Auxiliary Elects State Officers

Mrs. Addie Brown, of Bend, was chosen chaplain of the Oregon department, V. F. W. ladies auxiliary at elections held this morning in the final business session of the convention. This is Mrs. Brown's first department office.

List of officers is: Mrs. Ethel Keck, of Seaside, president; Mrs. Edith Mudd, Salem, senior vice-president; Mrs. Delta Kruger, Portland, junior vice-president; Mrs. Mary Wyman, Portland, secretary; Mrs. Frances Kolkosky, Portland, treasurer; Mrs. Addie Brown, Bend, chaplain; Mrs. Gladys Wygant, Astoria, conductress; Mrs. Elsie Zimmerman, Portland, guard.

Mrs. Leota Baritau, Mrs. Gertrude Day, Mrs. Ann Craig and Mrs. Sue Estes, all of Portland, color bearers; Mrs. Vertha Shultz, Seaside, flag bearer; Mrs. Alma Fierst, Silverton, banner bearer; Mrs. Ora Windus, Portland, chief of staff; Mrs. Cyrena Tannler, Portland, musician.

Installation ceremonies were held early this afternoon in the convention meeting room at the Elks hall, with Mrs. Consuelo Peart DeCoe, past national president, of Sacramento, Calif., as installing officer.

Bend's book of press clippings, designed and executed by Mrs. Marie Payne, publicity chairman, received honorable mention in state-wide competition.

With the election and installation of officers, work of business sessions of the convention concluded, and members spent the afternoon preparing for the final festivities tonight.

1941 Encampment Will End Today

The 21st annual encampment of the Oregon department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars was nearing its end today, after four days of business, festivities and fun. Spotlighted by the presence of several distinguished guests, the encampment was pronounced one of "the best ever", by many of the delegates who were in Bend.

Election of officers for the coming year was to be held this afternoon at the last business session of the convention.

The business meeting this morning was taken up with committee reports, and besides the election, this afternoon the delegates wound up the department business for another year.

A department council of administration meeting will be held, and from there on the rest of the day will be devoted to fun and the general releasing of high spirits.

At 9 o'clock there will be an open air jitney dance on the tennis courts across from the Dug-Out, which will be open all evening, with entertainment by Monte Brooks and his floor show.

Clearing of Road Will Start Soon

Surveying and clearing has been completed on the re-routing of the Redmond-Powell Butte road's connection with the Ochoco highway, County Roadmaster George McAlister announced today. The re-routing is necessary before work can be continued on the Redmond airport, McAllister explained.

The county moved a caterpillar tractor and a bulldozer in yesterday, and work on the road is expected to be completed within a short time, according to the road official.

A tractor was moved into the Lower Bridge road today, and work is expected to get underway on that project Monday, officials said.

"I Wanted Wings"

Scene from the newest picture of the air service—"I Wanted Wings," starring Ray Miland, William Holden, Wayne Morris and Veronica Lake.

Visiting With the Veterans..

Decorations on Headgear Fad With Military Order of Cooties . . . Mrs. Iris Fitzgerald Believes Bend Has Changed a Lot . . . Salem's Clown Band Entertains in Downtown Stores.

Some of the Cooties—still referring to the fun organization of the V. F. W.—aren't content with their pretty red caps as is—they have to decorate them still further. Witness Frank Fiest, of Silverton, who stuck a large cream and black tin bug on the front of his cap, a canary on the left-hand side, and on the right peak a tiny wooden bird, with a hole in its back for a candle. Lew Devericks, also of Silverton, adorned the outside of his head-gear with a miniature stop and go sign, and above it a large, reclining glasshopper. Some stuff! Their wives, not to be outdone, each sported a small bud vase with a single flower on their coat lapels.

Bend has changed quite a bit in the past few years, in the opinion of Mrs. Iris Fitzgerald, of Portland. Mrs. Fitzgerald is spending all her time when not in the convention sessions searching for old friends—people she knew in the early days of Bend's history, when she and her family lived here. Her father was one of Central Oregon's pioneers, and Mrs. Fitzgerald remembers well the days when there wasn't a paved street in the city!

—o—

Then again there's that clown band from Salem, whose members truck all over town in their prisoner's stripes, with paint gloriously splashed over their faces. Yesterday afternoon they decided to brighten the lives of Bend's working people, so for about an hour they marched in downtown stores and serenaded the inhabitants.

The unidentified woman delegate from Portland didn't realize she was talking to a newspaper reported when she said, "I've fallen in love with Bend. Your city is the small-sized town of my dreams—the one I've always wanted to live in."

She paused a moment, then, "It must be nice to walk down the street and have everyone you see speak to you, and you be able to identify them. And these people here are a different kind from those in the valley. These are nice, friendly, casual folk. Oh, I'm in love with Bend, and some day soon I hope to live here!" Thus the delegate.

