FLYING MUCH TOO LOW

An airplane apparently heading for the Cascades dipped low over Bend yesterday morning, so low that had that been its purpose it could have given business streets a first class strafing. America, of course, is not at war, nor was the plane that of an enemy power, so there was no danger of machine gunning.

But there was danger just the same. The plane was altogether too low for comfort. The least error on the part of the pilot, the least hesitation on the part of the mechanism which he controlled, and there would have been a crash disastrous alike to plane, pilot and any persons or property which happened to be in the way.

The law recognizes this danger, prohibits flying of the sort which will incur it and specifically forbids "operation of aircraft over the thickly settled district of any city or town except for the purpose of embarking from or lighting on designated landing places."

Pilots are supposed to know the laws governing flying and to observe them. Failure to do so sometimes results in their ceasing to be pilots.

DEAN MORSE

The stand taken by Dean Wayne L. Morse in resigning from his post as Pacific coast maritime arbitrator when the terms of one of his awards were recently ignored has brought results. Waterfront unionists who failed to abide by his decisions will now respect them, he has been advised by the department of labor.

Because of this, Dean Morse has consented to resume the office from which he had resigned. Thereby labor and industry regain the services of an able, impartial referee. More important than this, however, is the confirmation of the status of arbitrator which had been placed at issue. In recognizing the principles laid down by Dean Morse, labor has taken an important step toward industrial peace and in assuring maintenance of just relations between employer and employe.

Population growth, new buildings, more business ventures, municipal improvements, better constructed and maintained residences prompted a friend to remark the other day that he believed "Bend is growing up." A few nights later some happy couple exchanged marriage vows and presently pandemonium reigned. Tin cans attached to the nuptial auto bumped on the pavement as the newlyweds were followed by a parade of raucously honking cars. The procession wound through the business district, through residence sections, the volume of noise unabated for perhaps half an hour. It was the latter day version of the charivari. The din, we hoped, was in direct proportion to the popularity of the young folks who were being accorded such signal attention.

Demonstrations of the kind do not inevitably follow the marriage ceremony here for, as our friend remarked, "Bend is growing up." But Bend, unquestionably, still has its moments.

Terrebonne

Terrebonne, Oct. 21 (Special)—Mrs. Sara Brown left last Saturday for The Dalles where she will visit her daughters. She has been visiting here with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Brown.

Mrs. J. O. Hansen returned Sunday from a week's visit in Portland. Her daughter, Mrs. Gail Myers and baby, returned with her for a visit.

A newly organized bridge club met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jack Weigand. Members are Mrs. R. W. Brown, Mrs. C. B. Adams, Mrs. Boyd Brown, Mrs. John Warnstaff, Mrs. Harry Windom, Mrs. Roy McAllister, Mrs. Ed Mollman and Mrs. Weigand. High score was won by Mrs. Warnstaff. The next meeting will be Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 25, at the home of Mrs. R. W. Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Taylor, Paul Taylor and daughter, Virginia, from Madras, attended a birthday dinner for Shirley Brown at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Brown, Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. James Reed and Hershel Reed of Culver were callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Ford Sunday afternoon.

J. D. Wimp is recovering from a paralytic stroke suffered at his home here early Tuesday morning. Mrs. Eural Taylor and son, David, have moved to Warm Springs, where Taylor is employed.

The Parent-Teachers association members gave a reception for the teachers at the gymnasium Thursday evening. A welcome was given the teachers by Mrs. Harvey Drew, president of the Parent-Teachers. The program, with Mrs. Herbert Owens in charge, consisted of a song by Bonnie and Virginia Warnstaff, songs accompanied on the guitar by Wilma Carnie and Cecil Jacobs, and guitar numbers by Mary Saxton. Games were played followed by refreshments served by Mrs. W. J. Cyrus who was assisted by several members. The Parent-Teachers business meeting was held Friday afternoon at the gymnasium.

William King was an overnight guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Knorr Friday on his way to California from Idaho. King is Mrs. Knorr's father.

Mrs. Lizzie Rommel left Thursday for Newberg after spending some time here with her son, Herb Rommel, and her sister, Mrs. Margaret Jarrard.

The Pioneer club met Wednesday for an all day meeting with potluck dinner served at noon. The hall was cleaned, the quilt worked on, and

