

Jobless Benefits Changes Sought By Oregon Solons

Salem, Ore., Feb. 23 (AP)—Compromise legislation to liberalize Oregon's jobless benefits law went to the floor of the senate today with approval of the labor and industries committee.

Main points in the compromise (SB78) were raising the maximum benefits from $15 to $18 weekly, extending the benefit period from 16 to 20 weeks, raising the percentage of the base period to be paid weekly from 6 to 7 per cent, and increasing the total to be paid from one-sixth the base period earnings (13 weeks) to one-fifth.

Labor groups sought even greater benefits, including $25 weekly, 26 weeks duration, 10 per cent per week, and one-third the total base period.

Minimum Unchanged

The $10 weekly minimum remains unchanged and committee members felt employment was not expected to sag enough in the next two years to have much effect on Oregon's $67,000,000 reserve.

The committee also tabled indefinitely a proposed little Wagner act for Oregon (SB179). Approved was a bill guaranteeing equal rights for women workers (SB239) for performing an equal amount and quality of labor under like circumstances for a private employer.

The senate was expected to confirm minor amendments to the fish commission bill passed yesterday in the house. The commission would be placed on an appropriation basis under the bill (SB 99).

A bill to build a psychiatric hospital in Multnomah county, defeated Wednesday, was reconsidered by the senate and sent back to committee for amendment to include the estimated cost.

World Repeal Law

A resolution went to senate committee repealing the constitutional provision preventing Chinese from holding land or mining claims in Oregon. The people would vote in 1946 on the chance to a provision in the original 1859 constitution.

Both houses speeded up as the final payday Monday drew near. Another two weeks of free service appeared inevitable to adjourn the session.

Committees began killing or passing bottled-up bills and calendars mushroomed for the first time this session. Major issues still in committee, however, included liquor, dairying, the budget, school taxes, veterans administration, and reapportionment of the senate if moves are carried out as expected.

One educational bill sent out of committee today was the house-approved measure raising the compulsory school attendance age to 16 years or graduation from high school. It carried "do pass" action of the senate education committee.

Electronic power heating and some of the new adhesives will be applied to glued wood construction after the war and will make household furniture stronger, more durable and less costly.

Mrs. America Meets the War

Have you written down the expiration dates on the backs of the red and blue stamps in your ration books? You'd be surprised how much it will simplify your point budgeting, and marketing, too. You know, of course, that all food stamps now are good for only a limited period. When the announcement is made of the expiration of new stamps, the expirations dates are also given. Blue stamps, good for buying processed foods, and red stamps, for meats and fats, are good for four months. The new sugar stamp—No. 35—is also good for four months.

For the winter sports-loving family there is the promise of lower-priced fall and winter utility outerwear in a few months. A new regulation now governs manufacturers' prices of leather coats, jackets, ski and skating suits, hunting and fishing clothes, wool mackinaws and other sports togs designed for the great outdoors. By late spring, more lower-priced garments should be available in the stores, and OPA plans to pass price reductions on to you.

Now's the time to visit the shoe store if you're looking for a pair of shoes to buy without spending a shoe stamp. Starting February 19, a certain percentage of a dealer's stock may be sold ration-free. This "holiday" will give the shoe merchant an opportunity to clear his shelves of odds and ends and broken sizes. And, it will give Mr. and Mrs. America some extra shoe mileage. Remember, though, that the ceiling prices for these shoes is 25 per cent less than the "regular" price. If they are from the store's own stock. Shoes bought ration-free from another dealer can be priced only one-third more than the price paid him. Advertisements of these ration-free shoes will carry the notation, "OPA odd lot release . . . Ration-free from February 19, 1945, to March 3, 1945, inclusive."

Car owners, take note. . . . In order to get supplemental gasoline, you must have your mileage rationing record. It was given to you when you got your new "A" book. If you've lost or destroyed it, go to your local board right away and get a new one. Remember, no "B" or "C" rations can be issued to you without this record. And while you're thinking about gasoline rations, check to see if all your coupons are endorsed. If you haven't written your automobile license number across the face of the coupons, do it right away. Don't be a party to the black market.

Here's a case where being smaller-than-average size has its advantages for Mrs. America and Junior. The army is turning over to civilians 75,000 pairs of winter-weight flannelette pajamas—in small sizes only. Each pair will have a tag with the ceiling price right on it. This price will be either $2.80 or $3, depending on whether the store bought them direct from treasury procurement or through their wholesaler.

Army needs for canned chicken and turkey—for use in hospitals, army field rations and for shipment overseas—is the reason behind the war food administration order requiring all poultry canned after Feb. 14 to be set aside for the armed forces. This means no more canned turkey or chicken—including chicken soup, chicken a la king, etc.—for Mrs. America until the order is lifted.

Potato Growers To Enforce Ban

Potato growers of Central Oregon are firm in their determination to enforce the quarantine against ring rot, it developed today following a meeting of growers in Redmond. The sessions were conducted by Frank McKinnon, chief of the division of plant industry, department of agriculture, and Ben Davidson, federal-state shipping point inspector. "The growers decided that no outside potatoes could come into the district unless they are eye-indexed or tuber-united seed of foundation type stock. Specifications for such seed potatoes must meet the Oregon state requirements, it was said.

Red Cross Plans Portland Session

A next-of-kin meeting will be held at the civic auditorium in Portland at 2 p.m. Monday by 12 former prisoners of the Japanese and Germans, accompanied by army officers. The meeting is under the auspices of the Red Cross and all next-of-kin are invited to attend. The meeting is also open to the public. Mrs. R.W. Hemingway, executive secretary of the Deschutes chapter of the Red Cross, has been informed.

Pentachlorophenol is a comparatively new wood preservative and is used instead of creosote in solution in petroleum; it is practically insoluble in water and leaves the surface of the wood clean.

Wolverine fur is highly prized in Alaska, not alone because of its scarcity, but because it will not ice up from the breath as other furs do, and therefore is used to line parka hoods next to the face.
