

Senate Receives Salary Measures; House Approves

By Eric W. Allen, Jr. (United Press Staff Correspondent) Salem, Ore., Feb. 13 (AP)—The senate today received the house reorganization and administration committee's bills to raise the salaries of state officials, which passed the house in short order yesterday.

The bills were attacked in the house chiefly because they were for those in the "higher brackets," while there was a "greater need" for increases in the lower pay-scale ranges.

Rep. Warren Erwin, Multnomah, said that "I shudder to think what the voters' reaction will be" to the raises, and remarked he had already heard considerable criticism.

Passing the bill, which would raise the governor from $7,500 to $9,000, the secretary of state and treasurer from $5,400 to $6,000, and the attorney general from $5,000 to $5,750, would put the house in a "ridiculous light in view of the facts of their statements to the press," he said.

Dickson Favors Bill (The three highest-elected officials last month disclaimed to the press any desire or pressing need for their own increases in salary.)

Rep. John Dickson, Multnomah, favoring the bill, said that "Oregonians shouldn't have to 'hide our heads when we look at the salaries we pay our officials,'" and Rep. Ralph Moore, Coos Bay, stated that he had discovered that a large proportion of the expenses of the various offices came from the pockets of the officials involved.

Steelhammer, in closing his argument, said he saw no reason for Representative Erwin to "shudder" inasmuch as the salaries of some Multnomah county officers were $6,000, "the salary we want to pay to the secretary of state and treasurer of the whole state of Oregon."

Bill Passed Earlier the house passed the

Official Asserts OLC Deal to Net Oregon Millions

Salem, Ore., Feb. 13 (AP)—Chairman Paul L. Crooks of the Oregon State Liquor Control commission, today told the legislative committee investigating the activities of the commission in the joint Washington-Oregon purchase of Kentucky distilleries in 1943 that the deal would net the state about $4,500,000 before it is through.

It was a "very fine" deal, he said, and about half that amount of profit has accrued to the state so far.

Liquor stocks were at an all-time low, Crooks said, at the time the purchase was first conceived, and this resulted in three needs—first to supply Oregon consumers, next to eliminate or decrease black market operations, and third, to supply old age assistance money which comes from liquor revenues, and for which there was a demand.

Believed "In Line" Not at any time did the commission do anything which was not in line with the conditions laid out by the board of control and the attorney general, Crooks stated, and the entire transaction was with the knowledge of the office of price administration and the bureau of internal revenue, whose requirements were followed.

The commissioners "kept their feet in the door" to future negotiations, Crooks said, explaining that they wanted to have a base laid for the purchase if it became possible later, as it turned out that it did.

Point At Issue The part of the purchase deal which has raised most controversy, that which involved the payment of $5 per barrel to Harry Collin, who negotiated the purchase, for bulk whiskey withdrawn from stocks in lieu of bottling fees, and the bottling agreement itself, was always a part of the negotiations, and they would not have been completed without them, Crooks explained.

Collin had the option which Oregon and Washington took up, and the agreements became a prerequisite to signing a contract, Crooks said. The committee hearing was the second in their $25,000 investigation.

Spanish Consul In Manila Faces Charge By Solon

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—Rep. John M. Coffee, D., Wash., today demanded the swift arrest and punishment of Jose Del Castano, Spanish consul general in Manila, as an axis war criminal.

"The charge," Coffee said, "is murder." In a speech prepared for the house, Coffee painted a dramatic picture of the Spaniard as a spy, fifth-columnist, and axis agent responsible for the deaths of thousands of Americans in the Philippines.

"As long as he is allowed to move freely about Manila, as long as he can send messages by coded cables and by coded phone calls to the Spanish terminal of the Berlin-Tokyo-Madrid axis—for just that long will the American dead on Bataan go unavenged and the living in Manila remain menaced," Coffee said.

History Given He gave the history of the Spanish diplomat: "On Nov. 3, 1940, Del Castano, chief of the overseas division of the German-run Falange party of Spain," was appointed consul-general to Manila.

There he built up the Falange. When Manila broke diplomatic relations with Germany, Italy, and Japan on June 18, 1941, "he took over their official duties in the Philippines."

"The Spanish consulate became the clearing house for all axis confidential messages. As the war crisis rose, Del Castano sent his Falangist followers into the civilian defense system. They did their job well—for the Falangist axis motherland."

Spaniard Accused After the Japanese occupied Manila, Coffee said, "all the foreign consuls in the city were herded into one room by the Japanese military authorities. The Japs asked them each to prepare a list of Americans they considered most dangerous to the axis."

"The only diplomat in that room who consented—and consented I assure is the wrong word—who consented to prepare such a list for the Japs was Jose Del Castano. Need I describe to you the tragic fate of every American named on that list who was caught by the Japs?"

Food Merchants Organize Branch

Approximately 30 food merchants of Deschutes county gathered last night in the Pine Tavern and formed a local branch of the Oregon Food Merchants association. The meeting was featured by a dinner, and wholesalers furnished entertainment.

James Mayne, a director in the state association, was named president; George Gohrke vice-president, and Mrs. John Carter, secretary. Principal speaker of the evening was Carl A. Johnson, chairman of a special chamber of commerce committee now engaged in raising an industrial fund. He told the city's and chamber's plans for post war industrial development.

Rev. R. H. Prentice also spoke, and warned the merchants that the returning soldiers probably will produce a problem calling for establishment of credit ratings and other considerations for the fighters.

Mrs. C. K. Knight, field representative for the state association, was a guest, and assisted in forming the Deschutes group.
