

A SONG to REMEMBER

by Willard Wiener

THE STORY: At the age of 10, Frederic Chopin's dexterity at the piano has already made him a person of note in the little Polish village of Zelazowa Wola. Count Skarbek, owner of the village, has requested that he play in a public concert at Warsaw. One day while Frederic is practicing for the great event, his playing suddenly dissolves into a series of discords. Professor Eisner rushes into the room to find his protegee staring, not at the keyboard, but out of the window at some peasants in chains who are being prodded by Czarist soldiers.

IV THE SONG OF FREEDOM Frederic when away from the pianoforte was happiest in the fields where he would watch the hard raw-boned men and women work the earth. He learned, by watching, how they planted their potatoes and their cabbages and he learned, by listening to the words of his good professor, how those who did the planting and the reaping did not do it for themselves but for the lord of the manor and for his household who lived in the great house. His thoughts, never on today, were always on tomorrow. It was in his head how unhappy they were and how happy they might be and how also some day they would straighten their bent bodies, never to bow again. He heard with his inward ear their all but broken spirit burst into thunderous music—into a song of freedom. It was already ringing in his ears, a song to remember, a song to be heard some day throughout all Poland, perhaps even throughout the world—a rising chorus of free men. In their company, in their course but kindly talk, he lost all shyness, all timidity. The smell of the rich Polish earth on their clothes and on his own was good to his nostrils. This earth, it was his and theirs—theirs— together. They should know that and not work it to give over the fruits of it to strangers. Why did they do that? Was it because their masters would otherwise hurt them with whips? By what right did one man raise a whip to another? "Poland is not free." That was the answer Prof. Jozef Eisner had given. Six days before the charity concert in Warsaw at which he was to make his first public appearance as a pianist, Frederic let his teacher Prof. Jozef Eisner in on a secret. "I've been talking to Jan and Tytus, and we have decided—" Professor Eisner said: "Yes, and what have you decided?" Frederic said softly: "We have decided—when we grow up—that all the boys are going to help." "Humph. So you have decided that? Eh?" Frederic nodded. "Well, that is all right. And now that it has been decided, you will do something else. You will put down the name of Jozef Eisner."

They will say also that his people ought to be free and maybe we can help them." Jozef Eisner tapped his head. "Frederic, it's all here. And some day, no doubt of it, you will be the voice for thousands and thousands who have no voice, and you will speak, Frederic, not from your little cave but from the public platform! I have the knowledge, I know!" (To Be Continued)

Jail Threat Made As Coach Balks

New York, Feb. 8 (UP)—The threat of jail hung over Brooklyn college today because he refused to divulge the source of his report that police had tapped wires to trap the five basketball players from his school who were involved in a bribery deal with gamblers. Oshins, who appeared yesterday at the office of assistant District Attorney Edward A. Heffernan, was asked to elaborate his story that "the police knew all about this basketball deal because they had been tapping wires to discover other matters." He said that according to his source of information, the police could have "involved other players, but cracked down on these boys because they had them cold." Remains Silent Although questioned two hours, he would not say where he had received the information, other than to reveal that it was from "someone attending Brooklyn college." Heffernan warned him that "the grand jury will be called into session again on Friday and you will be subpoenaed for an appearance before it." "If you persist in your refusal to disclose the identity of the one who gave you the information, you may go to jail," Heffernan said.

Special Officer Robbed by Thug

Portland, Ore., Feb. 7 (UP)—Special Policeman W. C. Stewart was a bit red in the face when he made his report last night. He had to admit that a thug had waylaid him, robbed him of an empty billfold and his police commission—and then made his escape.

HAPPY ENDING

Gary, Ind. (UP)—The honesty of a Gary woman provided Mrs. Elizabeth Zorich with a happy ending tale. Discovering that her purse was missing, Mrs. Zorich advertised in the local paper. A few hours later a telephone call told her a woman had found the purse and would return it intact with the $90. OIL DRILLING IN MICHIGAN Lansing, Mich. (UP)—The Michigan oil and gas division of the state conservation department approved 741 permits to drill for oil and gas in 43 of the state's 83 counties during 1944. Since 1927, when the first drilling permits were issued, the state has approved 11,314 explorations. U. S. coast and geodetic survey boats have been mapping the coast now for 128 years; they map not only shorelines but also ocean bottoms, tides and winds.

—Frederic, the Mozart, please." Jozef Eisner filled his long-shanked pipe. "All right, all right, now let's get on." He pushed the tobacco down into the bowl with his forefinger. Frederic meanwhile had begun to play. Jozef Eisner cocked his ear. "Is that Mozart?" "No." "Ah, I thought not. What is that?" "It's Frederic Chopin." "Oh, ho!" "I wrote it. It's a waltz." "Umph. Thank you for telling me." "Don't you like it?" "Offhand, not at all. But how can I say until I hear it?" "I think it's very nice," Frederic said. His fingers danced over the keys. Jozef Eisner said: "I'll decide that, please." Then as Frederic played Jozef Eisner dreamed. "Frederic," he said, "do you know what a wonderful city Paris is? It is the capital of the world. There is not a great musician nor a great artist who does not go to Paris at some time of his life. You too will go there, and I will be with you. Yes, no doubt about it. You will play before a thousand people and they will all be shouting, each and every one of them, 'Bravo! Bravo! Ah, there will be talk when they hear you. And do you know what they will say?' Eh?" "What will they say, Professor?" "Well, for one thing, they will say this is Frederic Chopin, and he is Polish—" "I am proud of that, Professor." "Umph. I should hope so."
