Life and Death of an Italian Bridge

Bend Observes Quiet Holiday

Bend observed a white Christ-mas this year in the traditional manner, with many home gather-ings reported, special services held at churches either on Sunday or Monday, numerous family re-unions and in some instances, time out from home parties for skiing trips into the western Cas-cades. ite Christ cades.

The double holiday passed with-out incident in Bend, but, it was generally agreed, Christmas was just a bit quieter this year than usual, probably due to the fact that hundreds of young men and boys are away from home. These boys, it was recalled at many home gatherings, observed Christ-mas in far parts of the world— some in tropic countries, others close to the snowy arctic. Services Well Attended the Catholic and Episcopal church-es were attended by capacity con-gregations. Not only was Christmas white this year, but it was chilly, with a maximum of only 29 degrees re-ported. It was also chilly Christ-mas eve, but hundreds of people were abroad in the white city. Public entertainment was featur-ed by the annual Christmas eve ball, sponsored by local police.

Forest Service Man Joins Navy

Roy Lee Williams, son of Clisby B. Williams, was enlisted as ap-prentice seaman, United States prentice seaman, Onited States naval reserve at the Portland navy recruiting station last week, ac-cording to word received today by Chief Paul H. Connet, recruiter in charge of the Central Oregon navy recruiting station, Bend, who processed Williams' applica-tion tion.

After a short period of inactive duty at home, Williams will be called to Portland transferred to a naval training center for indoc-trination. For the past year, Wil-liams has worked for the national forest service out of the Prineville beadquarters headquarters.

"She says he won't let her. Wants the money himself to buy rum and gamble away on shovelboard."

"They have a man for the farm, I believe," said the Captain. "Is that so?"

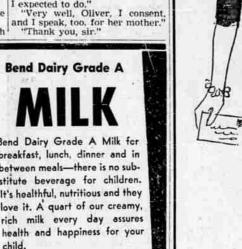

"It is, sir. A man named Brown. He seems to do all the work on the place. Jerry Sheldon, when he's in the tavern and in his cups, boasts that he'd retired." "He does, eh? Well, I'll retire him in a way he will not relish. Give him a summons to appear he'ore me in court next Monday. I'll write it now"—his goose-quill pen scratched over a sheet of paper—"and if he cannot show that he works every day and all day I'll send him to a place where he'll be busy." he'll be busy."

The constable had hardly left the house when Oliver Hillman, who had been absent-mindedly picking a flower to pieces, got up from his bench in the garden. As he entered the common room Cap-tain Walling smiled and extended bis hand his hand.