Navy Day Proclaimed

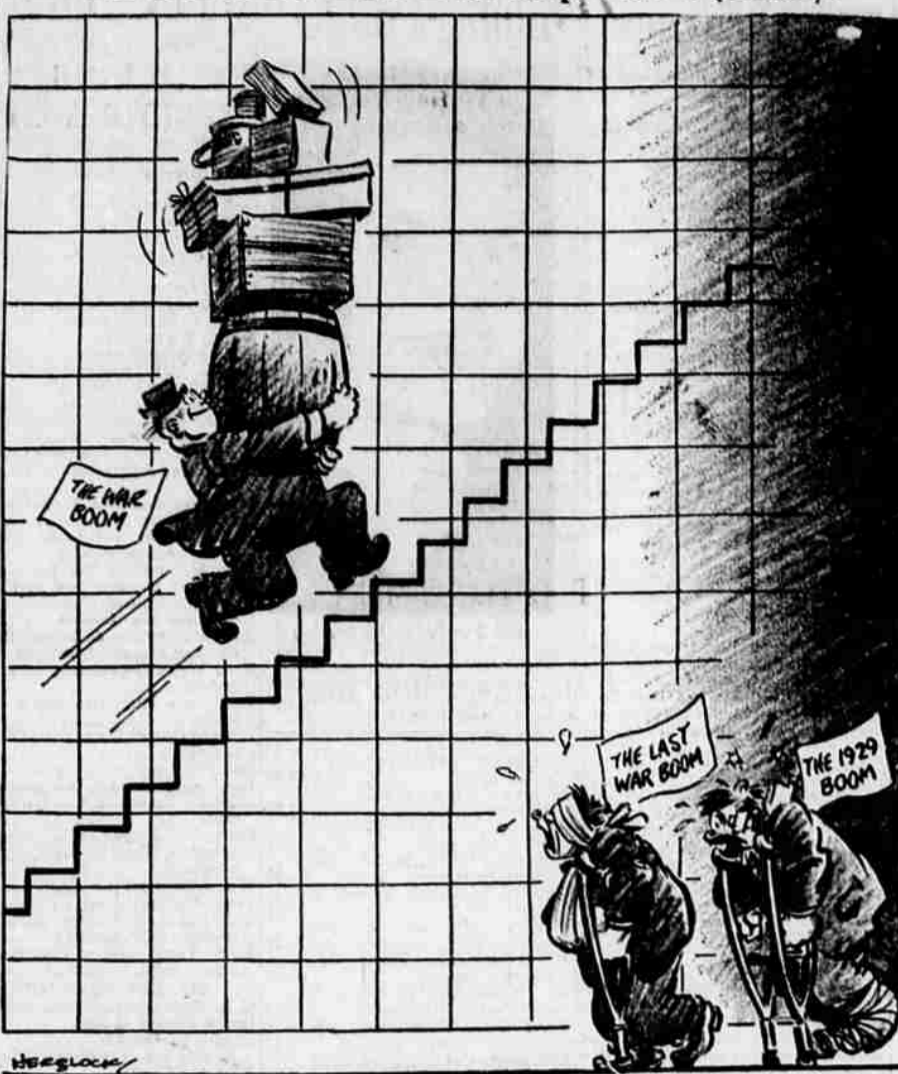

By Mayor Simpson

Mayor Fred S. Simpson has been called on to ask people of Bend to join this year in the observance of navy day, October 27. "October 27 was selected because it is the anniversary of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt, so much of whose life was devoted to establishing a sound naval policy for the United States," Mayor Simpson pointed out.

Naval officials point out that "in addition to paying a deserved tribute to the sea heroes of the nation and recalling the splendid part the navy has played in making and keeping us a nation, the navy day observance has proved a valuable means of fostering a better understanding of the navy and its work."

The cooperation of Mayor Simpson and people of Bend in observing the day was asked by Lieutenant Commander L. B. Stuart, in charge of the navy recruiting station in Portland.

SERIAL STORY JOAN OF ARKANSAS

BY JERRY BRONDFIELD

CAST OF CHARACTERS: Joan Johnson—a mysterious coed, glamor girl of the Tech campus. Keith Rhodes—Tech's star, half-back, headed for all-America honors. Dan Webber—the blocking back who clears Keith's way; a steady, industrious student.

Yesterday: The Alpha Nus meet to nominate a homecoming queen. Kay Granger's name is suggested. Then Joan is put into the race. On two ballots the vote is tied. Joan suddenly starts the group, by saying: "I'd like to withdraw in favor of Kay."

A pin dropping to the floor would have sounded like an avalanche when Joan made her announcement. Marianne opened her mouth, just once, to protest, but Joan silenced her with a motion. "Thanks very much," she began simply. "It would have been nice even to be in the running, but I honestly think Kay deserves the chance before I do."

Joan looked directly at Kay as she spoke. "After all, Kay is a senior and it's something she always wanted. I just wouldn't feel right if I deprived her of that chance. "And with the way politics are run on this campus it doesn't really make much difference who the candidate is if she gets the right support. And Kay will get the right support. "There's another reason, too."

Joan continued, "I think I'd be more valuable in getting support for someone else than I would for myself."

Joan was sprawled on her bed going over some economics notes when Kay entered the room. "Hi," Joan greeted. "Grab yourself a seat."

Kay came over and sat down on the bed. "Thanks a lot," she said. "It did mean a great deal to me, and—well, you surprised a lot of us."

Joan threw back her head and laughed. "Not as much as I surprised myself. But forget it. And count me in any anything there is to be done. Y'know, what I said about supporting you still goes."

Kay cocked her head to one side and smiled. "Say—do you think perhaps some of us have been wrong about you?"

Joan looked down at her notes. "It's barely possible," she replied.

