Gilbert Group

sive moves, similar to the heavy attack on the Solomons, designed to break up Japanese preparations for further creeping thrusts against allied sea routes).

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21 (AP)—The navy department declined comment today on Japanese assertions that an American attack on Makin island in the Gilbert group had been driven back.

Makin was one of the islands which were battered in a surprise raid by a Pacific fleet task force on the Gilbert and Marshall island groups last January 31.

That attack cost the Japanese 16 ships, including a large converted aircraft carrier, and 41 airplanes. American losses totaled 11 scout bombers. The raids on the islands, which were the sites of Japanese bases, were under the direction of Vice Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr.

The navy's raiding forces destroyed two enemy patrol planes and badly damaged one auxiliary vessel at Makin. It was occupied by the Japanese on December 7, the day of the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Willkie Plans Trip Abroad

Washington, Aug. 21 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie will tell to leaders of countries he visits during his forthcoming trip the truth about American war production and correct erroneous impressions that production is not all it should be, President Roosevelt said today.

Sailboat Capsizes; 2 Men "Rescued"

Dr. H. E. Mackey proved the hero of the day when he rescued Dean Thompson and William Van Allen from the chilly waters of Elk lake yesterday after the Van Allen sailboat had capsized.

Van Allen and Thompson, who claim to be expert navigators, invited the physician, whom they claimed was a novice at sailing a boat, to accompany them on the trip. The two men took along three life preservers for the "land lubber doctor" and the trio set out for a sail. Later Dr. Mackey went back to shore to pick up the luncheon and while there heard cries from Thompson and Van Allen, who had sailed off without him. The boat was overturned and doing various kinds of nips-ups in the choppy waters and the two men were hanging on for dear life.

At this point, the owner of the boat was caught fast in one of the sails, and Thompson, who can't swim, was clinging fast to the boat. Dr. Mackey dragged the two ashore, together with their shoes, socks, sweaters, and the three life preservers, which had sunk to the bottom of the lake. All were salvaged by divers.

Circus Attracts Capacity Crowd

Jorgen M. Christiansen's South American Criollo horses and Winston's trained seals proved to be the best-liked of the 24 acts given by the Russell brothers circus in performances yesterday afternoon and evening.

For the evening show every seat in the big top was filled and the three rings kept all eyes attracted for over two hours.

Central Oregon residents, themselves a race of horse lovers, loudly applauded the maneuvers of the group of nine matched horses. Earlier the trained seals balanced and tossed balls from their seemingly magnetic noses.

Most impressive of the acrobatics was the closing act of the Escalantes, who did fly through the air on the flying trapeze.

Four or five clowns appeared at intervals throughout the program and brought laughs each time. Chief Sugar Brown and his troupe proved to be just so many Indians.

Even before the last act was finished the strange circus helpers, each with his job to do, started packing equipment for the trip south to Klamath Falls for a two-day stand. Several hours later only the ground itself showed that the circus had been there.

Decorrevoit Is On Injured List

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 21 (AP)—Bill Decorrevoit's hopes of returning to football stardom on the same gridiron where he rocketed to unparalleled heights as a high school performer were crushed today when a knee injury forced him to withdraw from practice with the college all-stars.

The Northwestern university halfback suffered the injury during a drill for the all-stars game with the Chicago Bears Aug. 28 and immediately was withdrawn from a list of available performers by Head Coach Bob Zuppke.

"The knee looks pretty bad right now," Decorrevoit said. "I'll not only miss a chance to play against the Bears, but likely will be forced to take things easy for at least three weeks with it."

The All-Star contest with the Bears is at Soldiers' field and as a senior at Chicago's Austin high school Decorrevoit was the magnet that attracted 100,000 fans to the giant stadium for a scholastic title game.
