

ITALIANS CUT FAT RATIONS

Ice Cream and Pastry Sale Banned

Measures Made Necessary By Reality of Facts, Says Gayda

Rome, Feb. 21 (AP)—Italian rations of fats, including oil, butter and pork fats, will be cut in half effective March 1, and after March 1 the sale of ice cream and pastry will be banned entirely, Giuseppe Tassinari, minister of agriculture and food controller, decreed today.

Virginia Gayda, writing in the newspaper Giornale d'Italia, said that "the new ration measures are inspired by the reality of facts."

"Heretofore, on paper, there have been greater amounts of fats which, however, could not be obtained because of the insufficiency of products," Gayda wrote. "The government's policy is sincere and serious and it does not want to promise what it cannot really give."

At present Italians are allowed only 28 ounces of fats—oil, butter and pork fats per person per month. That will give Italians less than 1/4 of a pound of fats per week per person.

Doctor Says Odds Favor Longer Life for Women

Detroit (AP)—Do men live longer than women?

Dr. Arthur B. Elliott, Chicago, says no. Scolding the age old theory about the "survival of the fittest," Dr. Elliott told members of the Michigan State Medical Society at a convention here that women are less emotionally tense than men and, consequently, have a better chance of survival.

"Women live longer and a higher percentage die of causes not connected with their blood pressure," said Dr. Elliott.

Motor Company Adds Unit to Present Plant

Construction by the Central Oregon Motor Co. of an addition to its plant on Bond street was started this week under the supervision of Fred N. Van Matre, local contractor. The 35 by 25 foot addition will be a unit of the present plant, with entrance from the present building, on the south side.

J. L. Van Huffel, manager of the Central Oregon Motor Co., announced that the building will be fireproof throughout. A special ventilation system is to be provided for the new unit. The building will be of brick construction with a cement ceiling.

Entirely new equipment, consisting of the latest in motors, air guns, air pressure regulators and other devices required in the renovation of cars, has been ordered, through Moty & Van Dyke, Van Huffel announced. One of the new devices will be an air pressure regulator and moisture separator.

Van Huffel anticipates that the addition to the Central Oregon Motor Co. will be ready for use in about two weeks or less.

Funeral Is Held for Crook County Pioneer

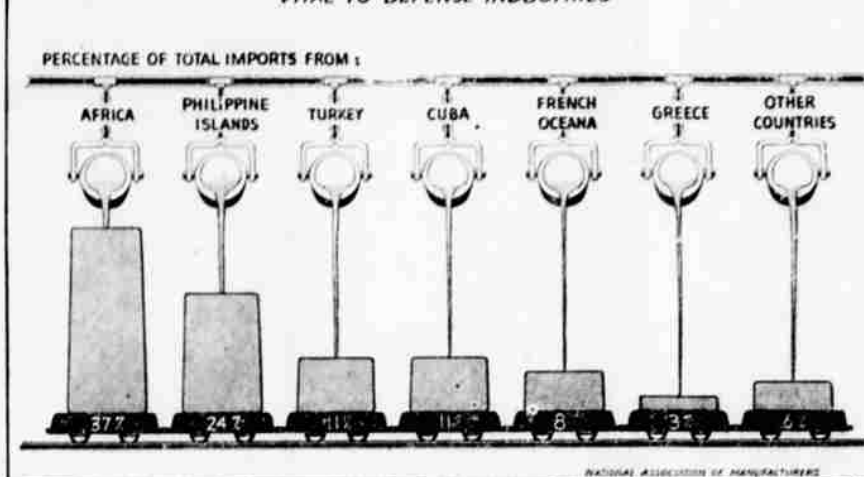

Prineville, Feb. 21 (Special)—Funeral services were to be held today for Richard Mulholland, 76, Crook county pioneer stockman, who died in Redmond Wednesday morning after an illness of several years. Rev. Ted Goodwin will be in charge of services which will be held from the Community church.

Mr. Mulholland was born in Eugene April 20, 1864. He was educated in the Episcopal academy at Cove, Ore. He married Eugenia Millhorn of Prineville in 1902. Mr. Mulholland came to Bear creek 51 years ago and worked as a rider and later as an owner in the cattle business. He is survived by his wife; one brother, Arthur Mulholland, of Portland; and a grand daughter, Miss Virginia Huston of Prineville. His only daughter, Ruth Huston, died six months ago.

Making America Strong

CHROMIUM VITAL TO DEFENSE INDUSTRIES

This is one of a series of informative articles on strategic raw materials in national defense and the progress of American industrial research in developing American sources to displace foreign supplies. The facts presented are from official and other authentic sources.

War ordinarily is an enemy of industrial research and scientific progress, but in the recovery of metals, like chromium, from low grade ores, it is a stimulant.

Normally, the United States imports practically all the chromium it uses, but with the threat now that supplies in Russia and Africa might be cut off because of war, attention is turned to chromium ore—deposits in California, Oregon and Wyoming.

The American ore is of a low grade which cannot be profitably refined when it must compete with high grade ores which can be imported. In the World War, however, when foreign supplies were largely cut off, 40 per cent of American needs, then lower, were met by American ores. Now research is directed again toward the production of the best possible product from low-grade domestic ores.

Chromium is one of the most important strategic materials because it has several essential uses for which there are no satisfactory substitutes. The average American is best acquainted with chromium as an ornamental metal on automobiles, in plumbing and for numerous similar decorative purposes where its silvery luster is desirable.

Stainless steel, which has come to be indispensable for many purposes, contains 18 per cent of chromium. The principal use of chromium is as an alloy in steel. Next in importance in amount consumed is the use of a form of the ore for bricks in furnace linings as an insulation against heat. Three-fourths of all chrome linings as an insulation against heat. Three-fourths of all chrome linings as an insulation against heat. Three-fourths of all chrome linings as an insulation against heat.

When chromium is used for a metal trim, as on automobiles, it is applied by electroplating by a process in which chromic acid is used. To some extent paint and enamel could be used as a substitute for chromium plating, particularly if the supplies available should be needed for defense purposes.

The supply on hand is estimated to be sufficient for about 14 months, and stocks on hand are increasing, but faced with the danger that distant supplies may not be accessible, American industry races to find new alternative materials, to improve the present substitutes and to make the widest possible use of domestic ores.
