LET THE WAR GO ON
Well, President Roosevelt has been inaugurated again and Colonel Roosevelt's outside dog has been safely delivered by plane under high priority.

Regarding this we will not speculate. Let us rather draw the veil on this romantic interlude in the life of the presidential pooch. After all there are matters too private, we had almost said too sacred, to be so casually revealed.

History, we are sure, will record little of the doggy episodes mentioned in these paragraphs. The ceremony in which an old president became a new president will loom large. But in the popular mind, we are just as sure, the case of the colonel's dog will be remembered long after the inaugural is forgotten.

IN WALLACE—OUT JONES
Henry A. Wallace has won his long-standing feud with Jesse H. Jones, President Roosevelt has paid one of his debts of the 1944 campaign and the public—the public is left, as is not unusual of late, holding the sack.

Wallace was a mediocre cabinet member, an equally mediocre vice-president, whose term was distinguished by his ill-advised quarrels with the highly efficient Jesse Jones. It had not needed a cabinet post as secretary of commerce to make Jesse Jones outstanding. He was that, in business and in the world of finance, long before his services were sought by the administration.

In Jesse Jones the nation had confidence. He had earned it many times. For him the nation had unreserved approval. It was deserved. It had nothing to do with party preference. It was for the man, for his ability and for his achievements. He gave fully of his ability as he devoted himself to one task—the winning of the war.

Jesse Jones was too busy to play politics. Henry A. Wallace was never too busy to play politics. For his part in the presidential campaign after he had been sidetracked for a preferred candidate, he was the president's creditor. No reward could have been more pleasing to him than an appointment which would involve the discomfiture of his rival. That is the appointment which he has received.

To Wallace this is all-important. To Jesse Jones it will mean little except in his knowledge of the inadequacy of the man chosen to perform vital national and world tasks. To the people—yes, as we have mentioned, the people are holding the sack. It is our belief that they will realize this all too well.

Our compliments to the Boy Scouts and the Campfire girls for their part in the infantile paralysis drive for funds. In one day using the "block of dimes" plan the two organizations in Redmond and the boys of troop 23 in Bend raised a total of $620. They have given good reason for congratulation on the result of their efforts.

Bend's Yesterdays

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO (Jan. 23, 1930)

George A. Keyes arrives in Bend to assume the duties of the late Herbert E. Allen at the Brooks-Scanlon Lumber Company Inc. M. A. Lynch, Redmond, member of the state game commission, issues a plea to farmers and others to feed the starving game birds.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO (Jan. 23, 1920)

Teachers and pupils alike in Bend school submit to vaccination against smallpox. Colliers Weekly features a story about Paderewski, written by G. P. Putnam, former publisher of The Bulletin. The Women's Civic league plans the sale of 4,000 tags to finance a day nursery.

BLONDE TORNADO

Rockford, Ill. (UP)—Three Rockford policemen were given medical aid for injuries received while taking Mrs. Margie Stowe, 19, blonde, to headquarters in a squad car following a tavern argument. She was charged with breaking Detective William Laird's glasses, cutting him about the face, breaking a leg of Officer Omar Showalter and kicking Detective George Luce in the head. The officers also charged that she broke a window of the squad car.

Speakers Stress Missionary Need

The need of missionaries and an appeal to young people to seek training for this work was stressed at the recent meeting of the Deschutes association of Baptist Young People, at the First Baptist church in Bend. In anticipation of the time when they can help some young person to seek training for missionary duties, the association named a committee to start a scholarship fund. On the executive board of this committee are Miss Terry Peden, Ruth Goodwin and Lawrence Beach. Speakers at the association meeting were Rev. Elvin Fast, Redmond, who spoke on "Results of a Date"; Rev. Ted Goodwin, Prineville, who gave a testimonial service; and Rev. Kenneth Tobias, of Bend, who touched on the need of missionaries. The meeting was held at 2 p. m. Sunday, followed by a dinner at 5 p. m., at which time the theme, "Come and See" was developed. Speakers were Miss Doris Tobias, Miss Ruth Goodwin and Miss Terry Peden.

Starch in sweet potatoes and other plant materials is now determined by chemists by a polarimetric method somewhat similar to that used in sugar analysis.

THE WAY OUR PEOPLE LIVED by W.E. Woodward

FOUR YOUNG MEN IN THE GOLD RUSH

That same evening the four adventurers, after a catfish dinner in a water-front restaurant, went to Jake Birdsall's room to talk over their plans. Tom Plunkett wet a finger on his tongue and turned a page of the guidebook that lay on the table before him. "It says here," he said, "that the wagons ought to be light instead of heavy, because you'll run into deep sand, mud and mire, and a heavy wagon would sink to the hubs."

pounds of crackers, some cheese, salt and pepper. "That all?" Birdsall asked. They discussed food supplies for half an hour and decided to cut down every item to about two-thirds of the amount proposed. "To help out on the meat we may be able to shoot some buffaloes, and I guess there'll be birds that we can kill," said Andy Gordon. "We're all purty handy with guns."

It's the best route of all." The route, as mapped out, ran from St. Joseph to Fort Laramie, in Wyoming. From there on to Pocatello, in Idaho. The trail did not touch Colorado or Utah, but ran through Kansas, a corner of Nebraska, across Wyoming into Idaho. There it turned sharply west, across Nevada in a southwest direction, entering California just below Lake Tahoe.

OREGON STATEHOUSE JOTTINGS

By Ervin D. McNeal (United Press Staff Correspondent) Salem, Ore., Jan. 23 (UP)—A large part of the proposed legislation for the 1945 session, and a good part of the bills on which argument will develop, are already in the hopper, old-timers of the senate and the house believe. Most committees are "in the groove" by now and this week will see the return to the floor of much material introduced the first two weeks of the session, which has since been in committee hands.

undoubtedly meet with stern opposition from rural representatives. This would restrict drivers from entering highways except at specified points. Five bills concerning old age assistance have so far been submitted. They would increase payments from the present $40 to $50 and $50 respectively and in one case no limit is declared. One of these bills provides that old age assistance be financed by direct appropriation rather than from revenues of the liquor control commission, and another would establish a $40 "floor."

tlement of bonds to come from the sale of forestry products. Expected to meet hot resistance is the "Oregon raw milk act," now languishing in committee, which provides that most milk and milk products must be pasteurized, that all cattle above the age of eight months must be inoculated, and that all milk producing cattle must be tested twice a year for Bangs disease and tuberculosis.

Speakers Arrive For Men's Rally

All reservations for the dinner to be held at the First Christian church tonight at 7 o'clock in connection with the men's rally being held under sponsorship of the Bend Ministerial association have been sold, it was announced this morning, and approximately 150 will be present. Hilding E. Halvarson, gospel singer, accompanied by Dr. N. A. Jepsen, arrived from Seattle, Wash., this morning, to take part in the rally.
