London, Feb. 8 (UP)—A shortage of gasoline was blamed today for the crash of a transport plane in which 20 Britons flying to the big three conference were killed or injured Feb. 1.

Ten persons were known dead, five missing and believed dead, and five injured.

Aboard the plane were six members of the foreign office, five members of the war office, two royal air force fliers and seven crewmen.

London newspapers said the plane crashed into the sea after developing motor trouble attributed to insufficient gasoline.

There was no immediate explanation of the shortage of gasoline. News of the crash was withheld until start of the big three conference had been announced.

The dead were: From the foreign office: P. N. Loxley, private secretary to Sir Alexander Cadogan, permanent head of the foreign office; Miss P. M. Sullivan, a secretary and daughter of Col. Arthur Sullivan of Winnipeg, Canada; A. R. Drew, J. Chaplin, R. M. Guthrie and Detective Sgt. H. J. Battley.

From the war office: Lt. Col. I. S. H. Hooper, Lt. Col. W. G. Newey and Capt. A. K. Charlesworth.

House in Turmoil As Skunk Visits

Salem, Ore., Feb. 8 (UP)—There was a near-riot in the Oregon house, representatives late Wednesday as members let down their hair while congratulating two representatives on their birthdays.

Rep. John Hall, who was 46, was the recipient of two gifts—the second of which was a live (safe) skunk. With screams from secretaries on the floor and yells from members of the house, dignity suffered as Rep. Stanhope Pier dashed for the sidelines and

Rep. Harvey Wells climbed onto his desk. Speaker Eugene Marsh called a hasty recess and pined the group admiring the animal, whose name is variously "Gardenia," or "Chanel No. 5." Late Rep. Hall tremblingly got the striped woods-kitty under control. The presentation was made by Rep. John Steelhammer, who canvassed the state for a live and "safe" skunk. He finally located one with the assistance of Kenneth Cooper of the Portland park department, and Arthur Green, curator of the Portland zoo. Rep. Hall and Rep. Fred Himmelwright, Wallowa, were congratulated formally on their birthdays later by house resolution. Buy National War Bonds Now!
