More Soap to Be Made; No Reason To Hoard Stock

A 28 per cent increase in all soaps produced for civilian use will result from a recent war food administration order, announces Lois A. Lutz, extension specialist in home management. More fats and oils are being allocated for this purpose, though manufacturers are being required to use prescribed percentages of non-fat materials as substitutes for fats. A temporary shortage of a few types of soap on retail shelves has been caused by consumer hoarding, according to national officials. Actually, soap stocks in 1942 were the largest on record and some of that heavy supply was on the market until the middle of 1943. Soap production has dropped somewhat this year, but the increase just authorized will allow for slightly more soap per capita than in pre-war years. There is no basis for "scare buying," the War Food administration assures housewives.

$15,000,000,000, the 3rd war loan quota, in one-dollar bills laid side by side would cover an area of approximately 62 sq. miles, or an area almost as large as the District of Columbia. (D. C. area is 69 sq. miles.) Buy an extra $100 war bond.
