Many Social Activities Are Cancelled Here

A general cessation of social activities "because of weather" became evident yesterday when telephones in this department kept up a steady jingle-jangle informing of meeting cancellations.

Members of the American Legion auxiliary chorus were to meet this evening in Bend high school band room. They also decided not to brave the elements and the meeting has been postponed until a later date.

The Neighbors of Woodcraft have cancelled their party which was planned for this evening in Sather hall. Another date for the affair will be announced later.

Mrs. William Montgomery was slated to entertain members of St. Anthony's discussion club this evening. This session has also been postponed.

Mrs. A. E. Stevens, chairman of the Red Cross surgical dressing workshop, announced this morning that there will be no bandage work done there today or tomorrow.

The American League auxiliary chorus meeting, scheduled for this evening, has been postponed for a week.

The Ex-Libris club, slated to meet this evening at the home of Mrs. James E. Brinton, has also been cancelled.

Mrs. Kent J. Richens, chairman of the A.A.U.W. sponsoring committee of Russian war relief, says that the "cause" must go on regardless of weather, so headquarters at 118 Minnesota street will be open as usual Friday afternoon and all day Saturday. The public is asked to leave warm clean clothing at the headquarters. Booths where cash donations will be accepted will be open Saturday morning in the Bank of Bend and the First National Bank.

Mrs. Walter J. Ennard announced this morning that the League of Women Voters' meeting, scheduled for tonight in the Pine Tavern, has also been postponed until a later date.

BOOK FUNERAL SERVICES

Redmond, Jan. 21—Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock for Jake Book, of the lower Bridge community, who died at his home Tuesday. Mr. Book had been in failing health for several months.

He is survived by his wife and a sister, whose home is in Ohio. C. H. Irvin will be in charge of the funeral.

MORE ABOUT The Capitol

year the national nominating conventions will be held. With-out going into details as to possible nominees, the republicans are satisfied that the taxes next year will swing millions of voters to the republican side. Politics creeps into every discussion in the national capital.

The war budget for fiscal year 1944, which starts July 1, 1943, is in excess of 104 billion dollars. This is five times more money than England will spend; three times as much as Germany will spend; six and one-half times what Russia will spend; twenty times as much as Japan will spend, and about the same proportion to what Italy will spend. Of course what makes the war cost the American taxpayer so much is that the United States is the "arsenal of democracy" and as such pledges have been made that this country will furnish tanks, planes, guns, ammunition, food and clothing to our associates in this global war, plus American soldiers on all battlefronts. And to move these supplies and men means more merchant ships and transports.

Reduced to fundamentals, the new tax bill has two objectives: (1) Pay as much as possible to ward the cost of the war; (2) Leave the people as little money to spend as possible to prevent inflation, which is another way of saying the high cost of living. It is estimated by the president that there will be only about $500 worth of goods and services available per capita for the civilian population. With high wages in war industries there can and will be competition for these goods and services; not everyone can enter the competition, but a sufficient number may to run the price beyond the reach of persons with average income. This is one of the things the administration hopes to prevent by tapping the purse heavily through various types of taxation.

Compulsory savings, considered and discarded a year ago, has bobbed up again. This would be a tax to make people save whether or not they wanted to; money withheld by the boss and turned over to the federal treasury to be returned to the involuntary saver some years after the war. It would work somewhat similar to the victory tax, which takes five per cent of the salary at the source and some day a percentage will be refunded. (1 minister protests that his church is being used as a collection agency when the treasurer is directed by the internal revenue bureau to deduct the victory tax from the clergyman's salary). It is a fairly safe bet that compulsory savings will be a part of the new tax program; principal question to decide is the percentage to withhold. It is claimed that approximately one-half of the 16 billion dollars can come from compulsory savings.

With new taxes to be gathered this year there will be a great increase in the number of government employees. Thousands will be hired to handle income tax returns and keep track of the victory tax. A senate committee which is watching the upbuilding of all agencies in government and noting the increased cost is preparing to curtail new employment to the minimum. In the course of the months to come, as appropriation committees hold hearings, it is almost certain that the president's budget will be whittled down a few billion dollars. Present reaction against the fiscal 1944 budget is that, by comparison with what all other nations are spending in the war effort, it looks as though Uncle Sam is entirely too big hearted for his own good. (A government official is sounding out members of congress whether the people will adopt two meatless days a week in order to send more meat abroad. Meat is now so difficult to obtain that the replies have been unsatisfactory.)
