Young Explorer Learns What's Under Skylight Salt Lake City, Utah (AP)—Five-year-old Charles McNeill and his 4-year-old sister, Ethelmane, were playing around the edges of a skylight in a court adjacent to their second-story apartment.

Ethelmane dared Charles to go out on the skylight to see what was below. Charles took off his shoes. He edged out on the glass. He reached the center pane when the crash came. His mother picked him out of the broken glass in a shop below. He was cut and bruised but not seriously. Anna, most important—he had found out what was under the skylight.
