Hunter Winner In Timber Case

The jury hearing the Hunter versus Cuning case in circuit court returned a verdict Tuesday afternoon awarding a five per cent commission to J. N. Hunter, Bend realtor, on the 1939 sale of 17,000 acres of timber land belonging to the late Emily G. Gilchrist Wells to The Brooks-Seaton Lumber Company. The defendant was M. A. Cuning, administrator for the estate.

Besides $29,062.50, which is five per cent of the price received, the plaintiff was awarded six per cent interest on the following payments: $5,000, from June 20, 1939; $2,450 from Feb. 1, 1940, Aug. 1, 1941, Feb. 1, 1942, and Aug. 1, 1942; and $9,362.50 from Dec. 31, 1942.

Hunter's attorneys were H. H. De Armond of Bend and J. A. Bullivant of Portland. Cuning was represented by George H. Brewster of Redmond and A. S. Cooley of Pendleton. The case was heard before Circuit Judge R. J. Green of La Grande.

ing through stubborn enemy resistance, while the Ameripac 7th army reached the road junction from the southwest, after flanking operations that carried some units farther northward toward the coast.

The effect of the capture of Enna was to split Sicily in half, with the allies controlling all territory south of a line running from Catania on the east coast to Enna and thence southwestward to a point beyond Agrigento, where the Americans were still advancing. Enna represented an advance of about 35 air line miles from the nearest south coast port at Gela, but the troops covered many more miles in their offensive over mountain roads.

Of greatest importance, however, was the seizure of the road network centering at Enna. The axis, with the mid-island defenses crumbling, was being driven steadily back toward northeast Sicily and its main communication lines are vanishing on the north coast.

Divisions Fall Back
The rearguard action fought by the enemy in the Enna sector and the fierce battle at Catania were regarded as designed to gain time while the main axis forces fall back toward Messina, only a few miles from the toe of the Italian boot.

Two axis armored divisions were among the enemy forces falling back from the Enna area. At Catania, however, enemy resistance continued strong against the 8th army of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery. Field dispatches said that the battlefields south of Catania were strewn with German dead, and wrecked tanks of the Hermann Goering division, while allied warships and airplanes hammered at the coast road leading northward to Messina.

Prisoners taken in Sicily were estimated to total around 40,000, more than half of them taken by the Americans.

Delinquent Tax Collections Big In Past Year

Of the $304,362.98 in delinquent taxes shown on the county books the beginning of the fiscal year, July 1, 1942, $137,547.19 of the amount was collected in the 12-month period ending June 30, according to figures just released by County Treasurer R. E. Ferguson. Total taxes collected in the same fiscal year amounted to $577,443.94, with $439,796.75 of the total in current taxes.

In Jan. 1, 1941, (which formerly began a new fiscal year in the state), delinquent taxes shown amounted to $359,401.57. For the present fiscal year, the total has dropped to $240,291.11. Ferguson stated that although collections on delinquent taxes were far above expectations this year, as compared to former years, it is probably also true that a portion of the reduction in delinquent taxes
