Budapest Falls

The German front in Silesia is crumbling, and the roads to Dresden and Leipzig seem wide open to Konev's army," a Moscow dispatch said.

Steady Gain Made
The Nazi command in its daily war communique succinctly acknowledged the steady Soviet gains west and northwest of Breslau. Of that sector it said:

"The battle has extended in its further course to the area around Goldberg and to the Queis and the Bober sector north of Sagan."

The Queis, a tributary of the Bober, flows seven miles west of it in the area of Soviet-captured Bunzlau and 10 miles separate the rivers a little farther north.

The fighting around Goldberg was more than 10 miles southwest of Liegnitz, and represented a spread to the south and west.
