HOW THE ARMY COULD SAVE GAS At a time when further limitations on the use of gasoline in the northwest are being imposed in order to assure larger supplies for the armed forces it would seem desirable for the army authorities, themselves, to consider how they might economize in the use of gas.

Were such study made attention would be called at once to the consumption of gasoline involved in the truck transport from Portland to Bend of class one commodities for the use of maneuver troops.

We have no thought of suggesting that any of this Portland-Bend movement be turned over or back to the railroads as a means of conserving gasoline. We do suggest that with a highway movement as heavy as this is the clearly apparent means of reducing road mileage and of cutting out surpluses to be crossed at a high fuel cost should be carefully examined and, if the balance of values turns out on the favorable side, undertaken.

The journey from Portland to Bend and return, if the Warm Springs cut-off were built, would be cut 70 miles. In addition, a good many feet of rise and fall would be eliminated. What these would mean in terms of reduced consumption of gasoline, oil, rubber, manpower, and equipment should be a simple matter for calculation by anyone having the figures of vehicle movement for and by the army.

In days like these, we realize, something more than money costs must be taken into account in deciding whether or not a construction project shall or can be undertaken. In particular there are questions of manpower and of critical material to be considered.

The Josephine county salvage committee has donated $500 to the war chest drive out of funds accumulated through scrap sales. Good idea. Scrap collected from all over the county may well do its part in an all-county fund collection.

One of the important issues in the Moscow conference will be whether Hull's or Molotov's will be the voice that breathes o'er Eden.

This Day in History

OCTOBER 21 The senator from Oregon was a brave man. There were very few toga men in Washington at the revolve of Civil war in 1861 who were generals in the army or for that matter in the army at all. The congressional conduct at Bull Run was not distinguished. In fact, the word was pusillanimous.

Washington Letter

By Peter Edson (NEA Staff Correspondent) Chief tub-thumper for the federal retail sales tax in congress is Rep. A. Willis Robertson of Lexington, Va., a hard-working member of the ways and means committee which is now struggling with the 1944 tax bill.

Edson has been consistently for the sales tax as an emergency revenue producer ever since the start of the war. His efforts have been in vain thus far, but this year he thinks the federal retail sales tax proposal has a chance, first because of the desperate need for increased revenue, second because he thinks the treasury proposals to do something about it are thoroughly bad, third because the federal retail sales tax is better than the alternative treasury proposals, and finally because Robertson thinks there is an answer for every one of the objections which has been raised against the sales tax, as outlined previously in this space.

the $2,000-a-year group, but would refund the tax after the war, meaning, according to Robertson, that the higher income groups would then have to pay it. The 10 per cent federal retail sales tax has been estimated to mean an 8 per cent increase in the cost of living for the lower income groups, and for this reason it has been argued that compensating wage increases would have to be granted, which would be inflationary and upsetting to the stabilization program.

It is now argued, in fact, that far from being inflationary, the sales tax is deflationary or regressive in that it would act as a curb on buying power, touching this $35 billion income which would be left untouched by the treasury proposals. Further, the sales tax would afford the taxpayer a better opportunity to economize than would an increase in income taxes. And if the tax is merely added to the ceiling price of goods, it would be considered purely as a war tax and not as an increase in the cost of living.

BIKE REPAIRMAN BUSY Erie, Pa. (U)—Transportation restrictions have resulted in owners bringing to Joseph Hoffman, bicycle repairman for 40 years, many of the wheels he fixed for them when he started in business. Some of his customers during his 15-hour work days are grandsons of men for whom Hoffman fixed bikes two score years ago.

Where Rolls the Oregon

(Following in one of a series of articles, prepared by the Oregon Trail Centennial Commission, dealing primarily with historical highlights of the Oregon Trail and the Old Oregon Country, Oregon Trail history is being stressed because 1943 is the centennial of the special migration of 1842 and the founding of the provisional government at Champeen.)

ON TO THE WILLAMETTE Fort Hall was a busy place during the brief stay of the emigrants. This was the largest crowd it had ever entertained.

The Hudson's Bay company official in charge of the fort tried to discourage the emigrants from going to the Willamette valley. He said it would be impossible to take the wagons over the rough country between the Snake and the Willamette.

The route to California was shorter and easier, he declared. There was much discussion on this important subject. The women of the train were in favor of continuing on to the Willamette valley with the wagons. They had started out to make new homes, and wagons would be needed to carry their household effects, and to work on the farms. Chiles and Martin announced that they were going to take the trail to California, and a number of others said they had made that decision also. At this crucial period, Dr. Marcus Whitman was appealed to. He declared that wagons could be taken to the Willamette. He had reached Fort Boise with a cart in 1836, and said that the obstacles to be encountered could be overcome. He volunteered to lead the way. It would be better, he said, to leave their wagons on the trail, if they had to, than to leave them at Fort Hall, thus accepting defeat without a struggle.

The Applegates and Peter Burnett backed Whitman, and so the great decision was made which helped materially to push the western boundary of the United States from the Rockies to the Pacific.

Before leaving Fort Hall funeral services were held for Daniel Richardson, who died of fever and the hardships of the trail. His worries and labors were over; their's had just begun. He had reached the end of the trail and entered the promised land; for them the trail stretched far ahead before they could seek rest.

Bend's Yesterdays

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO (From The Bulletin, Oct. 21, 1918) Germany claims that Kaiser Wilhelm has been shorn of war powers but the U. S. senate considers resolution making it unlawful for any government official to communicate with him until they surrender.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up at night. Frequent or scanty urination with aching and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.