—o—

"Oh, we're so-o-o-o mad." Thus the Salem delegates from post 661, this morning. Sometime in the wee small hours, a group of dark-dyed villains absconded with Leapin' Lena, jallopy pride of the valley post, the multi-colored, four-wheeled mascot with the erratic roll, which has been one of the prize features of the encampment.

And where was Lena? She spent a cozy night on the high school porch, gazing softly and meditatively with her one eye at the lawns, across the tennis courts toward the police station. And this morning, when Marguerite Kiernan, office girl at the high school, came to work, there was Lena, quite composed, uncomplaining, but lonely, poor dear. She was returned to the bosom of the Salemites this morning, and once again can raise her battered head, bloody but unbowed.

Along with the V. F. W., the staff members at KBND think that this has been their week to howl! Furthermore, they believe that they've done their part in helping to put over the convention. For in the past three days the station has put on four remote control broadcasts, covering the high spots of the annual encampment.

First of the series was heard Thursday afternoon, when music of the clown band from Salem, which was marching along Wall street to serenade the populace, was picked up by remote control and broadcast to the city. Thursday night the drilling events and contests at the stadium were broadcast—after they turned on the lights and were able to get power. National Commander J. C. Menendez had his voice waffed over the air waves by remote control when he spoke to the gathering Friday afternoon. The series concluded Friday night, when Gov. Charles A. Sprague's speech at the convention banquet was put on the air.

Leora Andrew Tells of Life On Campus of State College

High point of this year's 4-H club summer school in Corvallis was the nightly assembly or informal party, according to Leora Andrew, winner of The Bulletin scholarship, and Bulletin correspondent during the fortnight's session. She is the daughter of Mrs. Vida Andrew, of the Tumalo district.

"It's really awfully hard to say exactly what was best or most fun down at Corvallis, because everything was so wonderful!" she exclaimed. She's very proud of her new-found ability to work button holes and to put on pockets. "Why, if I hadn't gone to summer school, I still might not know how to turn a button hole neatly," explained the pretty young blonde.

A typical day for one of the girl delegates began at 6:30, when the hour before breakfast was spent in doing a daily chore and in cleaning her room. The girls lived in three of the fraternity houses at Oregon State college, and Leora was greatly impressed by the fact that she'd probably never again inhabit a room in the Sigma Phi Epsilon house!

Classes started at 8:30, continuing until 11:30. "There wasn't any set schedule about what we did and when, but each day the schedule was posted," explained the young delegate. In the cooking classes, held in the home economics building, the girls learned how to can fruit, "to keep the most vitamins and flavor in," and how to bake practically every known variety of cake. In all these classes they were scored on their work, and the group making the highest score was treated with ice cream at the final assembly, held Thursday afternoon.

According to Leora, these daily assemblies, held after luncheon, "even though educational, were most interesting." Top honors for interest on these programs went to Governor Charles Sprague, who spoke to them recently. Assembly was followed by county meetings of all groups, to discuss their part in the summer school, to plan for radio programs, and to compare notes on progress.

After 4:00 p. m.—sometimes 3:30—activities were the order of the day, when the youngsters changed into sport clothes and "engaged in athletic pursuits." The Deschutes bunch were permitted to go swimming on Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons, and according to Leora, "that was just about as much fun as anything."

One of the 4-H clubs had brought along a puppet show, which kept the youngsters amazed and amused. On the last day of the summer school, the puppeteers removed the curtains from the miniature stage, giving their audience a chance to see how marionettes are worked.

Then every night was the "fun" assembly, featuring a moving picture, or stunts by some of the groups. Final night of the school, Thursday, four parties were going on—a formal dance, an informal dance, a party for the older delegates, and a party for the younger ones, so that everyone could pick his pet kind of entertainment. Leora went to the party for the older ones, and from her expression of sheer joy as she reminisced about it, it was "a fine deal."

Leaving, especially for two of the Deschutes county young ladies, wasn't nearly so much fun as arriving, said Leora. Even serving K. P. duty for one day, as they each had to do, seemed pretty nice, when it came to saying goodbye to new friends, and realizing that it was all over for another year.

"I think I can honestly say that I've never had so much fun in my life, or learned so much in such a shore time," she smiled. "It was the top experience this child's ever had," she concluded.

When asked what her immediate plans were, Leora grinned wearily, "I'm going home and go to bed until Sunday!"

Jeff Kitchen Member Of University Group

Jeff Kitchen, University of Oregon junior in journalism, was appointed member of the Oregon federation by its directorate this week. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Kitchen, 69 Portland avenue.

Composed of outstanding undergraduates, the federation relays and interprets information on campus life and studies to prospective students desiring to know more of higher education. Dr. H. C. Staples is the Deschutes county alumni director for the university.

Ex-student body vice-president, John Cavanagh, will tour the state during the summer showing colored moving pictures of life at the Eugene school. A prominent public speaker, he will replace Federation Director Roy N. Vernstrom, who has served for two years. Vernstrom will enter the information service of the federal government. He is a brother of Walter Vernstrom, formerly on The Bulletin staff.

