

Army to Release Canol Oil Project

Washington, March 9 (AP)—Most of the army's $134,000,000 (B) Canol oil project in Canada will be written off the books by June 30.

Abandonment of the project, subject to controversy between the army and the senate's war investigating committee for more than two years, was announced last night by the war department. It had been in operation less than a year.

Only the products pipelined from Skagway to Whitehorse and Fairbanks, Alaska, will be retained by the army after the June shut-down date. Petroleum production at Norman Wells will be halted, and operations will cease at the refinery at Whitehorse and on the crude oil pipeline from Norman Wells to Whitehorse.

Will Sell Facilities

Those facilities will be offered for sale to Canada and private bidders, after they have been appraised by the U. S. and Canadian governments. Under terms of an international agreement, Canada will have first option to buy.

The United States retains an option to purchase up to 60,000,000 barrels of oil after present operations are stopped.

The war department said the joint chiefs of staff decided to abandon the project because of the anticipated improvement in the tanker situation and improved military outlook in Alaska and the Pacific.

Guard Is Killed In Prison Riot

Wethersfield, Conn., March 9 (AP)—A prison guard was killed today and a life prisoner was wounded in a riot which broke out in the machine shop of the state prison during an attempted escape.

Herbert O. Parsell, the guard, died after he was hit on the head with a heavy wrench by one of three convicts serving life terms who instigated the prison break, Warden Ralph Walker reported.

Ten other prisoners in the shop, Walker said, tried to stop the rioting. They fled to another part of the building after a riot call brought about 25 guards and state police to the scene.

Barricade Erected

The three lifers barricaded themselves in the shop and were forced to surrender after tear gas bombs were tossed in the room. One of the prisoners was wounded in the arm.

Walker said the lifers apparently planned an escape by overpowering the guard and fleeing through a window or over the roof of the machine shop which was located about 200 feet from the main prison structure.

Walker was alone with the men when the disturbance started, and he was struck down in an attempt to prevent the escape.
