The Big Push-'Em-Up

CABINET APPOINTMENTS

On May 22 an editorial "short" appeared in this column in which we said: To meet the present emergency President Roosevelt is said to have invited the 1936 Republican candidates, Landon and Knox, to enter his cabinet as secretaries of war and the navy, respectively.

For some reason the plan hung fire at the time but yesterday it became a reality with the name of Henry L. Stimson substituted for that of Mr. Landon. Politically this action by the president has interesting implications. It must mean, for one thing, that Mr. Roosevelt does not intend to run for a third term for, as Mr. Landon has pointed out, these two Republicans would hardly ally themselves with an administration seeking to perpetuate itself in power in opposition to a fundamental belief of the party to which they belong.

Considered in connection with the recent appointment of the seven-member defense council the naming of these two sound Republicans is almost amusing. For years President Roosevelt castigated, criticized, condemned business but when the war emergency developed he called in leaders from some of the most important businesses in the country. Now, with the situation becoming more critical as each day passes, he turns to the opposition party for leadership in the army and the navy.

The Stimson appointment is especially fitting. Mr. Stimson has had experience in both the state and the war departments. His ability is great, his record distinguished. Mr. Knox has never had cabinet position but his experience as a newspaper publisher has qualified him for this new service.

Mr. Roosevelt is fortunate in having been able to persuade these men to join his cabinet. The country is fortunate in their willingness to serve.

COMPULSORY TRAINING

This newspaper stands with President Roosevelt in the plan for compulsory, universal government service. The crises of the future that this country faces will demand knowledge, training, discipline, organization, cooperation. The training of our youth that is proposed is essential to meet those crises.

Opponents of the plan will argue that it is undemocratic, that it savors of Hitlerism and means another step toward the loss of our American liberties. Instead of being undemocratic such universal service would be the essence of democracy. All eligibles would be associated in a common cause without regard to background, environment or standing.

With the experience of the selective draft and all the planning that we have been led to believe has been done one might suppose that all that was now necessary would be to turn to drawer A in cabinet one and pull out the plan. Mr. Roosevelt indicates otherwise. So be it. But now the business is started let's get it going. Time is important.

A Bulletin headline the other day spoke of an eight-pound reside as the winner of a fishing contest. Not the winner but the loser, we should say.

Terms, terms, terms. Peace terms. Third terms. We weary of the term.

PITCHER ABSOLVED

New York, June 21 (AP)—President Ford Frick of the National League today absolved pitcher Bob Bowman of the St. Louis Cardinals of intentionally "beating" Joe Medwick, his former teammate now playing with the Brooklyn Dodgers, in a game between those two clubs Tuesday.

Cock-fighting was a popular sport in ancient India, China, and the Near East. In time the Greeks took it up.

SERIAL STORY Ticket to Hollywood

BY W. H. PEARS

Yesterday, after her quarrel with Gusty, Francie assumes a languid air, refuses to eat. Worried, John Weston finally agrees to drive to Hollywood. First night out, Francie is surprised when a roadster drives up. And waving to her is Gusty!

Francie, while they talked, had swept out of the door and was settled in the front seat of the Weston car. She tilted her nose skyward as Gusty approached. "Come on, Sugar, get in a good car. "No, thank you!" "But it's no fun riding alone."