Local high school graduates are asked to contact Kitchen and Staples,

Tumalo

Tumalo, June 21—(Special)—Ole Grubb was re-elected director of the Tumalo school district for a three year term at the annual school meeting held Monday evening at Tumalo. Mrs. Carrie Scoggin was re-elected clerk of the district for the coming year. The budget was passed unanimously by the small group present.

A social evening will be held by the Tumalo grange Friday evening at the grange hall in lieu of a regular meeting. Ladies atending are asked to bring cookies. Mrs. R. J. Walker, Mrs. E. W. Putnam and Miss Willa Shaver have charge of the entertainment and refreshments.

The E. T. Hanneman home was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday afternoon when Mrs. Nina Renno, daughter of Mrs. Anna Wood, and sister of E. T. Hanneman, became the bride of Roy Gilliland, of Bend. The ceremony was performed at 3 o'clock by Elder Glenn Massey of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, before a gathering of relatives and friends. The bride wore a beige colored afternoon dress of flat crepe. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Barnett, brother and sister-in-law of the bride. Other guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Barnett, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Whitman, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Cline and sons, Robert and Dewey, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hanneman, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jennings and son, Billie, and Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Crum. A reception was held for the newly married couple Saturday evening and guests besides those attending the ceremony who were present were: Mr. and Mrs. Leigh Haynes, Mr. and Mrs. Gail Haynes, and L. L. Lessman. The Gilliliands will make their home in Bend.

Mrs. H. A. Scoggin accompanied Lee Allen to Newport Tuesday where she will act as the voting delegate from Tumalo grange, No. 631, at the state grange session being held there this week. Lee went over as representative from this part of the state to participate in the public speaking contest, the subject of which is "Safety on the Highway." Lee plans to spend only one day at the session.

Mr. and Mrs. Milo Seems who came out here recently from Kansas are living in the old Bullard house in Tumalo and Seems is working for J. R. Cowan.

Saturday evening shortly before dark passersby were surprised to see a doe calmy grazing in Dewey Crum's alfalfa field which is along the highway north of Tumalo.

E. W. Putnam is just completing a large cistern on his place preparatory to installing a bathroom in his home.

Mrs. E. M. Wright has returned home after having visited a week at Forest Grove with her son, Paul, and his wife.

Tumalo Tillicum Study club held its June meeting Tuesday afternoon, June 10, at the home of Mrs. Martha Elder at which time club busines for the year was completed. A social hour and refreshments were enjoyed by the group. Mrs. T. W. Vandevert also gave her report on the State Federation of Women's clubs convention which was held at Corvallis the previous week.

Nancy Scott is employed at the Suttle lake lodge this summer.

Norval Grubb will commence working for the forest service this week.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Putnam and son, Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Henry and children, and Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Walker picnicked at Suttle lake Sunday and the boys took their boat along.

Mary Ellen Putnam sang over radio station KOAC and Reta Dyer played her harmonica when the Deschutes delegation to the 4-H summer school went on the air Monday evenin.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Brooks visited at the T. W. Vandevert home recently while on their way to Central valley project in California from Grand Coulee where they have been located. Mrs. Brooks, before her marriage last year, was Miss Betty Catlow, and is a niece of Vandevert's.

Alvin Keyte, who has been employed on the Emil Anderson ranch, suffered a stone bruise on his foot which caused arthritis on one side of his body so that he has been laid up at the home of his mother in Bend for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Crecelins, who live on the Fred Adams place, had friends visiting them from Fossil Sunday.

"You will be needed in civilian defense," the governor finally conceded. He stressed the part veterans can take in maintaining civilian morale in any emergency.

Immediately following the banquet, Governor Sprague left for Salem, over the North Santiam. He came here directly from Portland, where he attended the funeral of Senator Walter E. Pearson yesterday afternoon.

"I feel that the state has lost a fine public servant," Governor Sprague said in paying tribute to Senator Pearson, at the opening of his address.

Present for the banquet were 299 people.

Advertising is News too—

WHEN people are given helpful information about merchandise which they want and where it can be obtained, the result is good news for the readers and profitable advertising for the merchants. This newspaper offers the most effective method for business men to tell the news about their merchandise and service to the families in this community.

The extent of this effectiveness depends, of course, upon our circulation. Not necessarily how large, but where, how obtained and other facts that the advertiser has a right to know when he spends money for advertising. To give our advertisers this information we belong to the Audit Bureau of Circulations, a national, cooperative association of 2000 publishers, advertisers and advertising agencies. The Bureau was organized in 1914 and its purpose is to furnish advertisers with verified information about the circulation of the publisher members.

The Bureau has a staff of skilled auditors who make an annual audit of the circulation records of each publisher member. This audited information is then issued in A. B. C. reports which show how many copies of a newspaper are printed, where they go, how the circulation is secured and many other facts advertisers should know.

This newspaper therefore not only offers advertisers a good way to get their news to the right people in the community but also provides protection for advertising investments by giving audited circulation figures.
