"OREGON GEOGRAPHIC NAMES"
Now and again, in other years, reference has been made in this column to the book, "Oregon Geographic Names," by Lewis A. McArthur, long a director and, since the death of Charles H. Carey, president of the Oregon Historical Society.

Statistically let it be recorded that the book is in size what the publishers call royal octavo. It contains 581 pages, was printed in Portland and tells the story of the name of some 5,000 Oregon features—post offices, counties, rivers, cities, buttes, forts and streams.

KLAMATH COUNTY TIMBER EXCHANGES
An arrangement for the exchange of land for timber proposed for execution between The Shevlin-Hixon Company and the forest service has been protested by the Klamath county court.

SURVEY ON MILK QUALITY
(Salem Statesman)
The recent flare-up over quality of milk has resulted in a check of inspection service over the state, and the reports made to date are not pleasant reading.

MEANTIME the state director of agriculture brands the regulatory laws as archaic and proposes their complete revision.
It may be that proposals for reform in the matter of handling of dairy products will result in a game of tag with each interest trying to put the tag on some one else.

COBBLER FINDS $255 IN SHOE
Rochester, N. Y. (AP)—When his last wouldn't fit the man's shoe he was about to repair, cobbler Stephen DiGiorgio reached into the toe of the shoe—and drew out a wad of bills amounting to $255.

A Crust of Bread for the Starving

THE WAY OUR PEOPLE LIVED by W.E. Woodward

A Puritan Village in 1680

Waitstill Walling had lived in Sudbury all his life. He claimed, in his expansive moments, that he was the first white child born in that community.

In 1680 Walling, then 43 years old, was one of Sudbury's leading citizens, popular with everyone from the minister down to the farm hands.

The doors of the early colonial houses were usually fastened by a latch. Just above the latch a hole was made in the door panel and the latchstring was passed through it, so the string dangled outside.

THE PARENTS OF SHADYSIDE HAVE ADOPTED THE LINGO OF THEIR OFF-SPRING, AND THE KIDS CAN'T TAKE IT. BUT IT'S ALL PART OF A PLAN—AND THERE'S MORE COMING...

---AND WE'RE TOSSING A LITTLE SHINDIG AT THE JUKE JOINT! BE THERE, FATSO---IT'LL BE A DINGER!

IF THERE'S GOING TO BE A PARTY AT THE JUKE JOINT, INCLUDE US IN! BUT, MOM, THE PARTY IS JUST FOR KIDS! STOP BUMPING YOUR GUMS. WHAT PAL---WE FEEL JUST AS YOUNG AS YOU! BUT PEOPLE THINK? IF IT GETS WHISPERED AROUND THAT YOU DRESSED LIKE THIS, WHAT WILL OLDER PEOPLE SAY?

Hi, DRACULA! MAY I BORROW YOUR FRAME FOR THIS STRUGGLE?

farm of many acres, he was engaged in public affairs. Some of his callers came every day. Samuel Gaylord, the head man on the Walling place, appeared every morning an hour after sunrise to report on the affairs of the farm; and the next visitor was usually James Lawson, the village constable, who was a walking newspaper of local happenings.

A PURITAN VILLAGE IN 1680 II

On a bright, sunny morning in April of the year 1680 a young man waited patiently on a bench in the Walling garden for the constable to come out of the house and depart.

They are, Captain, Quarreling like cat and dog. Everybody is talking about it. It's the same story all over. Mistress Sheldon says Jerry won't work, and she has to do everything. She declares (Continued on Page 8)

Washington Column

By Peter Edson (NEA Staff Correspondent)

U. S. department of state and other executive agency technical experts and delegates to the Chicago civil aviation conference have returned to Washington prepared to defend their work to the limit, regardless of whether criticism comes from congressional or private commercial aviation interests.

Chief of the victories claimed for U. S. aviation are the rights to fly across any country and to land in any country for refueling and repair. These are the so-called first and second freedoms of the air.

What the United States did give up was the right for other nations to fly over Alaska and Hawaii. These rights were given up in exchange for the rights to fly over Canada and the United Kingdom on route to other countries, which rights the United States did not have.

On this issue there arose the controversy over a so-called "escalator clause," which would permit international airlines to increase their capacity to carry traffic as it was offered. The British were willing to permit this to apply to traffic developing at the ends of a line, but not to traffic developing along the route.
