said he understood his brother John had written a letter confessing the slaying of two Seattle policemen in 1935.

The doctor said his brother had done "no shooting whatsoever" and that he himself was paying the full penalty for the crime. The brother is serving a sentence of life imprisonment for the participation in the tavern holdup in which the policemen were killed.

Youth Admits Murder Of Yakima Resident

Yakima, Wash., Nov. 21 (AP)—Roy Wright, 19-year-old suspected slayer of John D. Moore, Yakima automobile dealer, confessed the killing to Deputy Sheriff Bert Guns and Detective Floyd Luce, two Yakima officers wired Sheriff Lew Evans.

Wright was en route to Yakima from San Jose, Cal., where he was arrested and waived extradition. When first arrested Wright denied he was the slayer, but the telegram received today said he had signed a confession.

The two officers and their prisoner planned to stop tonight in Medford, Or. Wright was taken into custody in San Jose Saturday on suspicion of car theft. The tell-tale letters, L-O-V-E, on the knuckles of his right hand led officers to question him about the murder of Moore.

While in San Jose, Wright steadfastly asserted his innocence of the Yakima crime, but agreed to go north to Yakima with officers police officers without formal extradition. Details of Wright's confession were not available, except for the succinct telegram received by Yakima officials saying that he had confessed to Guns and Luce en route to Yakima.

Moore's body was found November 9 on the Goldendale highway 25 miles north of Toppenish. He was reported last seen while demonstrating an automobile to a prospective "customer." The automobile had been found earlier, abandoned in Vancouver, Wash.

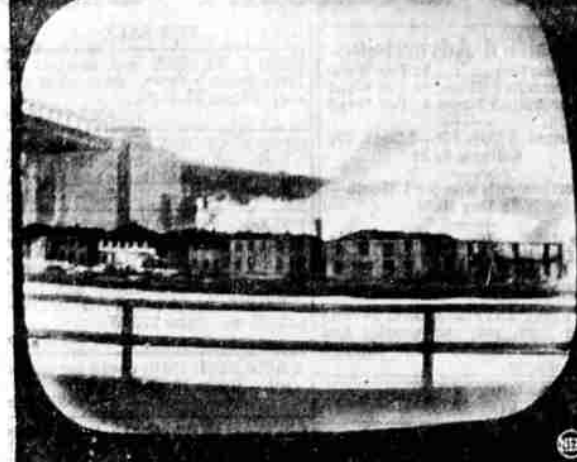

Fellow salesmen at the automobile firm in Yakima where Moore worked gave police the clue about the tattoo marks, which they noticed on the "customer" when he came to the agency.

(Continued from page one) P. E. Ryan, who lives near the city jail, said in his testimony that he was awakened by the commotion in the jail and went to investigate, but did not reach there until the officers had arrived.

about 5 o'clock the morning of June 22. When questioned as to Jubb's appearance then, Meagher said, "I figured he was drunk." Meagher said that he took Jubb out of the Grotto when he went there to investigate a disturbance and found Jubb being held on the floor.

One of the prisoners told Meagher later in the morning when he was called to the jail that Jubb had beaten Lawrence over the head with a block of wood and killed him and then tried to cut another man's throat, Meagher said.

The remainder of Meagher's testimony concerned conditions of the jail.

Bend Minister Speaks at Kiwanis Luncheon

More than ever before America has cause for thanking that America's flag still protects Jew, Catholic and Protestant in their right to worship God as they desire, the Rev. Alfred Danielson, pastor of the Baptist church, declared today as he addressed the Bend Kiwanis club at the weekly noon luncheon meeting of the club at the Pine Tavern.

"I thank God," he emphasized, "that I need not be told what to believe, what to preach and how to worship." He contrasted America's freedom with the conditions prevailing in the totalitarian states of Europe, calling to mind the widespread persecutions in Germany against thousands, "whose only offense is that they are sons of Abi-ham."

"Cherish this freedom," he told his hearers, "and stand firm to defend it, if need be." The program, in charge of H. R. Johnson of the under-privileged child committee, had as its special musical feature violin solos by a high school senior, Kenneth Sawyer, Jr. The violinist's mother played the accompaniment.

Earl Nixon, of the state department of mines, spoke briefly of the survey of Oregon mineral resources in which he is engaged. A complete mineral catalogue for the state will be issued this winter, he said.
