

STOCKS BREAK AGAIN TODAY

Dealings Increase As Prices Slump

Tax Selling Continues To Depress Market As Year End Nears

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Stocks lower.
Bonds lower.
Curb stocks irregularly lower.
Foreign exchange easy.
Cotton steady.
Wheat unchanged to up 1/4, corn off 1/4.
Rubber steady.

New York, Dec. 21 (AP)—The stock market experienced its fifth day of decline in the composite average today. Dealings increased moderately. The market started steady but realizing in aviation shares unsettled the list around noon and prices showed declines ranging to 3 points, a few issues making new lows for the year. Rails held better than other groups but finally turned down. Late in the session the list was steadied. Considerable tax selling came into the market. Traders believed it marked the climax of such realizing and looked for pressure to lift shortly. This year has brought out increased amounts of selling to realize gains or losses for income tax purposes because of a change in the tax law.

Bonds moved down. Grains and cotton were steady. Business news was mostly favorable, including record output of electricity, prediction of better times by Secretary Roper, estimates of a 50 per cent steel rate going into 1939, against 192 per cent a year ago and more favorable reports on progress in the rail equipment field. An adverse factor was a decline in car loadings. However, that was in line with expectations of most traders.

Rail stocks were strong most of the day. Santa Fe touched 37 1/2 up 3/4, dipped to 37 1/2 and then came back to the previous close. New York Central held a small gain. Steel shares were moderately active with prices fractionally lower. Chrysler lost a point and General Motors a fraction. Utilities eased fractionally. Douglas Aircraft touched 76 1/2 off 1/2 and then met support. United Aircraft was off 2 1/2 points at its low Boeing and Sperry lost more than a point. Coppers were down fractionally. Minor losses were noted in automobile equipments, some oils and special issues. New lows for the year were made by American Safety factor, International Silver preferred, and Pacific Tin Universal Lead. Tobacco lost 4 points and General Cable recovered last 2.

BOXED POTATOES SELL AT PREMIUM

Maine Experiments Show Value of Wood Box

Potatoes stored in wooden boxes, as sold in 1937 by the Maine agriculture experiment station, brought an average realization of 25c per barrel higher than bulk stored potatoes, according to a report prepared by Dr. Fred Griffie, director of the Maine agriculture experiment station. The report is published in a special State of Maine edition of the New York "Packer" issued November 20.

Dr. Griffie's experiments in the harvesting and storage of Maine potatoes in wooden boxes represent the most exhaustive test made to date to determine comparative costs and results between bulk and boxed storage. He presents figures showing that over a period of years boxed storage will cost an average of 5c per barrel more than bulk storage as now practiced in the state of Maine. He follows with the statement that "Five cents on $1.50 potatoes is not usually hard to get if the quality of the potato is above average."

Dr. Griffie states that some details with regard to storage house ventilation must be perfected before boxed storage will yield maximum possible results. However, he finds that present boxed methods produce a far higher ratio of fancy grade potatoes than results from bulk storage. The report on this point:

"On the 1932 crop, we obtained a ratio of four fancy to one unclassified with regular bulk storage potatoes and nine fancy to one unclassified on the boxed storage product. On the 1933 crop we still got nine to one in the boxed storage but only 2.5 to 1 for bulk stored. In 1933-34 approximately 80 per cent of the boxed stored potatoes were fancy at grading. The special Maine edition of 'The Packer' carries a display advertisement featuring wooden boxes for picking, storage and shipping, sponsored by NWBA.

CLERK'S JOB IS DECLARED SAFEST

Mining Biggest Risk in Employment Field

London (AP)—The safest of all jobs in that of the storekeeper's assistant and the most dangerous is that of the tin or copper miner who works below ground.

These and many other facts are revealed in an analysis of occupational mortality in England and Wales which has just been issued by the registrar-general.

For mortality in general the best record was given to storekeepers' assistants, agricultural machine workers, wireless operators on shore, makers of non-metallic mineral and quarry products, draftsmen and costing clerks and bank and insurance officials.

The worst rates were shown by underground miners of metals, sandblasters, stevedores, slate miners and quarry workers.

Clergymen were near the top of the list with the best record; judges and lawyers had 83rd place, authors and editors 90th; doctors 123rd; while hotel keepers were very low on the list—130th.

More drug store owners commit suicide than any other class, with judges, lawyers, bookmakers, hairdressers, waiters, dentists, estate agents coming next in that order.

CHURCH COVERS VALUABLE MINE

Ridgeway, Wis. (AP)—"What is it going to be fellows, a church or a lead mine?"

The Rev. E. Tetreau asked the question some 15 years ago of a group of Methodist Episcopal churchmen digging a new church basement.

The question voiced an anxious moment for the minister—for the laborers represented a group breaking away from the parent Methodist church organization.

They had no money to construct a church, and farmers and laborers volunteered time and labor to haul native "blue limestone" from a nearby quarry, and to dig the basement.

They sank their picks in dull-white metal shortly after the basement was started. It was a vein of near-pure lead ore.

The workers, enthusiastic by visions of new riches, all but forgot about the church—they picked and shoveled their way along the vein seeking its extent and direction.

It was then the minister spoke. Standing on the edge of the basement excavation he asked them the question that would decide the fate of the new project.

The workers did not hesitate. They returned to digging the basement. A short time later the limestone blocks were placed and then the church was completed by the volunteer workers.