Keith called the next day. Tech had an open date that week and the Gamas were having a hayride Friday night. How did it strike her?

It struck her very much. There wasn't much she hadn't done nor places she hadn't been, but Joan Johnson had never gone on a hayride.

Sisters

Sisters, Oct. 21 (Special)—The Sisters Civic club extended a vote of thanks Tuesday at an afternoon business meeting to the following people for their assistance in making the community float a blue ribbon entry at the Deschutes county fair parade, September 28: C. G. Hitchcock, who donated the truck; Kenneth Lyle, driver; Anthony Roach, C. F. Hammond, and Gene Hiderman who donated pick-ups for carrying trees and greens for decoration; C. N. Sorensen, who had his assistant, Harvey Brandon, help gather the evergreens; members of the Commercial club committee, L. J. Sturza, Mrs. Mable Connelly and C. N. Sorensen, who conferred with the Civic club committee; Mabel Tewart, who did the necessary counter work; H. K. Allen and Henry LaPine, who helped with hammers and nails during the process of decoration; LaMasters for the storage space in his garage for one day and night; Lynch and Roberts of Redmond, who loaned fishermen's jackets and red shirts and hats for the girls, the Misses June Elkin, Naomi Carroll, Georgia Edgington and Martha Wolfe, who rode on the float; Butler's drug store, which loaned the deer for the forest scene, and the club members who helped decorate the truck. Chairman of the Civic club committee chosen to decorate the float was Mrs. C. E. Swanson with Mrs. E. C. Zastera and Mrs. Jesse Scott, assistants. Mr. and Mrs. Dick Smith and family were here from their home in Heppner, Tuesday, visiting friends.

Smith lived here many years ago when his father, Bob Smith, had a general store here in the spot where the Clyde Bush's new store now stands. Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Vermillion of Springfield, and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Morelock, of Eugene were here over the weekend visiting Mr. and Mrs. Louise Davenport, project leaders of the Shevlin-LaPine H.E.W. who go to Bend Saturday to the homemakers training school.

Carey and Cecil Stearns shipped a truck load of cattle to Portland Wednesday. Jimmy Day, Mrs. Harry Day, Ronald Hicks and Mrs. Raymond Morehouse left Friday for their old home in Washington. They will visit relatives and bring back a truck load of apples.

The high school and upper grades went to Bend Friday as guests of the telephone exchange to the open house. About 65 pupils made the trip. Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Conklin went to Bend Wednesday evening to take their small son to the doctor. He has not been well for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Burgess of Shevlin were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Day Sunday afternoon. Miss Mitty G. Vandevort and Mrs. Will T. Cox of California who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Catlow for the past two weeks, plan to move to Bend soon. Miss Vandevort is a sister of Mrs. Catlow and Mrs. Cox is an aunt.

Mr. and Mrs. Carey Stearns and sons returned home from Portland Tuesday evening. They attended the stock show, visited friends and had Jimmy's tonsils removed while here. Mrs. Maud Catlow has been ill for several days. They took her to Bend Wednesday Mrs. Grover Caldwell is substituting for her during her absence. Lora Caldwell is staying in Bend with her aunt.

Blahk Simmers has been ill and out of school for several days. Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Johnson went to Diamond lake last Saturday afternoon and spent Sunday on the lake fishing. They brought home their limit of trout.

three at a time, barged into his room and confronted a surprised Dan Webber. "Take it easy," Dan said. "You came in there like a 63 reverse to the weak side."

"Yeah man, and I've got to get myself a first down," He straddled a chair. "Daniel, my boy, you were one of the less fortunate souls who didn't bother to get a date for the hayride tomorrow night, weren't you?"

"Go 'head, brainstrom, go 'head." "Well, I've got a date for you."

"You mean maybe you have a date for me. Who is it—your dear Cousin Tillie from Pumpkin Hollow?" Keith grinned. "Nope—it's Joan Johnson."

Dan's feet were on his desk. They came down with a crash. "Who?" he howled. "Did I hear correctly?"

"You did," Keith said calmly. "What's more, you're going to do me a very great favor and take her on that hayride."

LaPine

LaPine, Oct. 21 (Special)—Billie Catlow has been in LaPine for several days visiting his mother, Mrs. Maud Catlow. He will leave for the Hutchinson, Kansas, United States forestry office soon. Catlow has been assigned to timber belt work in eastern Kansas. This work, part of the process of decoration; LaMasters for the storage space in his garage for one day and night; Lynch and Roberts of Redmond, who loaned fishermen's jackets and red shirts and hats for the girls, the Misses June Elkin, Naomi Carroll, Georgia Edgington and Martha Wolfe, who rode on the float; Butler's drug store, which loaned the deer for the forest scene, and the club members who helped decorate the truck. Keith on her right was in a semi-dozed, running his pencil through his hair and staring out the window.

She nudged Dan on her left. "Hey, scur-puss—got a date for the hayride?" she whispered. "And if so, how'd you manage it?"

He looked up. "Not yet," he hissed.
