

New Regulations For Drafting of Men Are Revealed

Reasons for the reclassification of hundreds of men, and the possible fate of men up to 37 years of age insofar as serving in the armed forces is concerned, and the steps employers must take in seeking deferments, is explained in a statement released today by the Deschutes county selective service board. The statement follows:

"The classification policy of the Selective Service System is subject to adjustment as the needs of the armed forces change. The armed forces have indicated that their greatest immediate need is for physically fit men in the younger age groups, capable of the highest degree of efficiency under combat conditions.

"Accordingly, occupational deferment policies have been adopted which should release large numbers of younger, physically fit men for military service and, at the same time, provide for the deferment of sufficient numbers of men to engage in activities in war production or in support of the national health, safety, or interest who are in the older age groups or are in the younger age groups but are either physically disqualified for any military service or qualified for limited military service only.

Fighters In Demand

"The requirements of the armed forces for combat replacements have sharply increased and the supply of physically fit men in the age group 18 thru 25 is practically exhausted. It is also true that the supply of men ages 26 thru 29 is extremely limited. Therefore, under the policies it is now necessary to establish, the prospect for registrants ages 18 through 29 is that they will be inducted unless the information submitted to local boards by employers in accordance with the provisions of Memorandum 115, indicates that they are "necessary to and regularly engaged in" and are indispensable and irreplaceable in an activity in war production or in support of the national health, safety or interest.

"The prospect for registrants ages 30 thru 37 is that the increased needs of the armed forces for physically fit men and the limited supply in the age group 18 thru 29 will result in the induction of physically fit men in this age group and especially those under the age of 34, to the extent necessary to fill calls.

Explain Classifications

"A registrant aged 18 thru 29 may be retained or placed in class 2A or 2-B if the local board finds that he is "necessary to and regularly engaged in" an activity in war production or in support of the national health, safety or interest.

"The prospect for registrants ages 30 thru 37 is that the increased needs of the armed forces for physically fit men and the limited supply in the age group 18 thru 29 will result in the induction of physically fit men in this age group and especially those under the age of 34, to the extent necessary to fill calls.

ferment of any such registrant has not expired, provided that (a) when the local board receives a Form 42-A (special revised) for a registrant, regardless of his current classification, or whether an order to report for induction has been issued, which bears the certification of one of the federal government agencies, it shall immediately reopen and consider the registrant's classification anew in the light of such certification.

May Reopen Case

"(b) When the local board receives a form 42-A special reserve which does not bear the certification of one of the federal government agencies it may reopen the case and consider the registrant's classification anew, but only if the local board finds the registrant to be "necessary to and regularly engaged in" and indispensable and irreplaceable in an activity in war production or in support of the national health, safety or interest, provided the registrant has not been issued an order to report for induction.

"Since it may take until April 1, 1945, for new forms 42-A special revised to be filed with local boards, present forms 42-A special, forms 42-A and other occupational affidavits now on file may be considered as remaining in effect until replaced by a form 42-A special revised, or until April 1, 1945 or until the period of deferment requested expires, whichever ever occurs first.

"As promptly as possible after April 1, 1945, local boards have been requested to reopen and consider anew the case of every registrant 18 thru 29 still remaining in class 2-A or class 2-B, for whom it has received no form 42-A special revised, even though the current deferment of the registrant has not expired.

"Federal government employees ages 18 thru 29 will be covered in the same manner as registrants in private employment, provided that the provisions of public law 23 and local board Memo 115-F are complied with.

Reclassify Men

"Local boards are now engaged in the reclassification of registrants in the age group 18 thru 29. In considering registrants of this age group for reclassification out of class 2-A and class 2-B, local boards have been advised to first select for reclassification those registrants who the local board finds are not "necessary to and regularly engaged in" and not indispensable or irreplaceable in war production or in support of the national health, safety or interest. Local boards are instructed to continue reclassifying registrants 18 thru 29 out of 2-A and 2-B for the purpose of filling calls even though the current de-

Is Your Wife a Back Seat Driver?

If she is, she'll probably give you this advice—if not, read it here and profit:

Be gentle as a lamb with that car of yours, if you'd have it still roar bravely when the war is won.

Drive it carefully — have it lubricated and adjusted often—make small repairs while they're still small, and you'll have dependable transportation for the duration.

We'll help you keep it running right.
