Bend Lieutenant In German Camp Writes to Folks
 Just a little late, a letter from Lt. Kenneth Preston, written in a German prison camp and requesting that some Christmas shopping be done in Bend by proxy was received here yesterday by the young officer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon I. Preston. The letter read, in part:

"On the assumption that this will be home by Christmas and that I shall not — a very merry Christmas to all of you. I believe Sis has a little money of mine. Will you get some of this and send a dozen roses to her and Phyllis. Another favor, Dad, get just a little tipsy for me." The note concluded.

"I'm getting along o.k. here. Living with a bunch of nice guys. The other officers in the crew are in another compound. Get no chance to talk to 'em. Assume, however, that they're o.k. Write to me."

Lt. Preston, circulation manager for The Bulletin when he entered the service, has been a prisoner of the Germans since last fall. His plane was presumably forced down over Germany in a flight from Italy, where the young officer was based. Lt. Preston was a navigator aboard a bomber.

Advantages of Luzon Victory Pointed to By War Secretary

By Reuel S. Moore
 (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Jan. 12 (AP)—American forces in Luzon face a hard campaign despite the remarkable ease of their initial landings, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson has warned.

But he said the eventual benefits of occupying Luzon will more than offset the costs. With Luzon liberated, he said, Japan will be cut off from the oil, rubber, and other resources she has stored in the East Indies. The liberation of the Philippines will have been accomplished. And closer bases will be available for air attacks on the enemy in Indo-China, China, Formosa, and Japan.

The Japanese retreat in Burma is already one visible result of the advance into the Philippines, he said.

Stimson said the Lingayen landings were the result of fine cooperation between ground, air, and sea forces, including Australian naval squadrons.

Allied forces, he commented proudly, have gone a long way since American and Australian troops stopped the Japanese moving on Port Moresby, New Guinea in the Salem, Ore., Jan. 12 (AP)—A total of 125 applicants have indicated their desire to construct residence-type buildings in Salem, following the announcement this week that priorities for 100 such buildings were available in this area.

It is believed that other persons may want to take advantage of the priorities than those represented at a meeting of prospective builders yesterday.
