

Cleated Gentry Stands by for East-West Game

Kerr and Hauser to Be Head Men of One Squad; Stars Roped

By Ralph Zalazar
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
San Francisco, Dec. 21 (AP)—The entire personnel of the east and west grid huskies, signed for the shrine New Year's Day all-star game, today was expected to be gathered to respective folds by nightfall in preparation for opening workout.

During the last few days the cleated gentry have been straggling into town—and today they are practically all accounted for. This included Don Faurot, Missouri's champion bulldog coach, who arrived yesterday to collaborate with Babe Hollingsbery of Washington State in whipping the formidable west squad into shape.

Coaches On Way

Expected at any moment were Coaches Andy Kerr of Colgate and Dr. George Hauser of Minnesota, who will master mind the east squad.

Coaches and players to both teams were invited to the Shrine club's public luncheon at the Palace hotel today—and then they were whisked off to rugged business of conditioning and mapping of strategy for the benefit grid classic at Kezar New Year's Day.

The west squad will set up housekeeping and grid bonnet at Palo Alto tomorrow. The easterners have booked Santa Clara for similar purposes.

Faurot, who coaches Missouri to the Big Six conference title this season, showed up shortly after three proteges hit town. The three, largely instrumental in the Tiger title drive, were Bob Steuber, 195-pound back; Don Reece, 225-pound blocking back, and Mike Fitzgerald, 205-pound guard.

Barnett Shows Up

Another late arrival for the west was Bubo Barnett, 245-pound guard from Baylor.

Most of the east team already is on hand to start on the fresher course in east-west football technique, but five more stars—Dick Wildung, Dave Schreiner, Al Wistert, Bob Dove and Paul Governal—were due today.

Faurot had one worry—who was going to do the passing for the west team. He and Hollingsbery may have to build pass plays around John J. Jim Jurkovich of California, or Bob Kennedy of Washington State.

However, with such linemen as Bruno Banducci, Chuck Taylor and Ed Stamm of Stanford; Norm Verry of U.S.C.; Johnny Ferguson of California, Dub Lamb of Oklahoma, Alyn Beals of Santa Clara and Wall Harrison of Washington in front for protection they may cut loose with some nifties.

Ex-Ball Chief Dies on Hunt

Albany, Ga., Dec. 21 (AP)—A hunting accident was believed today to have caused the death of Trammell Scott, former president of the southern association of baseball clubs.

Scott, a major in the world war, was found dead yesterday of gunshot wounds on the Ichauway plantation of W. R. Woodruff near here.

Ross Is Hailed "Man of Year"

New York, Dec. 21 (AP)—Corp. Barney Ross of Chicago, now with the marines at Guadalcanal, was voted the Edward J. Neil memorial trophy as boxing's "man of the year," by the boxing writers' association of New York, it was announced today.

Ross, former holder of three ring championships, recently was cited for heroism on Guadalcanal. He protected three wounded marine comrades against night-long Japanese attacks and became the only nominee and unanimous choice for the award. The trophy is voted annually by the association in memory of their colleague and war correspondent who was killed in Spain in 1938.

Previous nominees were Jack Dempsey, Billy Conn, Henry Armstrong and Joe Louis. The award will be presented either to Ross or a high-ranking marine official sometime in February.

Ship Will Bear Gehrig's Name

Washington, Dec. 21 (AP)—A liberty freighter will be named for Lou Gehrig, famed first baseman and "iron man" of the New York Yankees, the U. S. maritime commission announced today.

New York school children chose the name, along with 21 others, as their reward for record collections in the recent scrap metal campaign.

JAMES DUFF DEAD

Portland, Ore., Dec. 21 (AP)—Funeral services were to be held here today for James F. Duff, 32, Northwest free-lance writer, who died Friday after a short illness. He is survived by his parents, two sisters, and three brothers.

