Also at the early session the house passed a bill which sets up a graduated scale of penalties for overweight regulation violations on logging trucks, after nearly two hours of discussion and controverse.

House bills 234 and 369, which require the pasteurization of all milk not from a certified disease-free herd, and a system of inspections for cattle diseases, passed, both unanimously.

Hearings Held

Members of the food and indus-tries committee explained that ex-tensive hearings had been held on the measures, which are com-panion bills with two milk grad-ing and testing bills passed earlier this week. The bills are designed to give

The bills are designed to give justice to both large and small producers of milk, and at the same time protect the public, according to statements made by Reps. Fred Himelwright, H. H. Chindgren and Jack Greenwood. Members of the industry were in agreement on the bills, as much as was possible, they said.
