

Victory Gardeners To Get Gasoline

Local OPA boards will start accepting applications for victory garden gasoline on March 23, E. W. Eggen, OPA mileage rationing representative, announced today, with one additional limitation not previously in effect which requires that the garden must not be more than 15 miles from the gardener's home or place of work.

Other conditions which the gardener must meet are virtually the same as for the past two years:

- Rules Outlined
1. Applicant must have an area of at least 1,500 square feet devoted to the production of vegetables and the mileage must be needed to provide necessary labor for cultivation.
  2. Ration issued may not provide mileage in excess of 300 miles during the six-month period immediately following date of application.
  3. Applicant must show that no alternative means of transportation is available.
  4. Applicant must show that a ride-sharing arrangement has been made or is not possible. When more than one car will be used in the ride-sharing arrangement, all applications for special gasoline must be presented to the board at the same time and the total ration for all vehicles in the group may not exceed 300 miles.

Sgt. Jessie Wirtz, of Bend, Earns 3rd Overseas Stripe

Allied Force Headquarters, Italy, March 13—It's three golden service stripes on the left sleeve for over 150 members of the Women's army corps on duty in Italy.

Overseas for 18 months now, they sewed the third stripe on and at informal parties renewed the highlights of life in North Africa and Italy as an overseas Wac.

Under the command of Maj. Elizabeth Taylor, 215 College street, Fort Valley, Ga., now on duty in France, one unit was assigned to the services of supply and spent several months at Oran, North Africa. The other company, with Capt. Hannah Ashby in command, was sent to Algiers where the Wacs immediately went to work in the offices, telephone exchanges, and postal directories of allied force headquarters.

Staff Sgt. Jessie M. Wirtz, of Bend, Ore., is among wearers of three overseas stripes.

Highways and Byways in Books

By Eleanor F. Brown
(Deschutes County Librarian)

Forty new adult books and 75 juveniles will be presented to Deschutes county readers this week, when the display of new books acquired recently opens tomorrow morning. Books are held for three days, during which time patrons may place reserves on favorites, and they are then released for circulation Saturday at noon.

Edna Ferber is back in the limelight with her striking, if rather plotless new novel, "Great Son," which concerns the fabulous Melendy family of Seattle. Pacific coast readers will find it chiefly interesting for its local color, although two or three of the characters stand out for their excellent characterization, and the analysis of Seattle as a city is psychologically interesting.

John Steinbeck's "Cannery Row" is sure to attract considerable attention, although its sharp realism will repel some readers. Another well-known writer who has come back into production is Booth Tarkington, with a new novel, "Image of Josephine," described as "the true story of a turbulent woman."

John Gunther's first excursion into fiction has brought not-too-happy results with "Troubled Midnight," which, one is inclined to feel, after reading it might better have been left untroubled.

Other new fiction to be found in the exhibit includes: "Westward to Chungking," by Helena Kuo; "They Dream of Home," by Niven Busch, a satirical novel of returned soldiers and what they found; "The Middle Mist" by Mary Renault; "Brainstorm" by Carleton Brown; "Captain from Castle," by Samuel Shellabarger, and "Behold Trouble" by Granville Hicks.

The variety of non-fiction is particularly inviting this time, with a book on plastics in all its new developments, one on how to read better and faster, Sgt. Baker's collection of G.I. cartoons known as "The Sad Sack," racing and hunting recollections, jobs for the physically handicapped, financial problems of installment selling, horseback riding, house plants, autobiography by Emily Kimbrough and Richard Wright, description and travel in the guise of "Bride in the Solomons" by Osa Johnson and "Anna and the King of Siam" by Margaret Landon; a book of the strange and supernatural, and David Ewen's famous "Music for the Millions."

The children's collection is the largest presented so far in 1945, and will be exceeded only by the exhibit to be held in May just before the opening of the summer reading project. Y books, or those selected especially for the teen-age, feature the juvenile display this time. Nursing, always popular with the girls, is represented by "Penny and Pam, Nurse and Cadet," by Dorothy Deming, R.N.; "Nancy Naylor, Flight Nurse," by Elisabeth Lansing; and "Shipmates in White," by Jean Dupont Miller. Closely allied in subject matter is "Doctor Ellen," by Adele De Leeuw, the story of a young woman's career in medical school.

A mystery planned for younger children from about 10 to 14 is "The Secret of the Closed Gate" by Margaret Leighton; and for boys of a similar age there is a good rousing adventure story, "Rocky Mountain Ranger," by William Marshall Rush. Helen Diehl Olds has a thrill-packed teen-ager in "Jill, Movie Maker," and paralleling it for excitement is "Dynamite Duncan, U.S.N." by Frederic N. Gardiner. Aviation is always a favorite topic for any book, so high school age and seventh grade readers are apt to welcome "Airliner Girl," by Patricia O'Malley, author of the well-known "War Wings" and "War Wings for Carol."

Several beautiful illustrated editions of old favorites have been included in the new books for children; among them "David Balfour," "A Tale of Two Cities," "Smoky, the Cowhorse," and "The Boys' King Arthur." The smaller children have not been neglected, for there will be found an assortment of at least twenty colorful picture books and easy stories about cats, dogs, horses, other animals, balloons, boys and girls, etc. One especially outstanding story in the age range of 5 to 8 years, is "Pandora," a new book of cats by Clare Turley, former

World's largest icebox!

This is the world's largest icing station, in Roseville, California. Equipment and platforms here can ice 256 refrigerator cars at once—supplying a car with 10,000 pounds of ice in one minute! In peak years 444,000,000 pounds of ice are manufactured to refrigerate fruit and vegetable shipments through this one Southern Pacific yard.

During a normal year 200,000 loaded refrigerator cars pass through the giant Roseville yard and other yards along Southern Pacific's lines. In this huge "icebox" fresh fruits and vegetables move to markets across the continent.

In no section of the United States are more fruits and vegetables grown than in California, Oregon, Arizona and the Rio Grande Valley of Texas. Every year this great Western garden supplies most of the nation's grapes, lettuce, asparagus, carrots, cauliflower, more than half of the citrus fruits and melons, much of the celery and peas, and nearly one-third of the principal deciduous fruits.

The West today would not be the prosperous agricultural region that it is without fast refrigerated freight, the huge investment in cars and equipment and the elaborate schedules of Western railroads which provide timely delivery of produce to markets where the demand is greatest.

Food fights for Victory. And fresh foods are vital to the health of Americans here on the home front, to men in Army, Navy and Marine camps, at home and abroad, to war workers in the Eastern industrial cities, to our returned wounded in hospitals throughout the land.