Sport Tabloids

By Jack Cuddy
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Dec. 21 (AP)—Taking a whirl on the sports go-round:

An emergency meeting of major league club owners will be held in New York Feb. 8—the day before the annual schedule meeting—to crystallize plans for the 1943 training and playing season and to co-ordinate the complete program with latest government transportation suggestions.

When the war is over we can expect a tremendous demand from turf men in other countries for American thoroughbreds. Because of the war we have virtually cornered the thoroughbred breeding market. Even the British have shipped a large portion of their choice stock to this country. There now are approximately 1,000 farms in 40 states with a total of almost 1,000 stallions and 12,000 mares, many of them gathered from all parts of Europe, Australia and South America.

Youth Has Fling

Youth is having its fling on the Boston Bruins, pace-setters of the National hockey league. Behind the club's astonishing success this season is the kid line composed of Billy Shill, Don Gallinger and Bep Guidolin. It is the youngest and most effective rookie combination seen in the league in many years—a combination that has inspired the squad's older players to surprising efforts.

"Two-ton" Tony Galento, former heavyweight challenger, who is grooming for a comeback, trained all last week at Bey's camp, Summit, N. J. This week he expects to shift his conditioning quarters to Stillman's gym in New York. He plans to return to the ring in about six weeks.

The Rose Bowl committee is slated to convene soon and vote a portion of the UCLA-Georgia game profits to war relief. However, we understand that the Sugar Bowlers of New Orleans can't follow suit because of clauses preventing any money from being given to charity until the Sugar Bowl bond issue is redeemed.

Jackie Writes Note

Sergeant Jackie Wilson, welterweight contender, writes us: "I see in the papers that Ray Robinson refused a match with Henri Armstrong, claiming that he didn't want to hurt Henry. Well, I've been trying to get a fight with Robinson for months, but he won't fight me. He's not afraid of hurting me; he's afraid I'll knock his brains out."

Ted Williams Gets 3 Crowns

By Paul Sheffels

New York, Dec. 21 (AP)—Ted Williams, husky Boston Red Sox outfielder who went into the naval air corps, finished his baseball career for the duration by winning the American league triple crown, official averages disclosed today.

Williams, classed as one of the greatest hitters since the days of Cobb, Speaker and Ruth, led the circuit last season in batting, runs-batted-in and homers.

Reaches .400 Mark

Last year he became the first hitter in more than a decade to bat over .400 and although he dropped 50 points from his 1941 mark in the past season, Williams spread-eagled the field to lead by points with an average of .356 for 150 games. He won the coveted triple crown by hitting 36 homers and checking in with the most runs batted in, 137.

Williams was the man of the year in two other departments, in total bases, he piled up 338. Williams paced the runs scored department with 141 to 123 for Dimaggio. Top one-man performance in this division last season was the league-record deed of Rudy York of Detroit who scored five times against the Chicago White Sox on May 24 to equal the best previous total.

Seven Players Named

There were only seven players among the 100-game performers who batted .300 or better. Johnny Pesky, Williams' teammate on the field and in the air corps, finished 25 points down the line with a first-year average of .331 for 147 games.

Others to gain that select circle were Stan Spence, Washington, .323; Joe Gordon, Yankees, .322; George Case, Washington, .320; Walt Judnich, St. Louis, .313; and Joe Dimaggio, Yankees, .305.

Runner-up mark in homers was compiled by Chet Laabs of St. Louis with 27. Charlie Keller and Dimaggio, of the Yankees, hit 26 and 21 respectively.

THUMBNAIL HISTORY OF U. S. ARMY DIVISIONS

ELEVENTH DIVISION

The Eleventh Division, less artillery, was organized at Camp Meade, Maryland, in August, 1918. The 24th Field Artillery Brigade was organized and trained at West Point, Kentucky. The 17th and 63d Infantry were organizations of the Regular Army, but all units were made up largely of drafted men. The Division was prepared for departure overseas in November, 1918, when the signing of the Armistice stopped all further troop movement. Major General Jesse M. Carter was assigned to its command. Except for Regular Army units it was demobilized in February, 1919. Its insignia is a bust of Lafayette in blue superimposed on a red disk.

