Mrs. America Meets the War

"Keep 'em Rolling" is the slogan now for people who are lucky enough to own automobiles. The quota of new cars—that is, 1942 models—for the whole nation this month is only 2,000, one-third less than last month. It's easy to see that a new family car just isn't in the cards for most of us very soon. Better pay extra special attention to caring for the one you have—and drive carefully and only when necessary. It goes without saying, of course, that carpooling will help us get the most out of the "jalopy." Sharing the ride conserves gasoline and tires, too.

Tramp, tramp, tramp, we all are marching—to the repair shop to get new life put into overworked shoes. The OPA had Mrs. America's wartime budget in mind when it recently authorized regional offices to establish flat dollars-and-cents ceiling prices for shoe repair services. At the present time, ceiling prices represent the highest price charged during March 1942 by each shop, except for new rubber heels, which have nationwide dollars-and-cents ceilings. Surveys have shown that many shops were charging excessive prices. When the new dollars-and-cents ceilings go into effect, each store will display a poster listing these ceilings, so that the customer can be sure of not being overcharged.

If you're one of the many housewives who prefers to buy the choice or good quality meat when spending red points for an occasional beef roast, you'll be interested in this new ruling. OPA has set maximum percentages of the two top grades of cattle that any slaughterer can kill during each of the next two months. Some establishments were slaughtering good and choice cattle almost exclusively, and draining the supply of these better grades from other operators. Much of this beef was going into the black market, and many unthinking housewives paid over-ceiling prices. Now, however, with better distribution assured, "choice" and "good" beef should be available at your favorite butcher shop. Do your part in the fight against inflation by checking and never paying more than the ceiling price.

"An apple a day keeps the doctor away" is a thought to keep in mind while casting your eye over the fruits and vegetables for sale at the market. Apples scalloped with sweet potatoes, fried apples with pork sausage, apple stuffing with low-point spareribs, are just a few of the many palatable combinations possible with this versatile fruit. For dessert, try apple-sauce served with ginger-bread, which, incidentally, takes less sugar than almost any other cake. Munching apples in front of a fire is a pleasant winter's evening past-time in anybody's language. Speaking of winter, nippy days for many families means a piping hot bowl of soup for lunch or dinner. Most housewives lean toward the hearty variety, such as fish chowders, chile, bean or pea soups. Whole and split-peas are plentiful now and we all know what grand soups they make. Ever tried lentils or black beans? If you haven't, there's a pleasant surprise in store for you. They make luscious soups that your family is bound to appreciate.

Do you budget your fuel oil to be sure you'll have enough to last through the winter? If you use it recklessly you may end up with icicles hanging on your oil burner and mufflers on your family's necks. One way to budget is to use only five per cent of your total ration each week. Keep your thermostat low. Use every trick you know to save heat. You can keep warm and stay within your rations too.

Gordon George in Navy Radar Group

Gordon Wesley George, son of school Superintendent and Mrs. Howard W. George, Bend, has been qualified for radar technician training in the navy and has volunteered for induction, being sworn into the navy at Seattle, Wash., and transferred to San Diego naval training center for "boot" training, according to word received by Chief Specialist Paul Connet, recruiter in charge of the Central Oregon navy recruiting station here.

Last year, Gordon enlisted in the U. S. army air corps and was put on inactive duty until he was needed. After graduating from Bend high school with the class of 1944 he worked for the forest service during the summer. When called to active duty in December, 1944 he was found disqualified for air corps duty due to an injury to one eye received while fighting fire with the forest service, and was given a discharge from the army air corps. He then took and passed the Eddy test at the Bend navy recruiting station, volunteered for induction and was accepted. He will now receive 10 months training in electronics, radio and sound engineering in navy schools before being transferred to the fleet.
