date. He said that Sisters and Lapine had reported in, and that he expected to hear from Redmond, possibly tomorrow. Bruno Rath, chairman of the Deschutes county chapter of the Red Cross, said today that funds contributed by high school students would be credited to the Junior Red Cross.

Harold Gentry, chairman of the Junior Chamber of commerce committee heading the drive in Bend, today renewed his plea that contributors turn in their donations before March 12, in an effort to place Deschutes county first in the state to go over the top.

Mrs. Don Higgins, chairman of the Jaycee auxiliary committee assisting in the drive, praised the efforts of her co-workers, and at the same time urged them to redouble their efforts to bring the campaign to an early and successful end. She reported that headquarters in the chamber of commerce offices was staffed yesterday by Mrs. Howard Given and Mrs. A. L. O. Schueler.

At headquarters today, workers told with enthusiasm the experience one of them had when she went to solicit Roy Anderson, an ex-marine now employed by Pacific Trailways. In donating, Anderson remarked:

"Boy, I'm sure glad you came to me for a donation because I know what Red Cross means. When I was shipped out to the south Pacific my wife was expecting a youngster. Naturally I was worried about her in that condition, but the Red Cross took care of her on the way back to Idaho from San Diego. After I got across I didn't hear from her for about six weeks because no mail had reached me yet so I went to the Red Cross again. In less than a week I had a cable back saying the wife was doing swell and that I was the father of a 7 1/2 pound girl. So twice now Red Cross has done a lot for me and my family, now's my chance to kick in for my buddies 'down under' and for GI's everywhere."

Duisburg Target Salvo after salvo crashed down into the river towns of Duisburg, Muelheim, Oberhausen, and other points where a crossing might be made, while longer-range guns reached a dozen miles or more beyond the river to blast the sprawling arms plants of Essen and Gladbeck.

However, the spotlight of battle remained on the blazing Remagen bridgehead. The American First army was pumping a great flow of men and armor across the Rhine there in a bid to exploit the chance capture of the Ludendorff bridge before the Germans could rally in force. After a 48-hour blackout in which practically all details of the crossing were kept secret to capitalize on the obvious German confusion, headquarters revealed that the American Ninth armored division under Maj. Gen. John W. Leonard, Toledo, O., had taken the Rhine bridge.

German broadcasts and heavily-censored field dispatches from the Rhine left little doubt that the pay-off battle of the western war had been joined. Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's American Third army appeared on the verge of striking for a crossing of the Rhine near Coblenz, and the rain of shells plunging into the Ruhr indicated strongly that the Ninth army, too, was opened a tremendous artillery barrage on the packed factory cities of the Ruhr in what appeared to be a double-edged blow aimed at flattening the industrial basin and blasting a path across the Rhine for Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson's armored and infantry divisions. Smoke Screen Used Berlin military commentators also reported without confirmation that seven to eight British Second army divisions, about 85,000 to 120,000 men, were deploying along the west bank of the Rhine near Emmerich, 35 miles north of the Ruhr.

The British, Berlin said, were moving up to the river behind a great smoke screen in preparation for a full-scale crossing into the northwestern German plain. Paul Sullivan Wins New Rank

With U. S. army forces in New Caledonia, Paul Sullivan has been promoted from second lieutenant to first lieutenant. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Porter of Bend, Oregon.

Lt. Sullivan was graduated from Bend high school in 1936. After leaving school, he became a teller in the First National Bank of Bend.

The lieutenant enlisted with Company I, 162nd Infantry in 1939, at Fort Lewis, Washington. He received a medical discharge in 1941, but reenlisted in November, 1942, and was assigned to the 91st division, Camp White, Oregon. He was graduated from officer's candidate school June 5, 1943, and taught at clerk school for five months at Camp Roberts, Calif. He then transferred to the 44th division at Fort Lewis. In May 1944, he was sent overseas to join his present outfit, a port battalion in New Caledonia, South Pacific island, as stevedore officer.

TIRE REPORTED STOLEN

E. B. Hagen, attendant at a service station at the corner of Franklin avenue and Wall street, today reported to Bend police that sometime yesterday a tire had been stolen from the station.

CITY BROOM-MAKERS

Burbank, Cal. (AP)—Broom-making has become a civil-service position in Burbank, at a salary of $164 a month, and city officials say it's cheap at the price. The brooms, they explain, go on Burbank's street sweepers.

"Zipper" is not the official name for the popular metallic slide fastener used extensively on clothing; it is a word first used in this application by an advertising writer.

How To Relieve Bronchitis

Cremulson relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Cremulson with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.