TWELFTH DIVISION

The Twelfth (Plymouth) Division, composed largely of drafted men from the New England States with a nucleus of men from regular units, was organized at Camp Devens, Massachusetts, except its artillery brigade which was formed at Camp McClellan, Alabama. Major General H. P. McCain was assigned to its command. The Division was prepared for departure overseas when the Armistice was signed and it was demobilized in January, 1919. Its insignia is a blue diamond upon which is superimposed the figure 12 pierced by a bayonet.

TWENTY-SIXTH DIVISION

The Twenty-sixth Division, popularly known as the "Yankee Division", was organized in Boston in August, 1917, from National Guard troops of the New England States supplemented by a small quota of National Army men. It arrived overseas in Autumn, 1917, and went to the front lines in the Chemin des Dames sector early in February, 1918. In April it was involved in the Satchery Raid and repulsed an enemy attack with heavy losses. In succeeding operations including the Meuse and Champagne-Thierry sectors, the Champagne-Marne defensive, the Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne offensives the Division was heavily engaged. It took 3,148 prisoners. Its casualties totalled 11,325. Major General Clarence Edwards commanded the Division from its organization until October 24, 1918. Its insignia is a dark monogram YD on a diamond-shaped field of olive drab.

TWENTY-SEVENTH DIVISION

The Twenty-seventh Division, composed of New York National Guard troops, was organized in September, 1917, at Camp Wadsworth, South Carolina. It arrived overseas early in the summer of 1918 and almost immediately moved to the front line, participating in active sectors in Belgium. It took part in the Ypres-Lys, the Somme and the Meuse-Argonne Offensives. The Division captured 2,357 prisoners and its casualties totalled 8,985. It was commanded by Major General John F. O'Ryan. It returned to New York in March, 1919. Its insignia is a red bordered black circle with the letters NYD in monogram surrounded by seven stars, placed in the constellation of Orion.

TWENTY-EIGHTH DIVISION

The Twenty-eighth (Keystone) Division, composed of troops of the Pennsylvania National Guard, was organized at Camp Hancock, Georgia, in September, 1917, and received its baptism of fire in desperate fighting in the Chateau-Thierry sector early in July, 1918. It participated in the Champagne-Marne defensive, the Aisne-Marne offensive, in the Fismes sector, the Oise-Aisne and Meuse-Argonne offensives and the Thiarcourt sector, remaining on the firing line at the signing of the Armistice. Its artillery units were active in the Oise-Aisne and Meuse-Argonne offensives and with the closing drama in the Ypres-Lys offensives in Belgium. The Division took 921 prisoners and its casualties totalled 13,980. It was commanded by Major General Charles H. Muir. Its insignia is a red keystone.

NOTE—Divisions numbered from 13 to 25 have not been activated.

MORE ABOUT Russians Break

Control of 45 miles of the vital Voronezh-Rostov railway. Twenty-two German divisions were trapped between the Don and Volga rivers at Stalingrad, and if Col. Gen. Vatutin, in his central Don offensive, occupies the entire stretch of the railway between Kantemirovka and Aemensk-Schachtinsky, all axis forces inside the northern half of the Don valley will be cut off.

Foreseeing this, the Germans were counterattacking with desperation in the Stalingrad area, trying to establish contact with their trapped 22 divisions.

The noon communique reported six counterattacks, all repulsed, northwest of Stalingrad. The Germans lost 400 men and 27 planes which the Russians destroyed around or in combat.

Germans Wiped Out

Southwest of Stalingrad, soviet artillery wiped out 1,000 Germans and helped infantry beat off a counterattack in which 300 more Germans were killed and eight tanks, two guns and 20 trucks were demolished.

German counterattacks in the central Don area apparently were intended to delay the Russians. Front line dispatches reported that the main axis forces had abandoned most of their heavy equipment and were retreating with all haste in an effort to reach new lines.
